Ex-Prisoners Win $500 Settlement For Ordeal In City Cell

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Three men, one in Colorado, one in Kansas and another believed to be in Florida, will soon receive money in the mail.

After almost two years of litigation, Lonnie Bunnell, William Cornelius and Donald Currens won $500 apiece in a settlement from the City of Lincoln Tuesday afternoon in U.S. District Court.

The three men were among 11 held for three days in a nine by nine-foot cell in March 1974, in punishment for what they called a peaceful demonstration.

The cell had no furniture. No mattresses, blankets or bedclothes were provided. There were no toilet facilities other than a seven-inch diameter hole in the floor.

Some Had To Stand

The men claimed the cell was so crowded that three or four of the men had to stand so the others could lie down to sleep.

None of the three men were present in court Tuesday when the settlement was accepted by U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom.

The suit was filed several days after the incident in the form of a letter filed in U.S. District Court. It was signed by five men, but only Currens, Cornelius and Bunnell filed poverty affidavits showing why they should not be required to pay a filing fee.

Only 3 Named

They were the only three named as plaintiffs after Urbom accepted the letter as a civil rights suit. Named as defendants were former Police Chief Joseph T. Carroll and former Inspector Robert Myers, both of whom have since retired from the Lincoln Police Department.

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union became involved in the case in September 1975 when Lincoln attorney Patrick Healey entered the case.

Originally the case also sought to have Carroll and Myers blocked from taking such measures against prisoners. But Healey told U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom Tuesday that the request was being dropped since Carroll and Myers have retired.

Police contended that the "hardships imposed upon the plaintiffs were a direct result of their violation of jail complex rules and the threat to internal security that the violations created."

Police said prisoners in A Block in the jail took mattresses, blankets and pillows into the large "day room" in the cell block and refused to go into individual cells at lock up.

About 15 to 20 officers were called into the jail in response and one by one the prisoners were escorted into the small cell, according to documents filed in court.

Although many of the allegations in the suit were undisputed, some were. Police claimed, for example, that Officer Walter Tucker was forced to clean the cell when the prisoners jammed paper plates and cups into the toilet hole.

In the prisoner's version sewer water mysteriously "gushed from the hole" The prisoners said they were forced to clean it with their hands and toilet paper.

Protesters of U.S. policy in Angola hanged Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in effigy Tuesday outside the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco, Calif. President Opposes Abortion On Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said Tuesday he would oppose a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion, but prefers one that would give states the right to decide such issues.

"I do not believe in abortion on demand," Ford said in a television interview. But, he added, that there must be some flexibility in the law to permit abortion in cases involving the mother's illness or rape.

Describing his views as "a moderate position," Ford addressed the abortion issue in an interview with CBS correspondent Walter Cronkite.

He said that while he did not agree with the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion, he had taken an oath of office to uphold the law as interpreted by the court and would do so.

The high court has ruled that a state cannot bar a woman from obtaining an abortion from a licensed physician during the first three months of pregnancy. The decision permits the regulation of abortion in the second three months of pregnancy to preserve and protect the mother's health. States are permitted to forbid abortions in the final three months.

Ford said, "I do not believe in abortion on demand. I do not agree with the court decision."

He said he agreed there were instances such as illness of the mother and rape, "when abortion should be permitted." But, he said he felt the "preferable answer" was through an amendment that would permit the states to make their own decisions on their own abortion laws.

The president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardine of Cincinnati, Ohio, called Ford's views "inconsistent and disappointing." The Roman Catholic Church has been in the forefront of efforts to ban abortion nationwide.

While criticizing the President, Archbishop Bernardine's statement said: "It would be unfair to be any more critical of Mr. Ford than of some other prominent political leaders, whose views on the abortion issue appear to be equally confused."

Constitutional amendments have been proposed both to ban abortion and to return the authority to the states for regulating abortion.

A House judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights begins hearings Wednesday on abortion amendments.

Ronald Reagan, Ford's rival for the GOP presidential nomination, has endorsed a constitutional amendment approach that would, in effect, prevent most abortions but allow them in extreme cases such as when a mother's life is in danger. Among Democratic candidates, only George Wallace has voiced support for an anti-abortion amendment, although several others say they oppose abortion in principle.

Final Pool Of 36 Chosen For Jury In Patty's Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A final pool of three dozen prospects was chosen Tuesday for the jury in Patricia Hearst's bank robbery trial, clearing the way for opening arguments Wednesday, the second anniversary of her kidnaping.

The selection of the 18 men and 18 women completed five days of closed-door interrogation by U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter. The next step will be challenges Wednesday by both sides — 12 for the defense and eight for the prosecution — that will leave 12 regular jurors and four alternates, who will decide the case.

The pool of 36 is predominantly middle-aged, ranging in age from 23 to 70. It includes professionals, housewives, laborers and one woman who described herself as an "unemployed American Indian."

All were told by Judge Carter to bring their suitcases to the courthouse on Wednesday. The 16 chosen can expect to spend the next month of their lives in a hotel, shielded from news of the trial.

About an hour before the prospects were reminded by Carter not to read or listen to news of the case, defense attorney Albert Johnson told reporters that the judge had signed an order for his young client to be taken to a doctor for X-rays to be used for "evidentiary purposes."

He would not elaborate, but chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said later the X-rays would seek to uncover whether Miss Hearst had suffered a skull fracture when struck by her terrorist abductors.

"She was hit on the head with a rifle butt the night she was kidnaped," Bailey said. "I want to find out if she suffered a hairline fracture."

He said the examination would be conducted sometime in the next few days.

Bailey, Johnson and U S. Atty James L. Browning Jr. said they were pleased that the pool had been selected and pronounced themselves anxious to move ahead with the trial.

Council Wants Humane Society Figures

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council has received half the information it requested on the financial operation of the Humane Society. Now the lawmakers just have to get the other half.

Last month the council asked Finance Director Jim Mallon to get a detailed breakdown of the society's budget. Councilman Dick Baker, a critic of the agency's operations, threatened to cut off city dollars if that information wasn't available soon.

Mallon reported to the council this week that he had been able to obtain only a financial report on the agency's operations for 1975. He couldn't get a report on the society's expenditures.

Mallon said that Humane Society Director Bernard Patton said he wasn't authorized to give out that information without approval of the society's board of directors. Apparently that approval hasn't been given.

The city pays the Humane Society $25,000 a year for animal control services. The society also received $600 from the Lincoln Housing Authority and another $4,800 from the county. The city collects license fees for the society.

Baker said the financial data is needed so that the council can determine whether the city should set up its own animal control division. The council is considering such action, at the request of the Pet Advisory Committee.

The committee estimated it would cost the city $104,000 the first year to place animal control services in either the police or health departments. It would cost an estimated $82,000 the second year.

A report on the Humane Society's operations was prepared by Lincoln bookkeeping consultants, Rhoades and Wendt.

The firm reports that the society had budgeted $142,648 for 1975. The financial report states that disbursements totaled $128,837.

During 1975 the Humane Society collected $56,083 in license fees. Another $13,312 was taken in for pound fees. The agency received $47,653 during the year for sale of animals, board charges, ambulance fees, burials and from dues and donations.

The report states that the society fielded 13,998 complaints during the year and answered 28,652 calls.

The agency picked up 3,874 stray dogs and 1,269 stray cats. A total of 3,607 dogs were turned into the shelter, while 1,635 cats were turned in.

The Humane Society disposed of 7,335 animals during 1975.

The agency answered 820 county-related calls.

The report states that 1,384 dogs were adopted from the society's shelter while 710 cats and 78 other unnamed animals were adopted.

During 1975, 25 cases were filed with the city attorney's office for prosecution.

And the report notes that Humane Society staff granted 17 television "appearances," but only one radio interview.

Friends Of Higher Gas Prices Gain

Washington (UPI) — Told that natural gas will be plentiful if the price is right, the House Tuesday handed an initial victory to supporters of freeing the fuel from federal price controls.

Members voted 230 to 184 to allow long-term deregulation of gas prices to be considered along with an emergency bill that would merely cover winter emergency sales.

The vote actually concerned the rule for taking up the issue for debate, but it constituted an approximate show of support for long-term deregulation after decades of federal control.

"The House is ready. The country is ready," said Rep. Robert Krueger, D-Tex., a freshman who won the key test for debate on his measure.

Krueger is offering his proposal as an amendment to a bill by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., calling merely for temporary removal of controls over interstate gas supplies to meet emergency needs this winter or next.

Dingell's bill would have the government designate certain pipeline companies as "distressed" because of inability to provide enough gas for their customers. These pipelines could bid for gas in the control-free intrastate market at whatever price they can negotiate.

Krueger's bill, on the other hand, would permanently lift controls from the price of newly produced gas from onshore wells, and would free new offshore supplies over five years. The Senate already has passed legislation along similar lines.

Krueger's bill differs from the Senate version in two ways: as gas contracts expire, Krueger's would make that gas price-free, while the Senate bill would put it under a new ceiling; the Senate bill would reserve lower-priced gas for residential users, but Krueger's has no such provision.

Death Penalty Bill Put On File

Legislature stories on Pages 21, 22

A bill abolishing Nebraska's death penalty was transmuted Tuesday into a bill similar to California law making the death penalty mandatory for certain crimes.

The Legislature's Judicary Committee made the changes on a 5-2 vote and sent the bill (LB702) to general file for consideration by the full Legislature.

Nebraska's current law gives judges the discretion whether persons convicted of certain crimes should be sentenced to death in the electric chair.

The changes, offered by Sen. John DeCamp, are intended to bring Nebraska law more closely into line with a 1972 U.S. Supreme Court ruling which found the use of the death penalty to be "freakish and wanton."

Chambers Abstains

Sen Ernest Chambers, who sponsored the repeal of the death penalty, abstained from the vote on DeCamp's version Committee members speculated Chambers will attempt to restore his bill to its original form on the legislative floor

The revised bill makes the death penalty mandatory for conviction of killing for hire, killing a law enforcement officer and killing in connection with a kidnaping, hijacking or rape.

Axtell Sen Gary Anderson opposed the change, saying it will not eliminate the inequal use of the death penalty because county attorneys will still be able to amend a killing for hire charge to a lesser offense. Money and influence make such plea-bargaining favor the rich, he said.

'It Won't Work'

"Plea-bargaining is the reason it won't work," Anderson said.

DeCamp urged Anderson to "talk sensible." He said a much higher percentage of minority people get into trouble and as a result get sentenced to death.

"Just go to Omaha and you can see that." DeCamp said

The committee also heard public testimony on bills which would set up a furlough system whereby nonviolent felons would repay property damage costs to victims of crime and allow the state to reimburse the innocent victim of crime for medical costs Those bills were LBs748 and 744 respectively.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln criticized LB748 as allowing prisoners "to buy their way out of prison."

'Made For Wealthy'

"This bill is made for the wealthy," Barnett said.

"If you've got enough money, you can waive, say, your eight months in prison and claim you're eligible for parole." Barnett said.

Concerns were also voiced about the possibility an inmate could get unemployment compensation while on the restitution program.

Wheat Crop May Fall Short

Washington (UPI) — This year's wheat crop will fall short of last year's 2.1 billion bushel record unless growing conditions improve, Agriculture Department experts said Tuesday.

Economists writing in a wheat situation summary report noted that although farmers have planted 77.2 million acres to 1976 winter and spring wheat — the largest acreage since 1953 — total production may drop back from last year because drought and cold weather have reduced prospects for winter wheat yields.

In early December, the Crop Reporting Board estimated the winter wheat crop would fall to about 1.5 billion bushels, 9% below last year's winter harvest which makes up the bulk of the annual wheat crop.

No new estimates have been issued since then, but weekly crop weather reports have indicated a continuing drought threat.

The latest report, issued Tuesday, warned that the condition of wheat and other small grains last week "continued to decline as soil moisture remains in short supply over most areas of the nation."

"In the major winter wheat producing areas, stands are below normal," the weekly report said.

The wheat situation summary noted, meanwhile, that farmers are now halfway through the 1975-76 marketing year in which the 1975 crop is being sold, and that stocks are the largest in three years with demand reaching record levels.

The report said last year's record crop was so big that even if combined domestic and export demand reaches the predicted total of over 2 billion bushels, it will still leave a small surplus to begin rebuilding carryover reserves.

The wheat carryover which stood at an unusually low 327 million bushels last July 1 may reach between 391 million and 466 million bushels by June 30, 1976, the report said.

The summary said wheat prices for the remainder of the 1975-76 marketing season will depend on trends in export demand and prospects for the 1976 crop.

Experts noted that after declining from last September's peaks, prices to farmers levelled off at about $3.40 bushel in recent months, about 70 cents below a year ago. They said that if export demand continues heavy and fears are felt about the 1976 crop, prices could rise "some."

But if exports lag and 1976 crop prospects appear favorable, farm prices could weaken and might reach last season's harvest-time lows of under $3 a bushel, the report added.

Factory Goofed

Mrs. Jeri Quigley, a teller at the Bank of Bourbonnais, Ill., isn't holding a mirror below the upper license plate. The lower plate had its number stamped upside down by mistake. Joyce Cloonen of Bradley, Ill., discovered the error after buying the plates at the bank in an envelope direct from the factory.

Senator Surprises Pentagon Official

Washington (UPI) — Catching the Pentagon by surprise, Sen. William Proxmire Tuesday identified another 59 senior military officers and defense officials allegedly entertained by defense contractors at hunting lodges.

Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements seemed stunned by Proxmire's disclosure at a Senate hearing and said that, if the allegations involving Pentagon brass were true, it would "cast a shadow on their performance and their judgment . . .

"I want our people to stay out of these duck blinds and I want them to stay out of the hunting lodges," Clements said.

Proxmire appeared to have baited a trap for Clements by withholding release of his list until Clements had vigorously defended the Pentagon's own probe of the hunting lodge issue in hearings before the Joint Committee on Defense Production.

The committee is investigating charges of influence peddling in the Pentagon by industries which do billions of dollars worth of defense contract business.

"This list suggests the inadequacy of your (Defense Department) investigation," Proxmire told Clements.

"We perhaps could be more thorough than we have been," Clements replied.

Until Proxmire produced his list, Clements defended his department's probe of charges that contractors have entertained influential Pentagon officials at hunting lodges and sometimes recovered the costs by adding them to charges for defense equipment.

He noted the Defense Department had officially admonished 38 officials who had visited a Maryland hunting lodge of the Northrop Corp. without valid reason.

In an angry exchange with Proxmire, Clements said, "I don't think the presence at one duck-hunt one day by an officer necessarily casts a shadow on their integrity after 30 years of service."

But he said Proxmire was "grossly mistaken" if he underestimated Pentagon concern over the issue.

Proxmire then picked up his surprise new list of five senior Pentagon civilian officials and 54 generals, admirals, colonels and other officers who allegedly accepted defense contractors' hunting lodge hospitality while they were on active duty in 1972-73 and 1974-75.

Fifty-four of those named allegedly visited a hunting lodge of the Rockwell International Corp. of Wye Island off Maryland's eastern shore. The other five reportedly were guests of the Raytheon Corp.

Earlier, Clements testified that the Washington offices of 10 major defense contractors are being audited to see if they charged off entertainment costs to the government within defense contracts.

He identified those under audit as the Raytheon Co., North American Rockwell Corp., Hughes Aircraft Co., Martin Marietta Corp., Boeing Co., General Dynamics Corp., Lockheed, Sperry Rand Corp., Grumman Corp and LTV Corp.

Democratic Chairman Urges Speed

Washington (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss appealed to Congress Tuesday for emergency legislation to keep the rule-making and money-disbursing work of the Federal Election Commission from stopping short on March 1.

Strauss urged at a news conference that Congress act before the deadline set last week by the Supreme Court for ending much of the FEC's authority. He said he didn't care whether Congress revamped the commission to conform with the ruling or gave its powers to someone else, such as the comptroller general.

But he said action is absolutely necessary: "Neglect would be dangerous and unconscionable."

Even as Strauss voiced his views, Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., and Republican leader Hugh Scott introduced legislation which would authorize the attorney general to take over commission duties through April 30.

But Strauss' suggestion provoked an immediate objection from Fred Wertheimer, a vice president of Common Cause who attended the news conference and told reporters in the hall it appeared to him a plot was afoot to torpedo the FEC.

"There is a Democratic Party scandal in the making," Wertheimer said. He accused Strauss of making a "backroom deal" with Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, a vehement critic of the FEC, to hand the comptroller general the commission's authority for certifying the payment of campaign subsidies, and thus destroy the remainder of election law enforcement.

"It's a setup for destroying the FEC," Wertheimer said.

Common Cause, a nonpartisan citizen action group, has argued for years that only an independent enforcement agency could make campaign reform laws work in congressional as well as presidential politics. The comptroller general, while a presidential appointee, presides over the General Accounting Office, an arm of Congress.

Failure Could Cost Billions

Washington — Failure to achieve a new Soviet-American agreement curbing strategic arms could mean the need for an additional $20 billion build-up over the next five years, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned in a San Francisco speech. He urged a long-term policy "combining firmness and conciliation, strong defense and arms control, political principles and economic incentives" and said the American public's attitude toward the Soviet Union fluctuated too much between extremes of conciliation and hostility.

Iranian Growth Shrinking

Teheran — The economic growth rate of Iran, which has suffered a sharp drop in oil revenues, has shrunk by 60% since last spring, the country's chief planner said, and the budget envisages a $2.4 billion deficit in the next 12 months. The military expenditures are budgeted at slightly over $8 billion, which is 8% more than in the preceding year.

Chrysler To Buy VW Parts

Detroit — Chrysler Corp. announced it would buy four-cylinder engines and axle-transmissions for its 1978 model subcompact with front-wheel drive from Volkswagen in West Germany. The agreement will save Chrysler about $100 million in plant costs.

63 Under Scrutiny

Washington — Brenton C. Leavitt, director of the Federal Reserve's Division of Banking Supervision and Regulation said it is giving more than normal supervisory attention to 63 bank-holding companies.

Padding Denied

Washington — A memorandum prepared in the President's Office of Management and Budget shows an item of $3 billion labeled "cut insurance" in its recommendation to Ford to set military spending authority at $110 billion. Spokesmen for the office and for the Pentagon flatly denied any padding as a cushion against expected congressional cuts.

Death Rate Down

Washington — The nation's crude death rate in 1974 was 9.2 for each 1,000 in the population, the lowest yet recorded, according to final figures released by the National Center for Health Statistics.

Media 'Cover' Debate Begins

Washington (UPI) — The House Intelligence Committee Tuesday began debating how to stop U.S. intelligence agencies from using news media "covers," or actually enlisting press and broadcast reporters, for its information gathering activities

After an initial exchange of views, Chairman Otis Pike, D-N.Y., scheduled further debate Wednesday and a vote on the proposition:

"The select committee recommends that U.S. intelligence agencies not use general circulation journals or electronic media or their employes or stringers, for purposes of cover or information-gathering."

Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., saying the intelligence community has an "awesome pontential for corrupting," urged that the ban be extended to cover use of the clergy, teachers and students.

"The Constitution protects the freedom of the press — we corrupt it," said Dellums. "The Constitution protects the freedom of religion — we corrupt it. Students and professors should also be free of corruption."

"Let a man quit his job and go to work for intelligence." Dellums said, "but don't let them prostitute themselves. That's one step from a fascist government."

Other committee members questioned whether the proposed restriction might be too narrowly drawn.

"I think it unconstitutional in forbidding a person from employment," said Rep. Philip Hayes, D-Ind. "It would be impossible for the government to undertake. I think it's an ethical problem or a professional problem."

Will Jackie Wed Sinatra? Odds 8 To 1

LONDON (AP) — Ladbrokes, a major British gambling chain, has offered odds of 8 to 1 that Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Frank Sinatra will marry in 1977.

A spokesman for Ladbrokes said: "Mrs. Onassis is very likely to remarry. She moves in a rather small circle and would be likely to marry a man with money. Frank Sinatra fills the bill."

The odds mean you bet $2 and if the wedding comes off you get $16 back, plus your original $2.

He did not know if any of the firm's betting stations throughout Britain had received any bets on the supposition.

"You realize it is the silly season at the moment, with horse racing cut right back with the weather, and anything we can do to give punters (bettors) a flutter is just what we do," he said. "We have all kinds of odd bets — people bet us they will or won't have twins, that life will be found in space, and so on."

Gunmen Hold 30 Children, Driver Hostage

DJIBOUTI, Afars and Issas Territory (AP) — Four gunmen held 30 French children and their driver hostage aboard a hijacked school bus Tuesday and demanded France grant immediate independence to this small East African territory.

French authorities said the bus, with one tire shot off, was blocked by a police barricade at the Somali border.

They reported negotiations with the hijackers were deadlocked.

Wheat Crop May Fall Short

Washington (UPI) — This year's wheat crop will fall short of last year's 2.1 billion bushel record unless growing conditions improve, Agriculture Department experts said Tuesday.

Economists writing in a wheat situation summary report noted that although farmers have planted 77.2 million acres to 1976 winter and spring wheat — the largest acreage since 1953 — total production may drop back from last year because drought and cold weather have reduced prospects for winter wheat yields.

In early December, the Crop Reporting Board estimated the winter wheat crop would fall to about 1.5 billion bushels, 9% below last year's winter harvest which makes up the bulk of the annual wheat crop.

No new estimates have been issued since then, but weekly crop weather reports have indicated a continuing drought threat.

The latest report, issued Tuesday, warned that the condition of wheat and other small grains last week "continued to decline as soil moisture remains in short supply over most areas of the nation."

"In the major winter wheat producing areas, stands are below normal," the weekly report said.

The wheat situation summary noted, meanwhile, that farmers are now halfway through the 1975-76 marketing year in which the 1975 crop is being sold, and that stocks are the largest in three years with demand reaching record levels.

The report said last year's record crop was so big that even if combined domestic and export demand reaches the predicted total of over 2 billion bushels, it will still leave a small surplus to begin rebuilding carryover reserves.

The wheat carryover which stood at an unusually low 327 million bushels last July 1 may reach between 391 million and 466 million bushels by June 30, 1976, the report said.

The summary said wheat prices for the remainder of the 1975-76 marketing season will depend on trends in export demand and prospects for the 1976 crop.

Experts noted that after declining from last September's peaks, prices to farmers levelled off at about $3.40 bushel in recent months, about 70 cents below a year ago. They said that if export demand continues heavy and fears are felt about the 1976 crop, prices could rise "some."

But if exports lag and 1976 crop prospects appear favorable, farm prices could weaken and might reach last season's harvest-time lows of under $3 a bushel, the report added.

The Essence Of Diplomacy

It is hoped that the next American ambassador to the United Nations follows the lead of Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan, who has just resigned.

Moynihan, who carried out the policies of the Ford administration at the U.N. over the last seven months, brought refreshing candor, spirit and forthrightness to his job of representing the United States before the world forum.

Many of his critics — including Henry Kissinger, privately — felt Moynihan was impolitic; an ineffectual, undiplomatic blusterer who ruffled feathers when calming of the waters was called for.

Moynihan's penchant for calling world-class political criminals to account, for protesting hypocrisy and his mission of trying to pry apart U.N. voting blocs were embarrassing to the smooth characters in the State Department and elsewhere who thrive on pretension and naively feel that all the world's troubles will go away if only Americans will always be agreeable.

The world doesn't work that way, however, and Moynihan knows it.

Moynihan himself has been accused of taking a hypocritical stance regarding voting blocs in view of the fact that for the first two decades or so of the U.N.'s existence, the United States and its allies and their client states invented and perfected bloc voting in the international arena. That may be, but the question is not whether they did it but whether they were right. And besides, the pendulum has swung, the blocs are voting against us and national self interest demands a counteroffensive. We can't allow the sins of the past, if that is what they were, to burden us now, to prevent us from trying to take effective action in the U.N., just as we can't let the Vietnam experience paralyze our ability to act on our own behalf elsewhere in the world where we have legitimate interests.

Moynihan understood that, too, and he helped to shape and carry out that policy which seeks to unhorse the guilt complexes and strives for effectiveness. Hopefully his contributions will be fully appreciated by the American people.

Moynihan's performance was also suggestive of another truth about diplomacy.

A great danger to peace in the world occurs when nations misunderstand one another — their motives and intentions — or misrepresent themselves. That has always been so. In that regard, the United States gets into trouble in the world sometimes because it disguises blatantly self-serving, aggressive actions in honorable but unfitting terms while other times refuses to back up words with actions. We preach a good game but we don't always practice it. In our opinion, the essence of diplomacy, of getting along with friend or enemy, is honesty. Let them know where you stand.•

Moynihan at the U.N. served a double purpose, then: he let the world know where we stand and in so doing verbally charted a suitable course for the U.S. to follow in world affairs.

Unicam's Reputation Upheld

The Nebraska Legislature's reputation for openness and accessibility was protected Monday when a proposed rules change failed of passage by three votes. Although a majority of senators favored the proposal, 27 votes were received when 30 were needed — thus the effort to keep pesky reporters and cameramen off the chamber floor was doomed.

The proposal was advanced by Sen. Doug Bereuter of Utica, who was concerned about the decorum of the legislative body. It received encouragement from a number of senators, including Wally Barnett of Lincoln, who observed that newsmen often behave like "a bunch of buzzards." Barnett is right, but that is almost beside the point.

Confining reporters and photographers and TV cameramen to the fore of the chamber and under the balconies would not have endangered the free press to a grave degree.

It would have posed some minor deadline problems, perhaps, and would have taken away a quality of freshness and spontaneity in "on-the-scene" reporting by the electronic media and it might have made for some stale question-and-answer sessions. It's always best to ask questions when the subject matter is fresh in the minds of both the reporter and the lawmaker and the best way to accomplish that is to tromp out to the lawmaker's desk.

But most importantly, to bar the media from the floor would have represented a step backwards in the openness trend that has characterized press-Legislature relations for some time. In recent years the senators have opened up their committee meetings to full reporting, allowed the taping of their daily floor sessions for televised rebroadcast and in general have been cooperative with the press.

The decorum problem, as several senators pointed out, is not mainly caused by reporters and photographers. It is more a creature of the senators themselves. Speaker Jules Burbach suggested that if there are disruptive activities on the floor, the presiding officer can clear the area without a rules change. Sen. Frank Lewis noted that senators can always tell reporters to "get lost."

The real decorum problem can be solved, if need be, by greater discipline and attentiveness on the part of the star attractions.

But in that regard, we are especially in agreement with Sen. John Cavanaugh: ". . . this is a chaotic process in which a great many ideas are exchanged among a great many people. I don't think you can make it appear orderly."

There is, after all, something really suspicious about a completely orderly legislative body. It would be as if it were programmed.

JIM BISHOP

Spoils Of A Bitter Crop

China must be punished. The British tired of killing coolies. Instead, they marched with the French up to Peking. They would chastise the emperor by burning his Summer Palace.

That would be enough. Imperial China had violated agreements to permit the English to sell opium to Chinese. The young emperor, as flaccid as a willow, had heard that the British were marching from Tientsin. He fled to Jehol with his 13 wives.

The opium wars had been going on for 10 years. The English won the battles but London was deeply in debt with successive victories. General Hope Grant advised his French counterpart, General de Montaubon, that looting would be forbidden.

They marched around the walls of Peking and, in the mists of October 7th, 1860, saw two large brass lions. Behind the lions stood a park of such poetic beauty that British and French officers were abashed.

The Summer Palace was more than a building to be burned. It was hundreds of acres of lakes, landscaped hills, ornate palaces, some with roofs of gold leaf, halls of mirrors, jewels, gold ingots, the vast treasures of the Manchu emperors.

"No plunder!" said Lord Elgin. Two companies of French troops were ordered to surround and guard the Summer Palace. The riches were too vast, too incomprehensible, for Queen Victoria's Christian officers to resist.

The French and English lied to each other. They argued that they should select a few "souvenirs" for Victoria and Napoleon III. They found gold and jade scepters. Then they found "souvenirs" for themselves. One found enough gold ingots to break the axle on a Chinese cart.

Another found a matched necklace of gray pearls the size of boys' marbles. The guilt of the generals impelled them to invite colonels and captains to roam the 200 beautiful buildings.

These invited common soldiers to help themselves. The infantry fired shots through expensive mirrors and crystal chandeliers. Drunken, muddy soldiers slept on bolts of rare Chinese silk and damask.

Life-size paintings were bayonetted. "What they could not carry away," Jack Beeching wrote in "The Chinese Opium Wars," "they smashed to atoms . . . The disease of acquisitiveness destroyed both armies."

Some soldiers had been on duty during the looting. General Hope Grant ordered the fruits of rapacity to be returned to a common pool, so that they could be auctioned off to soldiers who had no opportunity to rifle the imperial palaces.

This was the high-water mark of morality. It was something the Chinese might watch from a distance, and emulate. Hope Grant said he wanted nothing for himself, but he accepted a solid gold ewer presented by grateful officers.

The Summer Palace was wrecked beyond repair. Only the big brass lions were intact. Lord Elgin ordered the park burned. It would not only teach the Chinese a lesson; it would also obliterate the terrible things the Christians had inflicted on the heathens.

Sir John Michel and the British First Division marched in a light powdery snow on Oct. 18, 1860, and set the park and its 200 buildings afire. For two days a crayon of black smoke stained the sky over Peking.

An army surgeon, overwhelmed at the sight of beauty destroyed, was asked if he had his share of loot. He shook his head no, reached over and snapped a leaf from a bush. He held it up — his share.

As a reward for their labors, the men of the First Division were allowed to plunder the charred ruins. They complained that the only items worth salvaging were too heavy and cumbersome to cart away.

Inside the walls of Peking, Prince Kung waited for Lord Elgin to arrive in a sedan chair with a new treaty for China. It was a remarkable document in Chinese as well as English because it permitted the British to make opium addicts of Chinese without mentioning opium.

Kung signed. The soldiers departed. Lord Elgin worried that British taxpayers would have to pay for one more war. No one told him that the two brass lions at the Summer Palace would have paid for the conflict. They were solid gold.

Loneliness . . . A Cold Gray Wall . . . Sometimes A Killer . . . For The Elderly . . .

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — Loneliness can be a killer. Especially for older people who have lost the strength and the incentive to reach out and touch the frantic, preoccupied world . . .

In 20,000 nursing homes across the country, studies show, at least 35% of the aged never receive visitors, or letters, or even phone calls.

Why? Because middle-aged friends and relatives are depressed by nursing homes, and the young are often even terrified of them. However fine and functional the facility, a nursing home presents a psychological barrier to many people outside its doors. When an elderly relative is placed in a home, a sense of sadness and guilt almost always overcomes those who placed him there. Since sadness and guilt are painful to the fully functioning American, the tendency is to get busy with the business of trying to forget: Let's get on with our lives, kids, after all mother's in good hands.

Rex Taylor is a man who is out to change that attitude, and to lick loneliness among the aged and the infirm. A big order, but then, Rex is a big man on humanitarianism. He starts national crusades to make people feel better with the same exuberant joy that advertising men start multi-million-dollar campaigns to sell perfume.

The difference is that Taylor operates from love and human family experiences, rather than a corporate base . . .

When his second daughter was born retarded, and had to be institutionalized, Rex initiated "Operation Sunshine," persuading professional artists to paint happy murals on the walls of more than 150 children's hospitals and homes around the country — free.

When his cousin went blind, Rex created a national public service campaign, "The Joy of Seeing," which won the top award of the Public Relations Society of America last year. His cousin's doctors had told him that half of all blindness could have been prevented with regular eye tests, and Taylor simply launched a campaign to teach children and parents — not the old frightening concept that blindness is terrible, but the Taylor-made optimistic concept that seeing is beautiful.

When his wife, Susan, was stricken with multiple sclerosis and doomed to life in a wheelchair, Rex became deeply involved in the morale problem of the handicapped. The result was his famous "Wheelchair Decor" contest in which the crippled and ill were challenged to convert their "chrome cages" into vehicles of beauty and whimsy. Many hundreds of Americans were enlisted and uplifted, and the winners feted at the White House.

And now, this spring, another family tragedy has led Rex to take up the banner for the aged in nursing homes!

"Shortly before Christmas of 1974," says Rex, "I got a simple cassette tape from my Mother, who is 85 and quite senile in a nursing home. It was the most amazing, lovely present. The home has an ingenious, creative 'activity director,' and there was her voice, interviewing my Mother. She got her to describe her birthday party in the home, and tell about the pottery she was making, and, finally, to wish each of us in the family a Merry Christmas.

"We're a sentimental family, as you know, and we were all crying because it was so sweet and lovely. My first reaction was thank God for my Mother, and my second was thank God for the nursing home." His third, and best, reaction was to go out the next day and buy an inexpensive tape recorder and cut a cassette to send back to his Mom. She plays it — and the ones that have followed — on lonely days.

In the 13 months since, Rex has been working on his newest crusade: "Voice-a-Gram — The Sound of Love." The heart of the program, of course, is an exchange of tape-recorded messages between nursing home residents and their families. Members of the family are requested to flip the cassette and record a return message to the resident. Over the months and years, the elderly can collect a priceless tape library of familiar voices, to give them a new and revitalizing Rx for loneliness — a psychological condition that too often kicks off physical diseases.

Funded by the Gene Tunney-Mary Lauder Tunney Foundation, and supported by corporations who will contribute cassettes and recorders to nursing homes across the nation, "Voice-a-Gram" will kick off in May, in time for Mother's Day. Information on the project is being distributed to their members by such agencies as the Administration for the Aging; Department of Health, Education and Welfare, American Association of Retired Persons and American Health Care Association.

"It doesn't cost a penny to be loving, you know," says Rex Taylor with his billion - dollar - lick - the - world's - problems smile. "This is a movement where everyone wins. If you join it, you win; if you back it, you win; even if you just think about it, you could win a little understanding of what it's like to be old and alone . . ."

A Problem Without Borders

WEST BERLIN — Should judges sentence criminal offenders to prison in order to subject or expose them to "rehabilitation" programs — to "cure people to be law-abiding," as a Scandinavian delegate put it here to an international conference on comparative criminal sanctions?

That question evoked lively debate but not much of a concensus among representatives of the United States and most West European nations. The dominant American view was that sending a person to prison to be rehabilitated, to the extent that any nation ever really tried it, had failed as an anti-crime policy and resulted in unfair and sometimes inhumane treatment of offenders.

Those who agreed with this attitude, among the judges, government officials, and academics meeting at the Aspen Institute Berlin, argued that "the purpose and justification of confinement is punishment." Beyond that, they generally agreed, imprisonment could serve the purpose of "incapacitation" — protecting society by taking the criminal out of circulation, at least for a time — and might have some "deterrent" effect on potential offenders.

Nor should there be any embarrassment about the idea of punishment for criminal offenses, others contended, as long as it was not inhumane, irrational or unequally administered among those committing the same crimes.

Sweden, for example, has been moving away from its former belief in the possibilities of rehabilitation, but not toward harsher punishment. Now the Swedes more nearly imprison people for what was described here as "the general prevention" of crime; but at the same time they have been shortening prison terms, improving the physical conditions of confinement, seeking alternative forms of punishment and operating on the assumption that lenient criminal sanctions will prove more effective than long, tough prison sentences.

Americans like Federal District Judge Marvin Frankel of New York argued that the rehabilitation ethic had in practice resulted in a system of indeterminate sentences that often kept the offender in confinement longer than warranted by the gravity of his offense. The trouble is that the authorities responsible for determining when an offender might be "rehabilitated" have had neither the knowledge nor the resources to do the job except arbitrarily and haphazardly. Nor is there any real evidence that prison rehabilitative programs have had any substantial effect in converting offenders to law-abiding citizens.

But French delegates, in particular, argued that "the rehabilitative philosophy has not been given a fair trial" since no society had as yet committed the necessary resources to make it work. If the poor conditions prevalent in most prisons could be improved, in this view, the potential of rehabilitative programs might be greatly improved.

British officials reminded the conference, moreover, that even if rehabilitation was a failure in prisons, such programs still could be useful for offenders not sentenced to prison, and for those coming out of confinement. Officials and sociologists from the Netherlands warned against total abandonment of rehabilitative efforts; such programs, they maintained, could still be useful in certain individual cases.

At least two other issues striking to a non-professional observer surfaced in the discussion here. One was on the question whether any prison policy, rehabilitative, punitive or otherwise, could have much effect on crime rates, since so few people are apprehended, convicted and sent to prison, compared to the enormous number of crimes committed.

A second point of interest was the possibility that some crime rates can be substantially lowered by methods connected neither to the criminal justice system nor to larger questions of social policy. It was pointed out, for example, that in the United States, automobile thefts per 100,000 youths between 15 and 17 years old — who are the most likely perpetrators of this crime — have declined by about 20% since 1970, when almost all other crimes have been on the increase.

Why? Federal legislation forced the installation of steering wheel locks on new automobiles. Similarly, X-ray equipment had almost surely been more responsible for the decline in airplane hijackings than such a "deterrent" as the death penalty for hijackers.

A Prisoner. . . Not A Chattel To Be Stacked In A Warehouse. . .

By RICHARD L. WORSNOP

WASHINGTON — "Barbaric and inhumane." "Grossly substandard and . . . an immediate danger to the life and well-being of inmates and staff." These comments are representative of a number of recent court decisions about the nation's overcrowded prisons and jails. A consensus appears to be developing among jurists that severe overcrowding in penal institutions violates the Eighth Amendment ban against "cruel and unusual punishments."

A decision handed down Jan. 13 in Montgomery, Ala., by U.S. District Court Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. was in this vein. Declaring that Alabama prisons are plagued by "massive constitutional infirmities," Johnson ordered Gov. George C. Wallace and other state officials to implement 44 major guidelines within six months or inform the court when they would be put into effect. One of the guidelines decreed that each prisoner must have at least 60 square feet of living space.

Alabama's neighboring states of Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi also are under federal court order to relieve overcrowding and improve prison living conditions in other ways. In 1965, Florida's prison population was less than 7,000; by December, 1975, it had climbed to almost 16,000. Some four-man cells, measuring 12 by 15 feet, house as many as eight or 10 prisoners.

Last May, Judge Charles R. Scott of U.S. District Court in Jacksonville issued an order giving Florida officials one year to reduce the state's prison population to "normal" levels. "A free democratic society cannot cage inmates like animals or stack them like chattels in a warehouse and expect them to emerge as decent, law-abiding, contributing members of the community," he held.

Similar court orders have been directed at city officials with respect to overcrowding in municipal jails. A series of rulings by U.S. District Court Judge Morris E. Lasker of New York led to the closing of the Manhattan House of Detention, popularly known as the Tombs. And on Jan. 6 Lasker ordered the city to end the practice of confining two inmates in one-man cells for more than 30 days at the House of Dentention for Men at Rikers Island.

In Washington, D.C., U.S. District Court Judge William B. Bryant has repeatedly prodded city officials to ease overcrowding at the century-old District of Columbia Jail. Teams of city inspectors found 1,231 housing violations at the jail, as well as law and unsanitary procedures in the handling of food and drugs.

Officials of Harris County, Texas, are under federal court order to end "severe and inhumane overcrowding" in the jail system. In a decision handed down Dec. 23, Judge Carl O. Bue Jr. of U.S. District Court in Houston listed the changes he wanted made and hinted that he would order the closing of the jails if the country failed to comply with his order.

The U.S. Supreme Court also has backed away from the position that a prisoner forfeits his personal rights as well as his liberty. Although a prisoner's rights "may be diminished by the needs and exigencies of the institutional environment, (he) is not wholly stripped of constitutional protections when he is imprisoned for crime," the Court ruled in 1974. "There is no iron curtain drawn between the Constitution and the prisons of this country."

Ironically, overcrowding can work to the benefit of certain prison inmates. Many of them are winning early release to comply with court orders and to make room for offenders who are deemed more dangerous to society.

The Essence Of Diplomacy

It is hoped that the next American ambassador to the United Nations follows the lead of Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan, who has just resigned.

Moynihan, who carried out the policies of the Ford administration at the U.N. over the last seven months, brought refreshing candor, spirit and forthrightness to his job of representing the United States before the world forum.

Many of his critics — including Henry Kissinger, privately — felt Moynihan was impolitic; an ineffectual, undiplomatic blusterer who ruffled feathers when calming of the waters was called for.

Moynihan's penchant for calling world-class political criminals to account, for protesting hypocrisy and his mission of trying to pry apart U.N. voting blocs were embarrassing to the smooth characters in the State Department and elsewhere who thrive on pretension and naively feel that all the world's troubles will go away if only Americans will always be agreeable.

The world doesn't work that way, however, and Moynihan knows it.

Moynihan himself has been accused of taking a hypocritical stance regarding voting blocs in view of the fact that for the first two decades or so of the U.N.'s existence, the United States and its allies and their client states invented and perfected bloc voting in the international arena. That may be, but the question is not whether they did it but whether they were right. And besides, the pendulum has swung, the blocs are voting against us and national self interest demands a counteroffensive. We can't allow the sins of the past, if that is what they were, to burden us now, to prevent us from trying to take effective action in the U.N., just as we can't let the Vietnam experience paralyze our ability to act on our own behalf elsewhere in the world where we have legitimate interests.

Moynihan understood that, too, and he helped to shape and carry out that policy which seeks to unhorse the guilt complexes and strives for effectiveness. Hopefully his contributions will be fully appreciated by the American people.

Moynihan's performance was also suggestive of another truth about diplomacy.

A great danger to peace in the world occurs when nations misunderstand one another — their motives and intentions — or misrepresent themselves. That has always been so. In that regard, the United States gets into trouble in the world sometimes because it disguises blatantly self-serving, aggressive actions in honorable but unfitting terms while other times refuses to back up words with actions. We preach a good game but we don't always practice it. In our opinion, the essence of diplomacy, of getting along with friend or enemy, is honesty. Let them know where you stand.•

Moynihan at the U.N. served a double purpose, then: he let the world know where we stand and in so doing verbally charted a suitable course for the U.S. to follow in world affairs.

Unicam's Reputation Upheld

The Nebraska Legislature's reputation for openness and accessibility was protected Monday when a proposed rules change failed of passage by three votes. Although a majority of senators favored the proposal, 27 votes were received when 30 were needed — thus the effort to keep pesky reporters and cameramen off the chamber floor was doomed.

The proposal was advanced by Sen. Doug Bereuter of Utica, who was concerned about the decorum of the legislative body. It received encouragement from a number of senators, including Wally Barnett of Lincoln, who observed that newsmen often behave like "a bunch of buzzards." Barnett is right, but that is almost beside the point.

Confining reporters and photographers and TV cameramen to the fore of the chamber and under the balconies would not have endangered the free press to a grave degree.

It would have posed some minor deadline problems, perhaps, and would have taken away a quality of freshness and spontaneity in "on-the-scene" reporting by the electronic media and it might have made for some stale question-and-answer sessions. It's always best to ask questions when the subject matter is fresh in the minds of both the reporter and the lawmaker and the best way to accomplish that is to tromp out to the lawmaker's desk.

But most importantly, to bar the media from the floor would have represented a step backwards in the openness trend that has characterized press-Legislature relations for some time. In recent years the senators have opened up their committee meetings to full reporting, allowed the taping of their daily floor sessions for televised rebroadcast and in general have been cooperative with the press.

The decorum problem, as several senators pointed out, is not mainly caused by reporters and photographers. It is more a creature of the senators themselves. Speaker Jules Burbach suggested that if there are disruptive activities on the floor, the presiding officer can clear the area without a rules change. Sen. Frank Lewis noted that senators can always tell reporters to "get lost."

The real decorum problem can be solved, if need be, by greater discipline and attentiveness on the part of the star attractions.

But in that regard, we are especially in agreement with Sen. John Cavanaugh: ". . . this is a chaotic process in which a great many ideas are exchanged among a great many people. I don't think you can make it appear orderly."

There is, after all, something really suspicious about a completely orderly legislative body. It would be as if it were programmed.

Spoils Of A Bitter Crop

China must be punished. The British tired of killing coolies. Instead, they marched with the French up to Peking. They would chastise the emperor by burning his Summer Palace.

That would be enough. Imperial China had violated agreements to permit the English to sell opium to Chinese. The young emperor, as flaccid as a willow, had heard that the British were marching from Tientsin. He fled to Jehol with his 13 wives.

The opium wars had been going on for 10 years. The English won the battles but London was deeply in debt with successive victories. General Hope Grant advised his French counterpart, General de Montaubon, that looting would be forbidden

They marched around the walls of Peking and, in the mists of October 7th, 1860, saw two large brass lions Behind the lions stood a park of such poetic beauty that British and French officers were abashed.

The Summer Palace was more than a building to be burned It was hundreds of acres of lakes, landscaped hills, ornate palaces, some with roofs of gold leaf, halls of mirrors, jewels, gold ingots, the vast treasures of the Manchu emperors

"No plunder!" said Lord Elgin Two companies of French troops were ordered to surround and guard the Summer Palace. The riches were too vast, too incomprehensible, for Queen Victoria's Christian officers to resist.

The French and English lied to each other. They argued that they should select a few "souvenirs" for Victoria and Napoleon III. They found gold and jade scepters. Then they found "souvenirs" for themselves. One found enough gold ingots to break the axle on a Chinese cart.

Another found a matched necklace of gray pearls the size of boys' marbles. The guilt of the generals impelled them to invite colonels and captains to roam the 200 beautiful buildings

These invited common soldiers to help themselves. The infantry fired shots through expensive mirrors and crystal chandeliers. Drunken, muddy soldiers slept on bolts of rare Chinese silk and damask.

Life-size paintings were bayonetted. "What they could not carry away," Jack Beeching wrote in "The Chinese Opium Wars," "they smashed to atoms . . . The disease of acquisitiveness destroyed both armies."

Some soldiers had been on duty during the looting General Hope Grant ordered the fruits of rapacity to be returned to a common pool, so that they could be auctioned off to soldiers who had no opportunity to rifle the imperial palaces

This was the high-water mark of morality It was something the Chinese might watch from a distance and emulate Hope Grant said he wanted nothing for himself, but he accepted a solid gold ewer presented by grateful officers.

The Summer Palace was wrecked beyond repair. Only the big brass lions were intact. Lord Elgin ordered the park burned. It would not only teach the Chinese a lesson; it would also obliterate the terrible things the Christians had inflicted on the heathens.

Sir John Michel and the British First Division marched in a light powdery snow on Oct. 18, 1860, and set the park and its 200 buildings afire. For two days a crayon of black smoke stained the sky over Peking.

☆ ☆ ☆

An army surgeon, overwhelmed at the sight of beauty destroyed, was asked if he had his share of loot. He shook his head no, reached over and snapped a leaf from a bush. He held it up — his share.

As a reward for their labors, the men of the First Division were allowed to plunder the charred ruins They complained that the only items worth salvaging were too heavy and cumbersome to cart away.

Inside the walls of Peking, Prince Kung waited for Lord Elgin to arrive in a sedan chair with a new treaty for China It was a remarkable document in Chinese as well as English because it permitted the British to make opium addicts of Chinese without mentioning opium

Kung signed The soldiers departed Lord Elgin worried that British taxpayers would have to pay for one more war. No one told him that the two brass lions at the Summer Palace would have paid for the conflict. They were solid gold.

Loneliness . . . A Cold Gray Wall . . . Sometimes A Killer . . . For The Elderly . . .

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — Loneliness can be a killer. Especially for older people who have lost the strength and the incentive to reach out and touch the frantic, preoccupied world . . .

In 20,000 nursing homes across the country, studies show, at least 35% of the aged never receive visitors, or letters, or even phone calls.

Why? Because middle-aged friends and relatives are depressed by nursing homes, and the young are often even terrified of them. However fine and functional the facility, a nursing home presents a psychological barrier to many people outside its doors. When an elderly relative is placed in a home, a sense of sadness and guilt almost always overcomes those who placed him there. Since sadness and guilt are painful to the fully functioning American, the tendency is to get busy with the business of trying to forget: Let's get on with our lives, kids, after all mother's in good hands.

Rex Taylor is a man who is out to change that attitude, and to lick loneliness among the aged and the infirm. A big order, but then, Rex is a big man on humanitarianism. He starts national crusades to make people feel better with the same exuberant joy that advertising men start multi-million-dollar campaigns to sell perfume.

The difference is that Taylor operates from love and human family experiences, rather than a corporate base . . .

When his second daughter was born retarded, and had to be institutionalized, Rex initiated "Operation Sunshine," persuading professional artists to paint happy murals on the walls of more than 150 children's hospitals and homes around the country — free.

When his cousin went blind, Rex created a national public service campaign, "The Joy of Seeing," which won the top award of the Public Relations Society of America last year. His cousin's doctors had told him that half of all blindness could have been prevented with regular eye tests, and Taylor simply launched a campaign to teach children and parents — not the old frightening concept that blindness is terrible, but the Taylor-made optimistic concept that seeing is beautiful.

When his wife, Susan, was stricken with multiple sclerosis and doomed to life in a wheelchair, Rex became deeply involved in the morale problem of the handicapped. The result was his famous "Wheelchair Decor" contest in which the crippled and ill were challenged to convert their "chrome cages" into vehicles of beauty and whimsy. Many hundreds of Americans were enlisted and uplifted, and the winners feted at the White House.

And now, this spring, another family tragedy has led Rex to take up the banner for the aged in nursing homes!

"Shortly before Christmas of 1974," says Rex, "I got a simple cassette tape from my Mother, who is 85 and quite senile in a nursing home. It was the most amazing, lovely present. The home has an ingenious, creative 'activity director,' and there was her voice, interviewing my Mother. She got her to describe her birthday party in the home, and tell about the pottery she was making, and, finally, to wish each of us in the family a Merry Christmas.

"We're a sentimental family, as you know, and we were all crying because it was so sweet and lovely. My first reaction was thank God for my Mother, and my second was thank God for the nursing home." His third, and best, reaction was to go out the next day and buy an inexpensive tape recorder and cut a cassette to send back to his Mom. She plays it — and the ones that have followed — on lonely days.

In the 13 months since, Rex has been working on his newest crusade: "Voice-a-Gram — The Sound of Love." The heart of the program, of course, is an exchange of tape-recorded messages between nursing home residents and their families. Members of the family are requested to flip the cassette and record a return message to the resident. Over the months and years, the elderly can collect a priceless tape library of familiar voices, to give them a new and revitalizing Rx for loneliness — a psychological condition that too often kicks off physical diseases.

Funded by the Gene Tunney-Mary Lauder Tunney Foundation, and supported by corporations who will contribute cassettes and recorders to nursing homes across the nation, "Voice-a-Gram" will kick off in May, in time for Mother's Day. Information on the project is being distributed to their members by such agencies as the Administration for the Aging; Department of Health, Education and Welfare, American Association of Retired Persons and American Health Care Association.

"It doesn't cost a penny to be loving, you know," says Rex Taylor with his billion - dollar - lick - the - world's - problems smile. "This is a movement where everyone wins. If you join it, you win; if you back it, you win; even if you just think about it, you could win a little understanding of what it's like to be old and alone . . ."

A Problem Without Borders

WEST BERLIN — Should judges sentence criminal offenders to prison in order to subject or expose them to "rehabilitation" programs — to "cure people to be law-abiding," as a Scandinavian delegate put it here to an international conference on comparative criminal sanctions?

That question evoked lively debate but not much of a concensus among representatives of the United States and most West European nations. The dominant American view was that sending a person to prison to be rehabilitated, to the extent that any nation ever really tried it, had failed as an anti-crime policy and resulted in unfair and sometimes inhumane treatment of offenders.

Those who agreed with this attitude, among the judges, government officials, and academics meeting at the Aspen Institute Berlin, argued that "the purpose and justification of confinement is punishment." Beyond that, they generally agreed, imprisonment could serve the purpose of "incapacitation" — protecting society by taking the criminal out of circulation, at least for a time — and might have some "deterrent" effect on potential offenders.

Nor should there be any embarrassment about the idea of punishment for criminal offenses, others contended, as long as it was not inhumane, irrational or unequally administered among those committing the same crimes.

Sweden, for example, has been moving away from its former belief in the possibilities of rehabilitation, but not toward harsher punishment. Now the Swedes more nearly imprison people for what was described here as "the general prevention" of crime; but at the same time they have been shortening prison terms, improving the physical conditions of confinement, seeking alternative forms of punishment and operating on the assumption that lenient criminal sanctions will prove more effective than long, tough prison sentences.

Americans like Federal District Judge Marvin Frankel of New York argued that the rehabilitation ethic had in practice resulted in a system of indeterminate sentences that often kept the offender in confinement longer than warranted by the gravity of his offense. The trouble is that the authorities responsible for determining when an offender might be "rehabilitated" have had neither the knowledge nor the resources to do the job except arbitrarily and haphazardly. Nor is there any real evidence that prison rehabilitative programs have had any substantial effect in converting offenders to law-abiding citizens.

But French delegates, in particular, argued that "the rehabilitative philosophy has not been given a fair trial" since no society had as yet committed the necessary resources to make it work. If the poor conditions prevalent in most prisons could be improved, in this view, the potential of rehabilitative programs might be greatly improved.

British officials reminded the conference, moreover, that even if rehabilitation was a failure in prisons, such programs still could be useful for offenders not sentenced to prison, and for those coming out of confinement. Officials and sociologists from the Netherlands warned against total abandonment of rehabilitative efforts; such programs, they maintained, could still be useful in certain individual cases.

At least two other issues striking to a non-professional observer surfaced in the discussion here. One was on the question whether any prison policy, rehabilitative, punitive or otherwise, could have much effect on crime rates, since so few people are apprehended, convicted and sent to prison, compared to the enormous number of crimes committed.

A second point of interest was the possibility that some crime rates can be substantially lowered by methods connected neither to the criminal justice system nor to larger questions of social policy. It was pointed out, for example, that in the United States, automobile thefts per 100,000 youths between 15 and 17 years old — who are the most likely perpetrators of this crime — have declined by about 20% since 1970, when almost all other crimes have been on the increase.

Why? Federal legislation forced the installation of steering wheel locks on new automobiles. Similarly, X-ray equipment had almost surely been more responsible for the decline in airplane hijackings than such a "deterrent" as the death penalty for hijackers.

Ironically, overcrowding can work to the benefit of certain prison inmates. Many of them are winning early release to comply with court orders and to make room for offenders who are deemed more dangerous to society.

Farming Wife Fields Queries

"Will we ever have cheap food again? . . . Can we produce more food? . . . Is our food really quality? . . . Why do we need farm exports?"

These were some of the questions Mrs. Roberta Janda, of rural Friend, and two other Young Farmer spokesmen for agriculture faced from big city consumers and news media personnel as they took agriculture's story to three U.S. cities recently.

Mrs. Janda, whose husband Harold farms near Friend, and fellow national spokesmen for agriculture winners, Dan Coons of Bevier, Mo., and Gene Leach of Orlando, Okla., were selected for the project in competition among Young Farmers at the National Young Farmers Educational Institute in mid-December.

The trio met with radio and news wire service editors, syndicated newspaper writers, financial writers, phone-in talk show hosts, consumer groups and political leaders in Washington, D.C., Chicago and Los Angeles.

Mrs. Janda is a home economics teacher at Friend High School and helps her husband farm 600 acres of crops and raise livestock.

While she found consumers and media representatives interested about her life as a farmer, Mrs. Janda pointed out that she, too, buys food and other goods in grocery stores.

"My husband and other farmers are perhaps America's biggest consuming industry for the inputs and services needed in making food and fiber," she added.

Mrs. Janda told her audience "we'll probably never see cheap food again, but food is still by far the American consumers' best value. Farmers, like all businessmen, must have the incentive to make a profit and livelihood for their families."

The Jandas are members of the Crete Young Farmers Chapter.

Women Urged To Learn Self-Care

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

"Professional (medical) mystique has taken the control of our bodies away from us," Nancy Forst told a Women/Speak '76 audience Tuesday.

The student Y-sponsored weekly forum focused on women and health care.

Ms. Forst advocates that women become aware of their own bodies and learn to take care of themselves for routine matters, rather than suffer "degradation and humiliation," not to mention expense, at the hands of male doctors.

She emphasizes a "whole body" approach to health care. Diet, environment and relaxation are part of the total treatment, not just the healing of external symptoms.

"Doctors are so swamped with patients because we don't have the idea that we should be able to take care of ourselves," offered Ms. Forst. "We go to a doctor instead of going to bed and drinking lots of water."

Women helping other women, and caring, can "bring the humanness back to health care," said Ms. Forst.

Centuries ago, ailing people turned toward women as healers, she explained. They raised gardens of herbs which they used as drugs; they practiced preventive medicine based on empirical results.

But during the 14th to 17th centuries a program of suppression saw these women burned as witches for possessing mystical powers of healing.

Today, said Ms. Forst, only 7% of doctors in the U.S. are women. Only three countries (South Vietnam, Madagascar and Spain) have fewer female physicians, she said.

Divorce Changes Opposed

The Lincoln chapter of the National Organization for Women has voted not to support some proposed changes in Nebraska's marriage and family laws and in the no-fault divorce laws, according to chapter president Marty Aspengren.

The changes have been included in LB913, which was introduced into the Legislature by the Judiciary Committee last week.

The Lincoln chapter does not oppose unilateral no-fault divorce, Ms. Aspengren said, but it opposes the lack of economic protection the bill gives older women who have been married along time and who were primarily housewives during their marriages.

Fillmore Water Tables Said Declining Sharply

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Geneva — In the 35 years since irrigation pumping began here, the depletion of Fillmore County groundwater storage amounts to "about half of Lake McConaughy."

That observation by Vincent Dreeszen, director of the University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division, was just one of the stunners Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Fillmore County Groundwater Conservation District. Approximately 75 irrigators present also were reminded that their area is experiencing the sharpest water table decline in the state.

Mel Noffke, manager of the Blue River Association of Groundwater Districts, said the group's member counties are showing the greatest Nebraska decline, and that Fillmore is hit hardest of all. The other four counties are Hamilton, York, Seward and Clay.

Declines Noted

Noffke said water tables in Fillmore have declined an average .7 foot per year over the past 25 years. Figures from other agencies indicated that underwater storage has fallen off close to one million acre feet and that the water table has dropped 20 feet in some parts of the county.

Dayle Williamson, executive secretary of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, expressed alarm that the number of Fillmore irrigation wells — now totaling 1,368 — continue on the upswing. Last year's 109 registrations were the largest since 1965.

One of five panelists addressing themselves to the problem of increased water use, Williamson also noted that more than 5,000 wells were registered throughout the state last year alone. That brings the Nebraska total to 50,442.

46% Irrigated

Williamson said Fillmore County's irrigation acreage, currently 169,757 acres, is "in excess of what was predicted for the entire state back in 1940." Some 46% of the county is now under irrigation.

Nebraska follows only California and Texas in total irrigated acreage, Williamson reminded. This state now has more than five million acres under irrigation, at least four million of them from groundwater sources.

Noting that Nebraska was virtually without irrigation guidelines until 1957, Williamson termed last year's passage of the Groundwater Management Act (LB577) "a very, very significant step." Details of the legislation were outlined by Deon Axthelm, NU agricultural engineer.

Experiment Reviewed

Also reviewed was an allocations experiment by 26 irrigators in the Benedict area. Noffke said it is estimated that even this small project saved York County 1,600 acre feet of water last summer.

Though not on the program, Mayor Norman Behrens of Crete argued in a question-answer session that surface water "is our only salvation." He insisted that the construction of reservoirs is necessary to conserve water now leaving the state.

Other speakers included Gary Eberle, a Benedict farmer; Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook; and Eugene Steele of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Farming Wife Fields Queries

"Will we ever have cheap food again? ... Can we produce more food? ... Is our food really quality? ... Why do we need farm exports?"

These were some of the questions Mrs. Roberta Janda, of rural Friend, and two other Young Farmer spokesmen for agriculture faced from big city consumers and news media personnel as they took agriculture's story to three U.S. cities recently.

Mrs. Janda, whose husband Harold farms near Friend, and fellow national spokesmen for agriculture winners, Dan Coons of Bevier, Mo., and Gene Leach of Orlando, Okla., were selected for the project in competition among Young Farmers at the National Young Farmers Educational Institute in mid-December.

The trio met with radio and news wire service editors, syndicated newspaper writers, financial writers, phone-in talk show hosts, consumer groups and political leaders in Washington, D.C., Chicago and Los Angeles.

Mrs. Janda is a home economics teacher at Friend High School and helps her husband farm 600 acres of crops and raise livestock.

While she found consumers and media representatives interested about her life as a farmer, Mrs. Janda pointed out that she, too, buys food and other goods in grocery stores.

"My husband and other farmers are perhaps America's biggest consuming industry for the inputs and services needed in making food and fiber," she added.

Mrs. Janda told her audience "we'll probably never see cheap food again, but food is still by far the American consumers' best value. Farmers, like all businessmen, must have the incentive to make a profit and livelihood for their families."

The Jandas are members of the Crete Young Farmers Chapter.

Women Urged To Learn Self-Care

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

"Professional (medical) mystique has taken the control of our bodies away from us," Nancy Forst told a Women/Speak '76 audience Tuesday.

The student Y-sponsored weekly forum focused on women and health care.

Ms. Forst advocates that women become aware of their own bodies and learn to take care of themselves for routine matters, rather than suffer "degradation and humiliation," not to mention expense, at the hands of male doctors.

She emphasizes a "whole body" approach to health care. Diet, environment and relaxation are part of the total treatment, not just the healing of external symptoms.

"Doctors are so swamped with patients because we don't have the idea that we should be able to take care of ourselves," offered Ms. Forst. "We go to a doctor instead of going to bed and drinking lots of water."

Women helping other women, and caring, can "bring the humanness back to health care," said Ms. Forst.

Centuries ago, ailing people turned toward women as healers, she explained. They raised gardens of herbs which they used as drugs, they practiced preventive medicine based on empirical results.

But during the 14th to 17th centuries a program of suppression saw these women burned as witches for possessing mystical powers of healing.

Today, said Ms. Forst, only 7% of doctors in the U.S. are women. Only three countries (South Vietnam, Madagascar and Spain) have fewer female physicians, she said.

Divorce Changes Opposed

The Lincoln chapter of the National Organization for Women has voted not to support some proposed changes in Nebraska's marriage and family laws and in the no-fault divorce laws, according to chapter president Marty Aspengren.

The changes have been included in LB913, which was introduced into the Legislature by the Judiciary Committee last week.

The Lincoln chapter does not oppose unilateral no-fault divorce, Ms. Aspengren said, but it opposes the lack of economic protection the bill gives older women who have been married along time and who were primarily housewives during their marriages.

Fillmore Water Tables Said Declining Sharply

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Geneva — In the 35 years since irrigation pumping began here, the depletion of Fillmore County groundwater storage amounts to "about half of Lake McConaughy."

That observation by Vincent Dreeszen, director of the University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division, was just one of the stunners Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Fillmore County Groundwater Conservation District. Approximately 75 irrigators present also were reminded that their area is experiencing the sharpest water table decline in the state.

Mel Noffke, manager of the Blue River Association of Groundwater Districts, said the group's member counties are showing the greatest Nebraska decline, and that Fillmore is hit hardest of all. The other four counties are Hamilton, York, Seward and Clay.

Declines Noted

Noffke said water tables in Fillmore have declined an average .7 foot per year over the past 25 years. Figures from other agencies indicated that underwater storage has fallen off close to one million acre feet and that the water table has dropped 20 feet in some parts of the county.

Dayle Williamson, executive secretary of the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, expressed alarm that the number of Fillmore irrigation wells — now totaling 1,368 — continue on the upswing. Last year's 109 registrations were the largest since 1965.

One of five panelists addressing themselves to the problem of increased water use, Williamson also noted that more than 5,000 wells were registered throughout the state last year alone. That brings the Nebraska total to 50,442.

46% Irrigated

Williamson said Fillmore County's irrigation acreage, currently 169,757 acres, is "in excess of what was predicted for the entire state back in 1940." Some 46% of the county is now under irrigation.

Nebraska follows only California and Texas in total irrigated acreage, Williamson reminded. This state now has more than five million acres under irrigation, at least four million of them from groundwater sources.

Noting that Nebraska was virtually without irrigation guidelines until 1957, Williamson termed last year's passage of the Groundwater Management Act (LB577) "a very, very significant step." Details of the legislation were outlined by Deon Axthelm, NU agricultural engineer.

Experiment Reviewed

Also reviewed was an allocations experiment by 26 irrigators in the Benedict area. Noffke said it is estimated that even this small project saved York County 1,600 acre feet of water last summer.

Though not on the program, Mayor Norman Behrens of Crete argued in a question-answer session that surface water "is our only salvation." He insisted that the construction of reservoirs is necessary to conserve water now leaving the state.

Other speakers included Gary Eberle, a Benedict farmer; Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook; and Eugene Steele of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Omaha Man Charged With Lincoln Murder

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A charge of first degree murder was filed Tuesday in Lancaster County Court against Booker Leon Robinson, 24, of Omaha in the fatal shooting Monday evening of another Omaha man.

Archie Lee Robinson, 26, was shot once in the face with a .22-caliber handgun about 6:15 p.m. in a parking lot behind an apartment building at 1635 F, according to Lincoln police. The two men are not related.

The shooting apparently stemmed from a running argument the two men had been having during the afternoon and early evening, according to Lancaster County Atty. Ron Lahners.

He said the two men had been together for most of that period. At first the argument involved drugs, in connection with money that had been taken from other people, Lahners said.

He refused to be more specific on that portion of the argument on the grounds that it may be a disputed area during the trial.

Later in the day the two argued about Booker's refusal to drive Archie to Omaha and about Booker's refusal to let Archie remove clothing from Booker's car, according to police.

The men separated late in the day and Booker, according to Lahners, drove to the house of a friend at 917 S. 17th. He parked his blue Cadillac in the parking lot behind the apartment building.

Archie apparently followed Booker to the home, Lahners said. The two argued in the home, and again in the alley behind the apartment building, he said.

After the shooting, according to Inspector Roger LaPage, Booker apparently went to the home of a friend, Ricky Barnes, near 25th and T.

Booker L. Robinson

Late Monday night officers found a .22-caliber revolver, believed to be the weapon used, in an abandoned garage about a half-block from Barnes' home, according to LaPage.

Booker was arrested several hours later as he and Barnes were traveling to Omaha on Interstate 80 in an unmarked taxi used for out-of-town travel, according to police.

Lincoln police said they notified other law enforcement agencies to look for the taxi after learning, in the course of checking different types of public transportation, that two men, one answering Booker's description, had hired a taxicab to take them to Omaha.

Sarpy County sheriff's deputies spotted the car at a truck stop near Omaha, where taxi driver Tim Kirby, 23, had stopped so Barnes could use the restroom.

All three were in the gas station when two deputies came in with shotguns. "Freeze, spreadeagle or you're gone," one of the deputies shouted, according to Kirby.

The deputies handcuffed both Barnes and Booker. Neither resisted. Barnes was later released after police determined he was not involved in the shooting.

Kirby said Booker displayed no nervousness and said nothing of being in trouble as the fare on the trip mounted to $43.

"I had no idea who Robinson was until the gun was flying in my face," Kirby said of the arrest. Booker was returned to Lincoln late Monday night. A preliminary hearing will be set Feb. 10. No bond was set.

Seminar Replacing Feeders' Tour

Beatrice — Instead of a tour, the Southeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association will have a seminar on livestock raising and feeding here Feb. 17. Speakers will be instructors, veterinarians and economists from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Guest speaker at the 7 p.m. banquet at the 4-H Building will be Dominick Costello, Lincoln Star farm editor.

Farm Will Aid Foreign Missions

Polk — The Nebraska Methodist Conference has inherited a 160-acre Clay County farm from Nell Aker, 88, for support of foreign missions. Miss Aker was a retired teacher and was active in mission work. She willed money gifts to the Polk Methodist and Harvard Methodist churches and to foreign mission work.

Windshields Target Of Vandals

Scottsbluff (AP) — Scottsbluff police said 17 cases of vandalism to autos were reported in the city Sunday and Monday, with total damage estimated at $1,729. Most of the damage was to windshields. Officers said seven cases of car vandalism were reported the previous weekend. Police said there have been no arrests.

Monroe Accepts K.C. Post

Omaha (AP) — James Monroe of Omaha has been named executive director of the Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, effective March 1. Monroe has held a similar post with the Greater Omaha Chamber of Commerce Economic Council since 1971.

Feeders Auxiliary Organized

Schuyler — At an organizational meeting here of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association Auxiliary, Mrs. Clarence Hartmann of Hooper was elected to serve as the first president. Chosen vice president was Mrs. John Forbes of Palmer with Mrs. Leon Bruns of Pender, second vice president, and Mrs. Tom Gustafson of Wakefield, secretary-treasurer.

PCA Loans To Farmers Rise

Omaha — Production Credit Associations in the Omaha Farm Credit District continued to experience increases in loan volume in 1975, and at the year's end had more than $1.152 billion in loans outstanding. The average loan size was $58,700, up $7,400 from last year, officials said. The 40 PCAs in Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota and Wyoming have loans to nearly 22,000 farmers and ranchers, for short and intermediate term production and operating expenses.

Lighting Dispute Proves Fatal

A man wounded more than a month ago in a shooting after an argument over a bright light has died in Immanuel Hospital in Omaha.

Virgil Ellingson, 28, was shot in the neck late in the night on Dec. 20. He was listed in serious condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital for several weeks before being transferred to Omaha.

Charged with shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim in connection with the incident was John E. Bradshaw, 25, of 4427 Baldwin. The shooting took place at Bradshaw's residence.

According to police reports, Ellingson was sitting near a bright light which was shining in Bradshaw's eyes and which Ellingson refused to move.

Bradshaw allegedly picked up a rifle during the dispute. When Ellingson challenged him to use it, Bradshaw allegedly fired.

In view of Ellingson's death, Lancaster County Atty. Ron Lahners said the current charge against Bradshaw will be reviewed for the possibility of filing a more serious charge.

PSC Offers Jobs To Two Engineers

After being without a staff engineer since August, the Nebraska Public Service Commission has agreed to hire two engineers.

In a 3-1 vote, the commission offered jobs paying $12,000 a year to Danny Walker of Lincoln, a December engineering graduate, and Maurice Hand of Cedar Falls, Ia., an employe of Westinghouse.

Everett Green, commission executive secretary, said Walker has accepted the post and Hand is expected to give his answer shortly.

Commissioners James Munnelly, Eric Rasmussen and Jack Romans voted to hire the pair over the objections of Commission Chairman Duane Gay.

Rasmussen has said the absence of an engineer on the staff has impaired the commission's effectiveness, particularly when questions about the adequacy of phone service were involved.

The vacancy was created when Gerald Sasek resigned following a controversy which included his firing and subsequent rehiring.

Omaha Man Charged With Lincoln Murder

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A charge of first degree murder was filed Tuesday in Lancaster County Court against Booker Leon Robinson, 24, of Omaha in the fatal shooting Monday evening of another Omaha man

Archie Lee Robinson, 26 was shot once in the face with a 22-caliber handgun about 6 15 p m in a parking lot behind an apartment building at 1635 F according to Lincoln police The two men are not related

The shooting apparently stemmed from a running argument the two men had been having during the afternoon and early evening, according to Lancaster County Atty Ron Lahners

He said the two men had been together for most of that period At first the argument involved drugs, in connection with money that had been taken from other people, Lahners said

He refused to be more specific on that portion of the argument on the grounds that it may be a disputed area during the trial

Later in the day the two argued about Booker's refusal to drive Archie to Omaha and about Booker's refusal to let Archie remove clothing from Booker's car, according to police

The men separated late in the day and Booker, according to Lahners, drove to the house of a friend at 917 S 17th He parked his blue Cadillac in the parking lot behind the apartment building

Archie apparently followed Booker to the home, Lahners said The two argued in the home, and again in the alley behind the apartment building, he said

After the shooting, according to Inspector Roger LaPage, Booker apparently went to the home of a friend, Ricky Barnes, near 25th and T

Late Monday night officers found a 22-caliber revolver, believed to be the weapon used,

Booker L. Robinson

in an abandoned garage about a half block from Barnes' home, according to LaPage

Booker was arrested several hours later as he and Barnes were traveling to Omaha on Interstate 80 in an unmarked taxi used for out-of-town travel, according to police

Lincoln police said they notified other law enforcement agencies to look for the taxi after learning, in the course of checking different types of public transportation, that two men, one answering Booker's description, had hired a taxicab to take them to Omaha

Sarpy County sheriff's deputies spotted the car at a truck stop near Omaha, where taxi driver Tim Kirby, 23, had stopped so Barnes could use the restroom

All three were in the gas station when two deputies came in with shotguns "Freeze, spreadeagle or you're gone," one of the deputies shouted, according to Kirby

The deputies handcuffed both Barnes and Booker. Neither resisted Barnes was later released after police determined he was not involved in the shooting

Kirby said Booker displayed no nervousness and said nothing of being in trouble as the fare on the trip mounted to $43

"I had no idea who Robinson was until the gun was flying in my face," Kirby said of the arrest Booker was returned to Lincoln late Monday night A preliminary hearing will be set Feb 10 No bond was set.

Lighting Dispute Proves Fatal

A man wounded more than a month ago in a shooting after an argument over a bright light has died in Immanuel Hospital in Omaha

Virgil Ellingson, 28, was shot in the neck late in the night on Dec 20 He was listed in serious condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital for several weeks before being transferred to Omaha

Charged with shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim in connection with the incident was John E Bradshaw, 25, of 4427 Baldwin The shooting took place at Bradshaw s residence

According to police reports, Ellingson was sitting near a bright light which was shining in Bradshaw's eyes and which Ellingson refused to move

Bradshaw allegedly picked up a rifle during the dispute When Ellingson challenged him to use it, Bradshaw allegedly fired

In view of Ellingson's death, Lancaster County Atty Ron Lahners said the current charge against Bradshaw will be reviewed for the possibility of filing a more serious charge

PSC Offers Jobs To Two Engineers

After being without a staff engineer since August, the Nebraska Public Service Commission has agreed to hire two engineers

In a 3-1 vote, the commission offered jobs paying $12,000 a year to Danny Walker of Lincoln a December engineering graduate and Maurice Hand of Cedar Falls, Ia , an employe of Westinghouse

Everett Green, commission executive secretary, said Walker has accepted the post and Hand is expected to give his answer shortly

Commissioners James Munnelly, Eric Rasmussen and Jack Romans voted to hire the pair over the objections of Commission Chairman Duane Gay

Rasmussen has said the absence of an engineer on the staff has impaired the commission s effectiveness, particularly when questions about the adequacy of phone service were involved

The vacancy was created when Gerald Sasek resigned following a controversy which included his firing and subsequent rehiring

English Tests To Be Studied

Concern over the decline in college students' writing ability has led the College Entrance Examination Board to considering reinstating some form of essay exam as part of its admissions testing program for high school juniors and seniors.

In regional meetings next month, the Chronicle of Higher Education reports, the board will discuss reviving the written essay test and possible forms of use.

The board, in a background paper, cited widespread concern among educators and the general public with what appears to be declines in student skills in a broad range of subjects.

The board's English discipline committee of high school and college teachers strongly recommended including an essay question on the English Composition Test.

Three other options, according to the background paper, include adding to the board's achievement exam series a one-hour test requiring two or three essay; adopting a one-hour upgraded writing sample to forward to a student's school and to colleges; developing an entirely new program of "writing assessment," in which students would regularly write essays as part of their high school English courses.

The latter essays would be graded and reviewed by the classroom teacher and by a corps of specially trained teachers.

The College Board dropped from its composition test a 20-minute essay question in 1971, because of grading costs, arguing too that multiple-choice tests can measure writing ability.

Concern has been heightened by recent sharp declines in verbal and math scores by students taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test, and by National Assessment of Educational Progress reports that basic reading and writing skills and others have dropped during the 1970s.

The American College Testing Program reports declines in all but one of the four areas in which it offers tests. Scores are down in English, social sciences and math, and up slightly in natural sciences.

Central City Fire Fighter Unit Lauded

Central City (UPI) — The Central City Chamber of Commerce departed from tradition Monday night and gave its annual special recognition award to the community's 34-man volunteer fire department.

Normally the chamber gives awards to the area's outstanding farmer, educator and citizen.

Chamber First Vice President Gary Webster said the volunteer fire department, formed in 1905, "has become one of the best volunteer units in the state."

The chamber honored two Central City residents, L. L. Haddix and Maxine Jensen, for their efforts to beautify the downtown area.

Riverton Teen Found Dead In Wrecked Auto

Bloomington — The State Patrol said the body of Douglas R. Schmidt, 19, of rural Riverton, was found Monday in his wrecked car west of Bloomington on Highway 136.

Officers believe the fatal one-car crash occurred either late Saturday or early Sunday.

The Patrol said Schmidt's eastbound car left the roadway and overturned into a deep ravine.

His death brought Nebraska's 1976 highway fatality toll to 32, compared with 21 on the same date a year ago.

Feedlot Wastes Control Is Topic

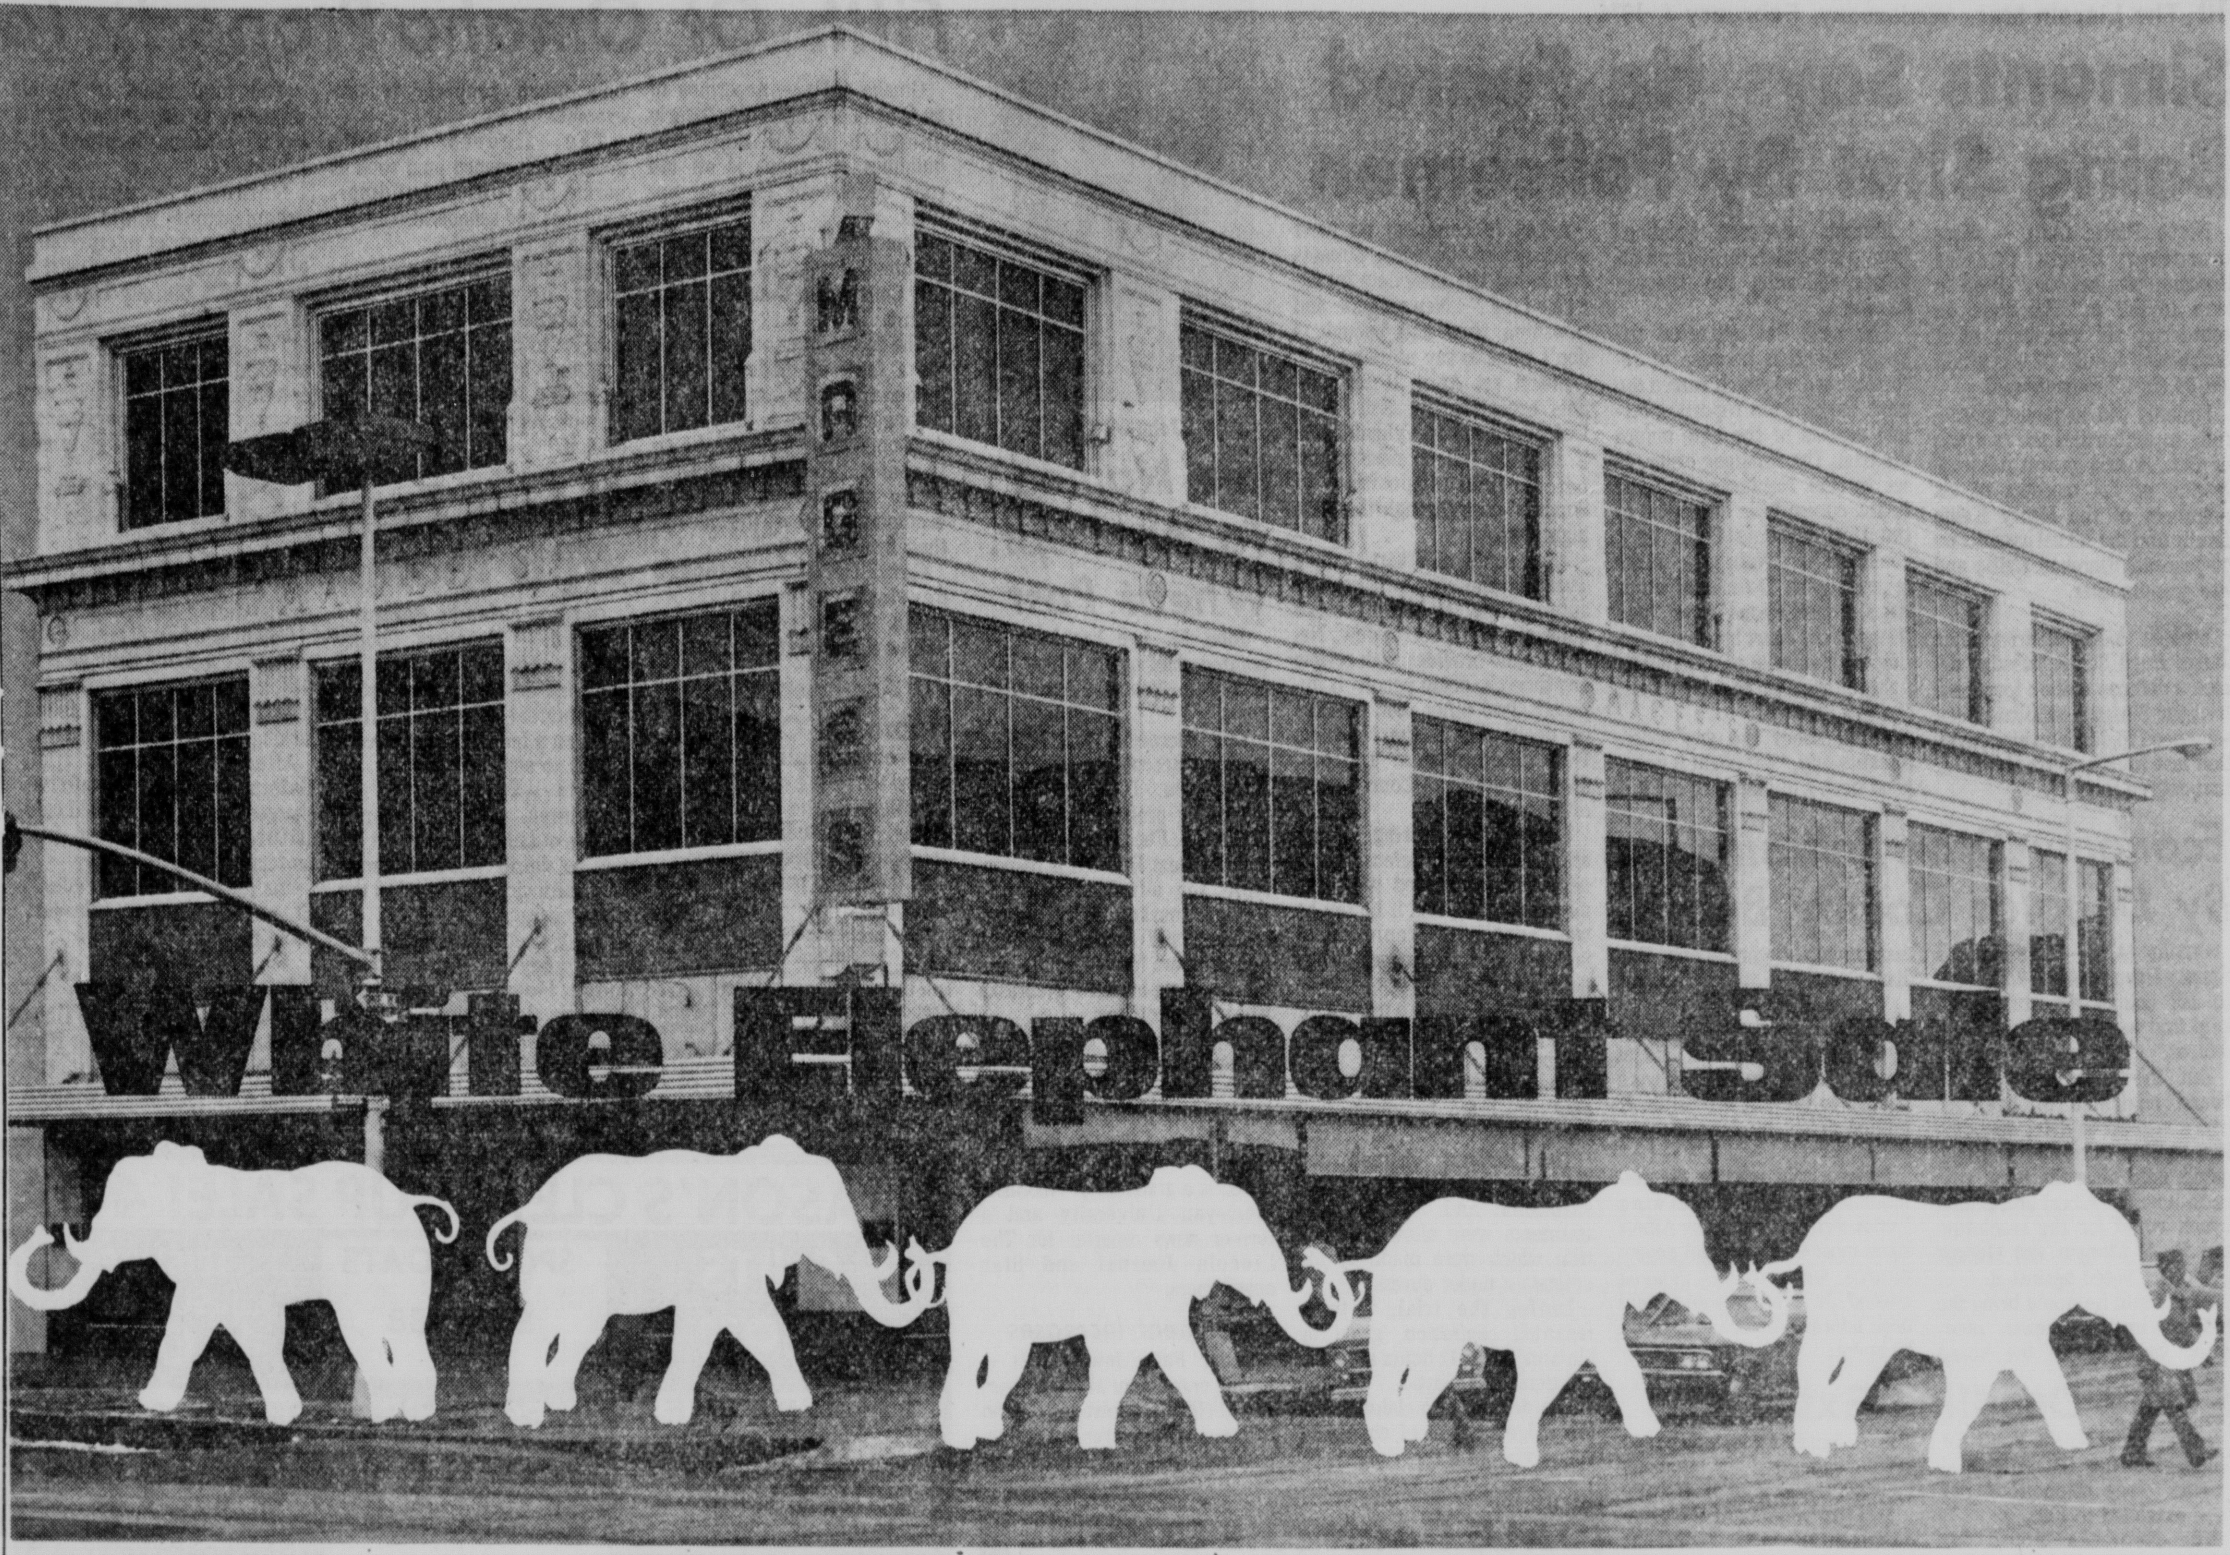
Raymond — Regulations for control of feedlot wastes will be discussed by Lanny Icenogle, head of the State Department of Environmental Control's agricultural pollution section, at Central High School at 8 p.m. tonight.

E.A. Olson, University of Nebraska professor of agricultural engineering, will present designs and plans for handling wastes to comply with federal regulations.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Resignation Accepted

Harrisburg (AP) — The Banner County school board has accepted the resignation of J.F. Anderson as school superintendent, a post he had held for 39 years.



Downtown Only. Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

We want to make it perfectly clear. This is not an official Bicentennial Celebration. It's not even an unofficial Bicentennial Celebration. It's not even a celebration. It's more of a bash. A bargain bash where you can buy stuff you really don't need for very little money. Often copied but never duplicated, ours is the original White Elephant Sale. It's been a Magee's tradition as long as any of us can remember. Well, enough of that. Now down to the nitty-gritty. We do have some special W.E. rules: no mail orders; no phone orders; alterations cost extra; no returns or exchanges because if you buy it, you're stuck with it. So head on down to Lincoln Center (or Downtown or Uptown or, specifically, 12th and O). Be here when the merchandising mayhem starts Thursday at 10 a.m. Caveat emptor.

DAMES' DUDS

Of course you can live a happy, well-adjusted, productive life without anything new to wear, but why not feed your ego (as you starve your own good fashion taste) with one of these W.E.'s. Bob D. insists these are super fashion buys. And who are we to argue since he's lots bigger than we are. He's got:

Suburban Coats.
39^{90} Orig. $70 to $80
Ties. 2 for $5
Orig. 6.50 to 8.50
Mystery Tables.
At equally mysterious prices.

To prove how big we are about the whole thing, we'll give you Blue Stamps on every W.E. purchase. Park and Shop stamps, too.

COMMUNITY SAVINGS STAMP

The reason we mention this at all is that we had a hole in the ad. We had a choice of picturing either a Blue Stamp or our six-weeks-old baby picture. We figure you'd rather see the Blue Stamp. Sorry, Mother.

Simants Says He Feared Being Shot By Policemen

North Platte (AP) — Mass murderer Erwin Charles Simants says he was "afraid to turn myself in" the night he murdered six members of a Sutherland family. "I was afraid I'd be shot," Simants said.

Simants did surrender peacefully to authorities the morning of Oct. 19 and gave a full confession of his murders of six members of the Henry Kellie family and the sexual assaults on 10-year-old Florence Kellie and her grandmother.

Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart Tuesday denied a defense motion for a new trial for Simants, who has been sentenced to death on his conviction last month of six counts of first-degree murder.

Simants answered questions from a newsman through an attorney following the Tuesday hearing.

The case has attracted national attention because of restrictive orders which barred the news media from reporting certain aspects of the case before the trial. The final gag order, as set by the Nebraska Supreme Court, currently is on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court by a coalition of Nebraska news organizations. Dozens of other news organizations have filed friend of the court briefs supporting the Nebraska coalition in its fight for the right to a free press.

Asked about the gag order, Simants said, "I thought it was a good deal. I'm glad they did it."

Asked to comment on news coverage of the case, Simants concluded the interview by declaring, "Newspapers and newsmen have had enough. I don't want to say no more."

Stuart set April 21 for Simants' execution, but Asst. Public Defender Leonard Vyhnalek said it may be fall or next winter before final disposition of Simants' case through the state high court.

As a result of Stuart's ruling Tuesday, the case will now go automatically to the Nebraska Supreme Court for review. Nebraska law provides such review any time the death penalty is imposed. Two other men also are on death row at the Nebraska Penal Complex in Lincoln, awaiting Supreme Court review of their cases.

During the hearing, Stuart asked Simants if defense attorneys had cooperated with him during the trial and if he felt he was adequately represented. Simants told the judge, "They done all right."

Stuart also denied a motion for bail, pending appeal of the conviction.

The amended motion for a new trial listed 14 points of alleged error.

The defense claimed the death penalty is unconstitutional and claimed that statments were allowed in the trial which were made by the defendant under duress.

During the trial, a tape-recorded confession, given by Simants about 12 hours after the murders, was played.

The defense also claimed that the judge's denial of change of venue was an error.

Economy Drive Initiated By Douglas County Board

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County Board voted 4-2 Tuesday to ask county departments to help find ways of cutting expenditures.

But the board split 2-2 on board chairman Michael Albert's request to delay spending $1.6 million in capital improvements until after the fiscal year ends June 30. Albert and Daniel Lynch voted for the resolution and P. J. Morgan and George Buglewicz voted against it.

Albert said he would bring the capital improvements resolution back before the board next month. Commissioner William Green was absent Tuesday.

Both actions had been sought by Albert in a mid-year budget report. Albert said they were needed to prevent a possible $7 million deficit by June 30.

Morgan said passing the resolution to trim expenditures was a "smokescreen" set up by Albert since most of the capital expenditures were to be delayed beyond June anyway or would need approval before they could be spent.

Essay Deadline Extended

The deadline for the Youth for Understanding Bicentennial Courier essay competition has been extended to Feb. 16.

The Nebraska Youth for Understanding Committee, which is headed by Gov. and Mrs. J. James Exon, will screen essays submitted by students between the ages of 15 and 18.

The two winners of the essay competition will represent Nebraska abroad during the summer of 1976. They will live with host families in one of 23 countries.

The Bicentennial Courier project has been chosen the international youth project for the bicentennial by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in Washington.

Interested students should contact their principal's office.

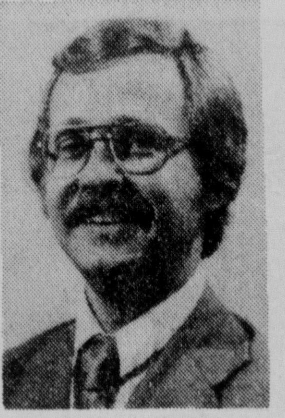
Hanover, N.H. (UPI) — "Kiss Me, Kate," the popular 1948 Cole Porter musical based on "The Taming of the Shrew," has been selected for the undergraduate Dartmouth Players' Winter Carnival production, with 10 performances Feb. 4-14.



John M. Lee

Lee Named To Ag Dept. Wheat Post

John M. Lee has been appointed chief of the Wheat Division of the Nebraska Agriculture Dept.

Lee succeeds Ken Hobbie, who has accepted a position in Washington, D.C., as foreign marketing program coordinator of the U.S. Feed Grains Council.

The Wheat Division is responsible for administering the foreign market development, research and domestic promotion program funded by the one-fourth-cent-a-bushel Nebraska wheat checkoff tax.

As an account executive of Bailey Lewis & Associates, Lee has had responsibility for information and public relations of the Wheat Division for four years.

Lee is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University and a former news reporter for The Lincoln Journal and Star newspapers.

Fifth Of Omaha Property Tax-Exempt

Omaha (AP) — According to an Omaha city hall study, nearly one-fifth of all land and buildings in Omaha is off tax rolls because of legal exemptions.

Copies of the report were distributed Tuesday to the Omaha City Council and Douglas County Board.

The exemption, the study says, "is a form of hidden subsidy, hidden from the taxpayer."

Richard Brown, economic development manager of the city, said, "People should be aware of how the increased exemptions increase the taxes on their own property."

Gary Carlson, economic development coordinator, added, "I think people in general will be flabbergasted to find out how much property is tax-exempt."

The figures include government-owned land such as parks and office buildings. Churches and schools also are included in the total.

But officials say the percentage of other exempt organizations nonetheless appears to be increasing.

A study by Brown's office has estimated the value of tax-exempt report at nearly $566 million.

The total value of taxable property, as determined by the county assessor, is nearly $2.3 billion.

"Many charitable organizations would not be exempt if a strict interpretation of the Constitution was used by the court," the city hall study says.

The study concludes that exemptions in Nebraska are extremely valuable "and very expensive to the taxpayer since, in 1971, 51.2% of all state and local taxes were from the property tax."

State law says property owned and used exclusively for religious, charitable or education purposes is exempt from taxes.

The study makes no recommendations as such. Instead it includes a section on "what could be done."

70 Applicants Pass Nebraska CPA Test

Seventy applicants have passed the state exam to become Certified Public Accountants (CPAs), State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson announced Tuesday.

Of those who passed 17 live in Lincoln.

Sheriff To Be Charged With Marijuana Count

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wahoo — Saunders County Sheriff Joe Divis will be arraigned at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Saunders County District Court on a felony charge of conspiracy to sell marijuana.

Divis was acquitted in November of misdemeanor charges of failure to carry out his duty as sheriff which stemmed from the incidents alleged in the felony charge.

"We expect trial to be set yet in February by District Court Judge Howard Kanouff," Saunders County Attny. Curtis Bromm said Tuesday.

However, Divis's attorney, J. William Gallup, said he will introduce a motion to dismiss the charge during the arraignment.

Gallup said he will request dismissal because the basic facts in the case were argued during the misdemeanor trial and found lacking by the jury.

After the November trial, Gallup said any pursuit of charges against Divis would constitute "persecution not prosecution" by Bromm.

"As far as persecution goes," Bromm said Tuesday, "I'm just doing my job."

Farmers Home Administration OKs 4 Projects

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said the Farmers Home Administration will make grants and loans totaling more than $1.2 million to four separate projects in her western Nebraska congressional district.

The FmHA will loan $520,000 to the Chadron Community Hospital Corp. for an addition.

A loan of $66,000 and a $23,000 grant will be made to a rural water district in Dawes County.

Beaver City will receive $330,000 for apartments for the elderly and Hayes Center will receive a $165,000 loan and a $67,200 grant for a new sewer system.

Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

With all the problems the Lincoln Humane Society is having and the question of who should be responsible for animal control in Lincoln, I'm wondering how Omaha handles animal control.

—Pet Owner, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Omaha's animal control arrangement is similar to that found in Lincoln. Charlene Nordstrom, office manager of the Omaha Humane Society, said the society is under contract with the city to provide both animal pickup services and kennel or pound facilities. Outside the city limits, the Douglas County sheriff's office and the Bellevue and Ralston city police departments are in charge of animal control.

I was picked up by the Lincoln police recently for speeding. I decided to admit my guilt and pay the fine at the County-City Building rather than go to court. I was surprised that I still had to pay $8 court costs in addition to the fine. Why?

—J.L.S., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: "Court costs" are really administrative fees to pay for the operation of the total court, not actual in-the-courtroom costs, explains Ken Wade, clerk of the municipal court. He said that those who decided to exercise their right to appear in court would be penalized if those who paid their fines without trial weren't assessed this fee.

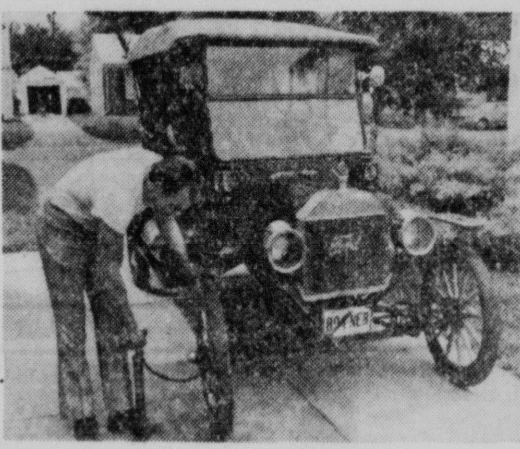
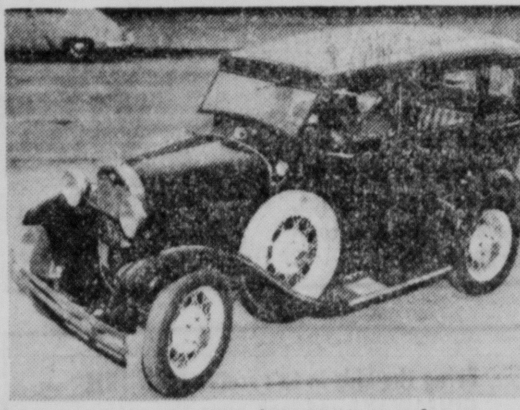
I've looked and looked but I can't find out what the "A" and "T" stand for in Ford's famous old cars, the Model A and Model T. I don't think it's just an alphabetical listing, since the Model T came before the Model A.

—Phil Feline, Lincoln



MODEL T . . . followed 8 experimental cars.



MODEL A . . . was beginning of new series.

ACTION LINE: A local antique Ford enthusiast offers this explanation: Henry Ford began building prototypes for his mass production cars as early as 1903. Through 1908, Ford produced eight experimental car models, which he alphabetically dubbed Model(s) A, B, C, F, K, N and R. The models named with the letters not listed apparently never made it off the drawing board. In 1908, Ford built the Model T, which became America's first mass production automobile. More than 15,000,000 were sold 1908-1927. Ford decided in 1927 that his car needed some radical changes to keep up with its competition, so he began an entirely new series of cars and started naming them again at the beginning of the alphabet with the 1928 Model A. It was actually the second Model A. Ford manufactured a Model B in 1932 and then abandoned the alphabetical naming of his cars.

The people in this neighborhood get headaches from it and sore noses and throats. The health department has been out here checking, but nothing has been done about the problem.

—Mrs. James Evans, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Gary Walsh, supervisor of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept's. air pollution control division, said air quality tests have been performed in your neighborhood several times and no odors or pollution that constitute a nuisance have been found. Snyder Industries, 4620 Fremont, was checked as recently as last week, Walsh said, and no significant air pollution was found. He said testing in the area will continue on a periodic basis, including some tests during the evening hours.

ACTION TIP: More and more Nebraskans are purchasing snowmobiles, minibikes and four-wheel-drive jeeps and trucks for off-road recreation fun. A new federal government pamphlet offers some tips on safe use of these vehicles, including: Read all instructions carefully before use and get some experience on smooth ground before trying rough, remote areas. Stick to established trails that are likely to be clear. Have a tool box, including a shovel, emergency repair kit and first-aid equipment. Dress appropriately. The booklet also includes information on use of off-road vehicles on federal lands, such as in national parks. With all the problems the Lincoln Humane Society is having and the question of who should be responsible for animal control in Lincoln, I'm wondering how Omaha handles animal control.

—Pet Owner, Lincoln

ACTION LINE· Omaha's animal control arrangement is similar to that found in Lincoln. Charlene Nordstrom, office manager of the Omaha Humane Society, said the society is under contract with the city to provide both animal pickup services and kennel or pound facilities Outside the city limits, the Douglas County sheriff's office and the Bellevue and Ralston city police departments are in charge of animal control

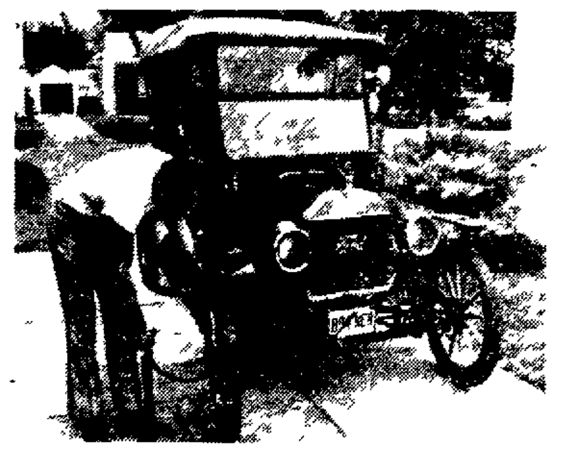
I was picked up by the Lincoln police recently for speeding. I decided to admit my guilt and pay the fine at the County-City Building rather than go to court. I was surprised that I still had to pay $8 court costs in addition to the fine. Why?

—J L S , Lincoln

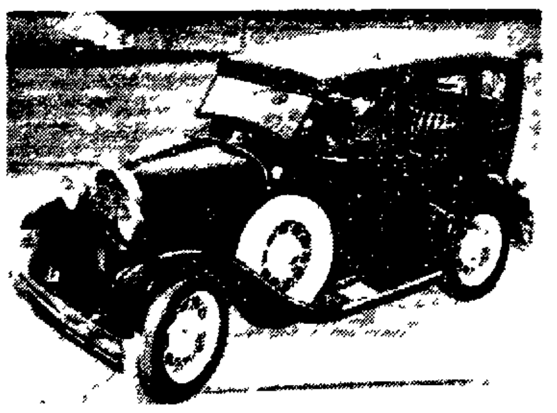
ACTION LINE: "Court costs" are really administrative fees to pay for the operation of the total court, not actual in-the-courtroom costs, explains Ken Wade, clerk of the municipal court He said that those who decided to exercise their right to appear in court would be penalized if those who paid their fines without trial weren't assessed this fee

I've looked and looked but I can't find out what the "A" and "T" stand for in Ford's famous old cars, the Model A and Model T. I don't think it's just an alphabetical listing, since the Model T came before the Model A.

—Phil Feline, Lincoln



MODEL T . . . followed 8 experimental cars.



MODEL A . . . was beginning of new series.

ACTION LINE. A local antique Ford enthusiast offers this explanation Henry Ford began building prototypes for his mass production cars as early as 1903 Through 1908, Ford produced eight experimental car models, which he alphabetically dubbed Model(s) A, B C, F, K, N and R The models named with the letters not listed apparently never made it off the drawing board In 1908 Ford built the Model T, which became America's first mass production automobile More than 15,000,000 were sold 1908-1927. Ford decided in 1927 that his car needed some radical changes to keep up with its competition, so he began an entirely new series of cars and started naming them again at the beginning of the alphabet with the 1928 Model A It was actually the second Model A Ford manufactured a Model B in 1932 and then abandoned the alphabetical naming of his cars

I live on North 44th St. near Snyder Industries. During the evening, they bake the large plastic tanks they manufacture there and the smell is terrible. The people in this neighborhood get headaches from it and sore noses and throats. The health department has been out here checking, but nothing has been done about the problem.

—Mrs James Evans, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Gary Walsh, supervisor of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept's air pollution control division, said air quality tests have been performed in your neighborhood several times and no odors or pollution that constitute a nuisance have been found. Snyder Industries, 4620 Fremont, was checked as recently as last week, Walsh said, and no significant air pollution was found He said testing in the area will continue on a periodic basis, including some tests during the evening hours.

I would like to know whether there is a place that repairs dolls or a doll hospital in Lincoln.

—Sharon Marks, Lincoln

ACTION LINE. Mrs Margaret Stickney, 6024 Leighton, operates a doll hospital "as a hobby " She said she often has more business than she can handle, but would be glad to try to help you with your problem

LEA Seeks 'Trimmed' Package

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Education Association revealed Tuesday a 1976-77 pay and fringe benefit package seeking a 13.83% total increase over current-year spending, to $21,278,005.

In presenting proposed negotiations items to the Lincoln Board of Education, LEA Executive Director Robert F. Peterson said the $2,585,135 increase requested was "trimmed down to the bare bones" first.

The proffered contract items — including detailed working conditions — were rewritten nine times, Peterson said, and include wishes of more than 1,000 teachers who responded to a survey of the 1,554-member association.

Flanked by a seven-member LEA negotiations team, Peterson acknowledged that if the school board were to grant no changes in the current contract, the teacher budget would increase by 2.5% or $455,000. Faculty automatically move up the salary schedule, granted pay raises reflecting more experience or post-graduate academic work or both.

11.23% More

Thus, Peterson said, the LEA is proposing a board commitment of 11.23% more dollars. Robert Den Hartog, associate superintendent for business, estimated the total increase sought, 13.83%, would require an additional 5 mills to generate, based on current valuations. However, property values will increase, offsetting levy needs somewhat.

Pay for a beginning teacher with a bachelors degree and no experience, under the LEA proposal, would increase from the current $8,415 annually to $9,100.

Peterson noted the settlements of a 10.5% overall increase in pay and fringe dollars for the current school year, and a 10.32% boost the previous year.

Yet each year, Peterson said, the ultimate cost to the school district was less than the agreed-upon percentage. He explained that filling vacancies with less experienced staff members saved money — the difference that would've been paid the veteran teachers who were replaced.

And, Peterson predicted, the same undercutting will occur again in 1976-77. The LEA package thus proposes that on Jan. 1, should the actual pay boost be less than that negotiated, teachers get that sum, divided equally.

Salaries Top $20 Million

The LEA would increase overall teacher salaries by 7.73% or $1.96 million, to $20,138,673. Dollars for fringe benefits sought would increase by $425,786. Miscellaneous proposals and two new pay categories for longevity would add $295,000, representing 1.38% of the increase.

LEA President John Rogers, East High music teacher, said the requests represent a "modest proposal" for openers.

Highlights of the LEA package:

—A more broadly defined, expanded grievance procedure.

—Twelve equal paychecks with an option for nine larger ones, an employment condition sought since at least 1941.

—Replacement or repair cost paid to teachers for damage to their personal property, particularly cars; and employing guards at schools where vandalism occurs.

—Allowing unused sick leave during maternity leave, treating it as a temporary disability (although that issue is still before the courts).

—Increasing number of days allowed for family death and emergency leaves, and extending leave benefits to summer school staff.

Among pay items:

—Adjustments on the salary ladder would be made twice a year instead of once in the fall, to reflect earned graduate credit or degrees.

—Allowing 30 hours (now 20) of school district staff development credit to apply to pay schedule advances.

—Allowing early retirement for teachers aged 60 and 61, with $400 for each year of service at those earlier ages. The plan was adopted for those aged 62-65 in the current contract, at $200 in the formula regardless of retirement age.

—Increases in pay for extra required teaching and optional duties, and increased monthly fringe benefits payments to reflect health insurance rate increases. The latter was labeled an LEA "high priority."

The salary schedule would add a bachelors-plus-72-hours-graduate-study category, which Rogers said would aid teachers for whom a masters is inapplicable as an end degree. It also shifts emphasis from university study to staff development for classroom application, he said.

Changing School Hours Draws Resistance From School Board

Although at least one elementary school has requested permission to vary student instruction hours, Supt. John Prasch indicated Tuesday he'll oppose such flexibility because of parent inconvenience and the bandwagon effect by other school buildings.

In a Lincoln Board of Education work session informally examining a wide variety of topics, Prasch said board policy requires 5¼ hours daily instruction. However, starting times may vary from 8 to 9 a.m., and closing from 2:30 p.m. on.

Teachers want a shorter day to allow more staff planning time, then increased student time the next day, thus keeping total instruction time the same, he said.

"In the past, I've resisted that," but he noted that "this has the support of many staff members."

Early dismissals — such as 1:30 p.m. — Prasch explained, "run the risk of being a burden for some families" and would create havoc in bus schedules. He acknowledged flexibility could provide some instructional benefits.

Board President Louis Roper expressed concerns about traffic problems for drivers who aren't expecting to see elementary students out of school early. And Jo Ann Maxey cited merchants' concerns of more pupils going into stores after early dismissals to "mess around."

Prasch's cabinet will review the varied-time proposal for a later recommendation to the board.

Regarding "Man: A Course of Study," a social studies course which has drawn public criticism, Prasch said Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, will indicate staff plans at the board meeting Feb. 10.

Any school that will continue to offer MACOS next year, Prasch elaborated, must hold parent briefings in the spring and offer alternate instruction. No board action on MACOS is scheduled Tuesday.

Since prinicpalships will become vacant at Lincoln High and Eastridge Elementary, Prasch proposed that the board form an advisory group of parents and staff to set criteria for all future administrative appointments. Interviewing and recommendations would be made by a three-member, separate panel.

Prasch reported that new windows recently installed as part of Lincoln High remodeling have allowed a "significant saving," at least 10% in November and December, in natural gas bills. The savings should be greater when the building is completed and operating normally.

The Lincoln Public Schools will seek second-year funding from the State Crime Commission for Whittier Junior High's positive peer influence project, Prasch reported. New proposals are being prepared to continue the successful "Artists in the Schools" program.

LEA Seeks 'Trimmed' Package

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Education Association revealed Tuesday a 1976-77 pay and fringe benefit package seeking a 13.83% total increase over current-year spending, to $21,278,005.

In presenting proposed negotiations items to the Lincoln Board of Education, LEA Executive Director Robert F. Peterson said the $2,585,135 increase requested was trimmed down to the bare bones first.

The proffered contract items — including detailed working conditions — were rewritten nine times, Peterson said, and include wishes of more than 1,000 teachers who responded to a survey of the 1,554-member association.

ABP Attorneys Given Green Light To File Appeals

Omaha (AP) — Attorneys for American Beef Packers, Inc. (ABP), once the nation's second largest slaughterer of cattle, say they have been given the go-ahead to appeal the firm's recent conviction on 32 federal counts of mail and wire fraud.

The verdicts, by U.S. Judge Robert V. Denney of Omaha, were returned Jan. 21, and Denney ordered the company to pay a fine of $100 on each count and to pay half the cost of the prosecution. Frank R. West, ABP's founder, former president and board chairman, was also found guilty, but on only 24 counts of mail and wire fraud. He was ordered to pay the other half of the prosecution costs and a maximum fine of $1,000 on each conviction.

Judge Denney also sentenced West, 56, to two-year jail terms on each of the convictions, the terms to run concurrently, but then he suspended the execution of the jail terms and placed West on two years probation.

According to Asst. U.S. Atty. Michael Schleich, the cost of prosecuting the case, which included a three-week, non-jury trial last fall, totaled $10,258.62.

West attorneys have said they will definitely appeal, but Lyle Strom, an Omaha attorney who defended ABP and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Beefland International, Inc., of Council Bluffs, said an appeal on the part of the company was being studied.

ABP and Beefland filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcies Jan. 7, 1975, and ABP remains financially distressed despite the fact that its plan to pay back creditors has been approved by a federal bankruptcy judge. The cost of an appeal was a factor in making the decision, Strom said Tuesday, adding that ABP officials have now given him the go-ahead to pursue the appeal.

Strom also filed a motion Tuesday asking Denney for a new trial and reinstating his earlier motions for dismissal of all charges filed against the company on the grounds that the government failed to prove alleged criminal activities included in the 105-count indictment returned last August against ABP, Beefland, West and West's top aide, Robert E. Lee.

The indictment charged West and Lee with conspiracy to defraud Midwestern livestock raisers, ABP strockholders and other ABP creditors of more than $20 million in money and goods, and with mail fraud. The companies faced the mail and wire fraud charges only. All charges against Lee and Beefland were dismissed, along with the majority of charges against West and ABP. Judge Denney said government attorneys did not produce enough evidence for him to even consider those charges.

West's attorney, Arthur O'Leary, also of Omaha, filed his motion asking for a new trial late last week. In his motion, O'Leary said that among other things, the original indictment was "so vaguely and broadly drawn that it was impossible for the defendant to prepare his defense."

Schleich said the government will oppose the motions for a new trial.

It is not known whether Denney will hold oral hearings on the motions, or whether he will make his ruling from the defense briefs alone, but observers expect him to hold a hearing.

Omaha Radiologist Thinks City Can Support 2 CAT Scanners

In terms of patient use, Lincoln can support two whole body CAT (computerized axial tomography) scanners, Richard A. Bunting told members of the Lancaster County Health Planning Council (LCHPC) Tuesday night.

However, "I would hate to see everybody get the same generation scanner," he continued.

Bunting, who is chairman of the department of radiology at Bishop Clarksen Memorial Hospital in Omaha, said "second generation" CAT scanners are currently on the market.

Due to the rapid progress being made in the refinement of the scanners, however, Bunting anticipates a "third generation" and more sophisticated model will be developed within a year.

Two Lincoln hospitals — Bryan and Lincoln General — have made application to the State Health Department to obtain the scanners, which are described as the most innovative diagnostic tool since the x-ray.

The Health Department must rule on the applications due to the high cost of the scanners ($200,000 to $700,000 each).

Bunting, who has been working with a CAT head scanner at Bishop Clarksen since July, was liberal in his praise of the devices.

According to Bunting, the scanners produce images of the body that are much clearer and more detailed than conventional x-rays.

This may eliminate some exploratory surgery, he said. And because the process is "non-invasive" (does not require the use of dyes), it can be offered on an out-patient basis.

Both of these factors tend to cut costs for the patient, Bunting said, even though the cost of a scan is presently around $200.

Bishop Clarksen is doing about 260 to 300 head scans per month; and the scanner is in use 16 hours a day, Bunting said.

Because "it will be out-dated in two years," the Bishop Clarkson scanner is being leased, not purchased, by the hospital.

Although Bunting said he thinks two whole body scanners would be appropriate for Lincoln, he said it would be best if just one hospital acquired the current model.

Another hospital could get the next generation scanner, and the intitutions could "keep leap-frogging each other with new equipment."

Group Aim Is To Find Other Energy Sources

Approximately 94% of the energy being used in the United States is irreplacable and non-renewable.

That word of concern came from the Rev. Lincoln B. Justice of Martell, organizing secretary of the Midwest Energy Alternatives, Inc., during a public information and education meeting in Lincoln Tuesday night.

Justice told the gruop the most urgent need is for alternative sources of energy to replace a fast dwindling supply of natural gas. He said some scientists estimate that, at the present rate of usage, oil and gas could be completely depleted within 20 years. Some factories in Nebraska will be out of natural gas by 1977, he added.

The group is a non-profit organization designed "to help citizens locate information and resources to make use of some of the alternative systems now available," Justice explained. Among these alternatives are solar and wind energy and energy from agricultural and sewage products. Designs for energy conserving transportation and buildings are also available, he added.

Justice said the group is "made up of concerned citizens, producers and consumers, who are doing something now to change our wasteful energy systems into designs that can permit us to live in harmony with nature for the next 50 or 50,000 years."

Child Plays With Lighter; House Burns

A youngster playing with a cigarette lighter was apparently responsible for a fire which gutted a house and left three persons homeless Tuesday morning.

District Fire Chief Mel Keller said six-year-old Mark Henry was playing with his mother's cigarette lighter in the bedroom of the family home at 36th and Cleveland when the bed in the room caught on fire. Flames gutted the bedroom and other areas of the house received heavy smoke damage, Keller added.

Mark's mother, Mrs. Bonnie Henry, was not home at the time of the blaze. She and Mark and a daughter are presently living with her sister until new housing can be found, according to friends.

A special offering to help the family will be collected Sunday morning at Trinity Lutheran Church, 3650 Vine St., according to church spokesman Eldon Henning. Persons who don't want to donate cash may give gifts of food, clothing or furniture, Henning added.

The house, on property set aside for the proposed northeast radial, is owned by the City of Lincoln. No dollar loss was immediately available, officials said.

Maytag Co. Had Sales, Earnings Increases In '75

Newton, Iowa (UPI) — The Maytag Co. had an 18.7% increase in earnings and a modest sales increase, according to preliminary 1975 financial results.

The company said in a statement that net income for the year totaled $25,935,384, or $1.94 a share, compared to $21,854,867, or $1.63 a share in 1974. Sales during the past year totaled $237,578,325, an increase of 3.6% over 1974 sales of $229,324,965.

Improvements in both areas resulted from a business recovery experienced during the second half of the year, said Maytag President D. J. Krumm.

Maytag Co. Had Sales, Earnings Increases In '75

Newton, Iowa (UPI) — The Maytag Co. had an 18.7% increase in earnings and a modest sales increase, according to preliminary 1975 financial results.

The company said in a statement that net income for the year totaled $25,975,304, or $1.94 a share, compared to $21,854,867, or $1.63 a share in 1974. Sales during the past year totaled $237,578,325, an increase of 3.6% over 1974 sales of $229,324,965

Improvements in both areas resulted from a business recovery experienced during the second half of the year, said Maytag President D. J. Krumm.

Old Town To Die

Old Town, Iowa (UPI) — Residents of this northwestern Iowa community voted 14-1 to let the town of 27 die.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco —

"A whistling girl and a crowing hen,
"Always come to no good end."

A bunch of brainy fellows (they operate electronic brains) went on strike in Stafford, England. And guess why.

"We want the right to whistle at work."

It seems the foreman stopped some chap who was letting out little chirps as he punched information into the computer.

Immediately all 50 employes adjourned to the nearby pub. "The Rose and Crown." ("Cor, stone the crows!") They sent back word that the foreman should change his tune. (" 'url the blighter out!")

Matter adjusted. Everyone said the strike had come off well. "Slick as a whistle," you might say.

☆ ☆ ☆

A chick name of Trudi won a year of free beauty treatments and a new wardrobe as the best office worker of the year. All this in Zurich, Switzerland. Wisely, the Swiss complimented women but never let them have the vote.

(I think they did recently in some cantons anyway. However, they may come to their senses before it's too late.)

Said Trudi: "I have learned five languages. Yet I have not found one in which silence is not more eloquent than speech."

"Wunderbarr" said the reporters who knew a story when it blossomed.

☆ ☆ ☆

"Why am I popular with bosses?" asked Trudi. And she answered herself: "Well, as Publius Syrius said: 'I have often regretted my speech but never my silence.'

"Or," said Trudi, "Euripedes put it very well: 'Silence is an answer to a wise man.' "

"Jawohl, Trudi," said the reporters. "You said a mouthful there."

Trudi, happily married, recommended silence around the home.

"It is then that I recall the words of the American playwright, S. N. Behrman: 'Oh, for a woman who will not talk while making love.' "

The reporters rushed back to their offices to look up how to spell Euripedes. And who was Publius Syrius?

☆ ☆ ☆

It is very bad luck to whistle on a ship, in a newspaper office or in a theater dressing room.

However, it is all right to whistle at a pretty girl. You just might luck out.

All of my children can whistle. At six years the youngest was trying to whistle but could only pucker up and blow air.

I said to him: "Don't worry, son, you'll learn. Besides in your age brackett, who is there to whistle at?"

☆ ☆ ☆

In Zurich — home of Trudi, the not-so-silent — a wind from the south blows over the city. It is called "the foehn."

When this wind blows, accident rates rise. Cars run into each other. Tempers are high and more divorce suits are filed.

"The only good thing about the foehn," said the Zurich reporter, "is that it is extremely dry. This changes the atmosphere so that we get sharp and colorful pictures.

"Every postcard of Zurich was taken during the foehn."

The photographer took the picture. Went home and Trudi threw the dishes at him. Silently.

'El Capitan' To Tour

Houston (UPI) — Texas Opera Theater, Houson Grand Opera's three-year-old touring group, is touring Texas for three months from Jan. 30, with John Philip Sousa's 1896 operetta "El Capitan." The musical was Sousa's first successful stage work and the idea was suggested to him by famed comic actor Dewolfe Hopper, who created the title role of a Peruvian rebel leader who would be king.

Ore-Ida's new frozen vegetables.
35¢ says they're as good as our potatoes.
Broccoli. Beans. Corn. Peas. Spinach. Cauliflower. Mixed Vegetables.
Ten in all. A whole new line of frozen vegetables that's every bit as good as our frozen potatoes.
Because they're made with all the know-how that has made our frozen potatoes America's favorite brand.
The vegetables are raised with tender loving care. Picked at just the right moment. Then quick frozen to seal in all the freshness and flavor.
Try our new frozen vegetables.

Eleven-Year-Old Cannot Swallow Even Tiniest Pill

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 11 years old and cannot swallow even the tiniest pill. My mom gives me vitamins, only I just about choke on them. Do you think you could answer me and help?—J.B.

You are a young reader with an old problem.

You don't mention having trouble swallowing other things — various foods and candy, for example. So I don't think there is anything seriously wrong with you. Some grownups have the same problem with pills, and they just have to learn to overcome it.

For now, you can ask your mother if the vitamins she is giving you are available in liquid form. Some are. Others are available in chewable form.

You are probably nervous about the vitamin tablets because to you they seem like just another medicine pill. This nervousness can cause your throat to react and reject the pill.

You should try to overcome the swallowing problem because the time may come when you'll need medicine that's available only in tablet form. A glass of water, swallowed with the pill placed at the back of the tongue, is the best way to take such tablets. Take a drink first, then a drink with the pill. Drink slowly, continuously.

Vitamins are best taken with meals, anyway, so this should be of some help. Chew some food, then pop in the tablet and go right on chewing.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read that some people are born with a lack of a substance in the blood, and that this makes them more likely than others to get emphysema.

Emphysema is my problem, and it became evident at around age 40. I have never smoked. Can this missing substance be replaced in the blood? Will my children inherit the deficiency? Will my children be likely to have emphysema?—Mrs. S.L.

The missing substance is "alpha-1-antitrypsin." Its apparent relationship to emphysema was revealed in studies made in the 1960s, but little is really known about it except that persons with the deficiency are more prone to developing the condition.

It is an inherited trait. If both parents have it, the chances of the children inheriting it are greater than if the deficiency occurs in only one parent. The substance cannot be replaced.

This doesn't mean that all persons with emphysema lack this substance, which is an enzyme. In fact, only a rather small percentage of persons with emphysema are found to lack it.

You do not say whether tests have revealed your lack of the enzyme. Since the most common cause of emphysema (smoking) is not a factor with you, the possibility of the enzmy deficiency exists. If you have the trait, your children should be tested so that they can be warned to avoid the environmental risks.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is pernicious anemia a form of leukemia? I am very anxious to know.—D.T.

Pernicious anemia is a specific blood disorder involving the production of red blood cells. Leukemia is a disorder of the white blood cells. There is some degree of anemia associated with leukemia, but this is not the pernicious type.

In pernicious anemia there is a reduced ability of the body to absorb vitamin B-12 from the gastrointestinal tract.

In leukemia there is a defeat in the body's white cell blood-forming mechanism.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The Nebraska Medical Association reports that few parents are prepared to have a handicapped child. Professionals have observed that the most painful period in the lives of parents of handicapped children is the period between the moment they learn that their child has a handicap and the time when they learn what they can do about it.

The Nebraska Medical Association suggests parents avoid the 'guilt' trap and work actively to help their child and themselves in an atmosphere of love and understanding.

First, parents should become informed about the child and his problems. Select a specialist to evaluate the problem calling on others as necessary for a thorough medical and psychological evaluation.

Parents should develop a positive action program that helps their child develop and improve with the medical attention required, as well as a program of home training that will help the child achieve his maximum potential.

Old Town To Die

Old Town, Iowa (UPI) — Residents of this northwestern Iowa community voted 14-1 to let the town of 27 die

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco —

"A whistling girl and a crowing hen,
"Always come to no good end "

A bunch of brainy fellows (they operate electronic brains) went on strike in Stafford, England And guess why

"We want the right to whistle at work "

It seems the foreman stopped some chap who was letting out little chirps as he punched information into the computer

Immediately all 50 employes adjourned to the nearby pub, "The Rose and Crown " ("Cor, stone the crows') They sent back word that the foreman should change his tune (" url the blighter out')

Matter adjusted Everyone said the strike had come off well ' Slick as a whistle, ' you might say

A chick name of Trudi won a year of free beauty treatments and a new wardrobe as the best office worker of the year All this in Zurich, Switzerland Wisely, the Swiss complimented women but never let them have the vote

(I think they did recently in some cantons anyway However, they may come to their senses before it s too late)

Said Trudi, "I have learned five languages Yet I have not found one in which silence is not more eloquent than speech "

☆ ☆ ☆

' Why am I popular with bosses?" asked Trudi And she answered herself "Well, as Publius Syrus said· 'I have often regretted my speech but never my silence '

"Or," said Trudi, "Euripedes put it very well 'Silence is an answer to a wise man ' "

"Jawohl Trudi, ' said the reporters "You said a mouthful there

Trudi, happily married, recommended silence around the home

"It is then that I recall the words of the American playwright, S N Behrman 'Oh, for a woman who will not talk while making love ' "

The reporters rushed back to their offices to look up how to spell Euripedes And who was Publius Syrus?

☆ ☆ ☆

It is very bad luck to whistle on a ship, in a newspaper office or in a theater dressing room

However, it is all right to whistle at a pretty girl You just might luck out

All of my children can whistle At six years the youngest was trying to whistle but could only pucker up and blow air

I said to him· "Don't worry, son, you'll learn Besides in your age brackett, who is there to whistle at?"

☆ ☆ ☆

In Zurich — home of Trudi, the not-so-silent — a wind from the south blows over the city. It is called "the foehn "

When this wind blows, accident rates rise Cars run into each other Tempers are high and more divorce suits are filed

"The only good thing about the foehn," said the Zurich reporter, "is that it is extremely dry This changes the atmosphere so that we get sharp and colorful pictures

"Every postcard of Zurich was taken during the foehn "

The photographer took the picture Went home and Trudi threw the dishes at him Silently

Prolonged Strike In Canada Expected To Affect U.S. Papers

©The New York Times

By MARTIN ARNOLD

New York — The prolonged strike of Canadian woodpulp and paper workers — plus the anticipated increase in the price of newsprint — is expected to have considerable effect on many American newspapers by the spring or summer.

Last week members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union ratified a three-year contract to end a three-month long strike at four Quebec paper mills. The agreement covered only 3,500 of some 25,000 striking workers.

Two days after that contract was ratified, the International Paper Co., the largest U.S. paper producer, announced that it was increasing the price of newsprint by $25 per ton, effective March 1. Canadian companies are expected to make similar price increases when the strikes are settled.

Some American papers have begun to reduce the size of their news hole — the space that is devoted to news — in an effort to conserve paper. Many others, like The New York Times, have merely cautioned editors to be careful in their allocation of space.

Still, if the strike continues into the spring, large newspapers could be reduced to publishing 16- to 20-page papers, sources in the industry said.

The strike, which started last July, closed plants turning out more than 60% of the 22 million tons of wod pulp and paper that Canada produces annually. The recent settlements have reduced the idle plant capacity to about 57%.

David Carrouthers, director of industrial relations for the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said, "So far we're not getting any panic from our American customers, but that could change in a few months."

The American Newspaper Publishers Association says that as of Nov. 30, its 525 members averaged enough newsprint on hand to last 38 days and had five additional days of newsprint in transit. But they averaged 48 days in hand at the end of last October and a 68-day supply at the end of August.

Theodore Serrill, executive vice president of the National Newspaper Association, an organization of weekly newspapers, said, "I expect there will be problems before spring unless there is a quick settlement."

Canada supplies about 65% of the newsprint used in the United States. The strike now involves about 21,900 members of the Canadian Paper Workers Union at 46 mills, 26 of which produce newsprint. The workers have asked for wage increases averaging about 40%, but appear to be willing to settle for about 24%. However, the Canadian government's Anti-Inflation Board has said it will allow only about a 14% wage increase.

At the current rate of use, most American newspapers believe that they will be faced with severe shortages by March.

The New York Times is using about 5,300 tons of newsprint a week — an average that is expected to continue for some time. The paper will not face a newsprint crisis until the end of February, a spokesman said.

At present, The Times started each week with a week's supply on hand and another week's supply in transit. In February, The Times is expecting newsprint from Scandinavia, which is not one of its normal sources of supply.

The price of newsprint in the eastern United States is about $260 a ton. Black market newsprint is being offered for about $340 a ton, and so far has had few takers, although most newspapers are willing to pay some increased cost during the present strike.

The paper mills in the United States that manufacture newsprint are operating at near capacity now, and have been for some time, so the shortage that would occur from a more prolonged strike in Canada could not be helped by companies in the United States.

Nurse's Aide Indicted In Fire That Killed 15

Chicago (UPI) — A nurse's aide who police said had a "bad history of pyromania" was indicted on murder and arson charges Tuesday in the fire that killed 15 elderly and infirm residents of the Wincrest Nursing and Rest Home.

A Cook County grand jury returned a 47-count indictment against Denise Watson, 21. Authorities said she broke down early Tuesday and admitted she had dropped a match into a patient's clothes locker last Friday before smoke billowed through the third floor and trapped the victims in a chapel.

To Your Good Health:

Eleven-Year-Old Cannot Swallow Even Tiniest Pill

By George C Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 11 years old and cannot swallow even the tiniest pill. My mom gives me vitamins, only I just about choke on them. Do you think you could answer me and help?—J.B.

You are a young reader with an old problem

You don't mention having trouble swallowing other things — various foods and candy, for example So I don't think there is anything seriously wrong with you Some grownups have the same problem with pills, and they just have to learn to overcome it

For now, you can ask your mother if the vitamins she is giving you are available in liquid form Some are Others are available in chewable form

You are probably nervous about the vitamin tablets because to you they seem like just another medicine pill This nervousness can cause your throat to react and reject the pill

You should try to overcome the swallowing problem because the time may come when you'll need medicine that's available only in tablet form A glass of water, swallowed with the pill placed at the back of the tongue, is the best way to take such tablets Take a drink first, then a drink with the pill Drink slowly, continuously

Vitamins are best taken with meals, anyway, so this should be of some help Chew some food, then pop in the tablet and go right on chewing

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read that some people are born with a lack of a substance in the blood, and that this makes them more likely than others to get emphysema.

Emphysema is my problem, and it became evident at around age 40. I have never smoked. Can this missing substance be replaced in the blood? Will my children inherit the deficiency? Will my children be likely to have emphysema?—Mrs. S.L.

The missing substance is "alpha-1-antitrypsin" Its apparent relationship to emphysema was revealed in studies made in the 1960s, but little is really known about it except that persons with the deficiency are more prone to developing the condition

It is an inherited trait If both parents have it, the chances of the children inheriting it are greater than if the deficiency occurs in only one parent The substance cannot be replaced

This doesn't mean that all persons with emphysema lack this substance which is an enzyme In fact, only a rather small percentage of persons with emphysema are found to lack it

You do not say whether tests have revealed your lack of the enzyme Since the most common cause of emphysema (smoking) is not a factor with you, the possibility of the enzmy deficiency exists If you have the trait, your children should be tested so that they can be warned to avoid the environmental risks

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is pernicious anemia a form of leukemia? I am very anxious to know —D T.

Pernicious anemia is a specific blood disorder involving the production of red blood cells Leukemia is a disorder of the white blood cells There is some degree of anemia associated with leukemia but this is not the pernicious type

In pernicious anemia there is a reduced ability of the body to absorb vitamin B 12 from the gastrointestinal tract

In leukemia there is a defeat in the body's white cell blood-forming mechanism

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The Nebraska Medical Association reports that few parents are prepared to have a handicapped child Professionals have observed that the most painful period in the lives of parents of handicapped children is the period between the moment they learn that their child has a handicap and the time when they learn what they can do about it

The Nebraska Medical Association suggests parents avoid the 'guilt trap and work actively to help their child and themselves in an atmosphere of love and understanding

First, parents should become informed about the child and his problems Select a specialist to evaluate the problem calling on others as necessary for a thorough medical and psychological evaluation

Parents should develop a positive action program that helps their child develop and improve with the medical attention required as well as a program of home training that will help the child achieve his maximum potential

Domestic Quarrels

Police Only Stopgap For Professionals

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

It was a bad day at the office. Joe stopped off on the way home from the office for a "couple of beers."

By the time he got home, supper was cold but his wife's temper was hot. A domestic disturance ensued and neighbors in an adjoining apartment called Lincoln Police to tell them that "the neighbor is beating his wife."

In some respects, a rather routine call, but one which is labeled, by some officers, as "the worst possible kind."

Lincoln police aren't called to every man-and-wife squabble, only the ones which cause an audible, or, sometimes, visual disturbance.

The person calling in the complaint may be a neighbor, a child or other relative of the family, even the husband or wife, especially if the other half has left the scene.

Cause for Concern

What the police do, or, more importantly perhaps, what the police can do, is a cause of great concern for police officials.

"Admittedly, we're not licensed counselors," one official said. "Our standard operating procedure is to send two officers, if at all possible, so that one can talk to each of the parties, alone, in separate rooms, then get the two together to discuss the situation," he explained.

For the police, that's usually the end of the matter. Especially if no criminal act has been done. Repeat calls to the same address will usually bring a word of warning from the officers that legal action will be taken for such things as disturbing the peace, but, generally, they try to suggest that the couple talk to a clergyman or seek some professional help.

In Trained Hands

From there, most agree, the matter is out of the hands of the police and into the hands of, hopefully, a trained counselor.

The American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors (AAMFC) boasts 2,000 members nationwide . . . members of the psychiatric and sociological discipline, as well as some other fields of behavioral sciences.

Most agree that many a marriage can be saved from destruction and divorce if help is sought. Reasons one, when you have a toothache, you go to a dentist. The same should hold true for an emotional pain: help should be found.

One nationally known psychiatrist, Dr. E. James Liebermann, was interviewed recently on the problem of marital discord and divorce in light of ever-increasing divorce rates.

Liebermann told "Business Week" that three things cause most domestic disturbances: sex, money and in-laws. In noting that the sex problem ranks first, he cited a major problem of communication.

37 Minutes A Week

The average couple, after one year of marriage, spends only 37 minutes a week in exclusive conversation with one another. He called that figure low, but "believable."

Another psychiatrist has lowered that figure to 27 minutes a week, but both agree that communication is important. Most emotional communication is negative, they add.

Why the increased divorce rate? Liebermann said that today's increasing divorce rates are the result of a long-term trend that "coincides with the development of women's rights." More women in the work force means that more women are economically in a position to live alone if necessary.

That fact, coupled with reasonable divorce laws in most states, has caused the increase.

The trend isn't expected to continue, however, Liebermann added, since most people are older before their first marriage. Couples often have more in common — a college degree, career interests, etc. — before they get married, he said.

Signs Of Trouble

How can people tell when they're headed for trouble in their marriage? If a husband and wife don't have anything to say to each other, are not happy being around each other, or are keeping busy so as to be distracted from one another, that spells trouble, Liebermann said.

Who should they talk to? Liebermann, and most other psychiatrists, advise against talking to a friend or a relative. Those confidants most often wind up being used as a weapon against the other half. The same with children who often have to make a difficult decision as to which parent to side with.

A clergyman is a safe bet to talk to, all agree, since he most generally can steer the couple toward a qualified counselor. As a last resort, someone, preferably a counselor, can be found by looking in a phone book, then checking his credentials, Liebermann offered.

Most communities have "help-line" phone numbers which go under a variety of names and can be utilized. The county health department, mental health facilities and medical societies can also be sought out as useful reference centers.

It May Cost Plenty

Liebermann cautions that it's a costly process. Some professional counselors get $40 an hour, and may advise one-a-week sessions for a year. It all depends on the couple and how quickly the individuals respond to help, both in the initial search and in the healing process.

One member of the AAMFC said, "We're not here to save the marriage at the expense of the partners."

A marriage "being held together for the children," shouldn't be. Instead, the parents should look at the reality of it all and face the loneliness thing.

A solution? It's probably hinted at in what the police try to do . . . get the couple to talk. Just 10 minutes a day given to productive criticism about the marriage can work wonders, Liebermann said.

Laugh Together

The Rev. Leland Foster Wood, Ph.D., a former secretary of the Commission on Marriage and the Home of the National Council of Churches, offered this about the domestic quarrel which should have been a reasonable discussion in the first place:

"If both partners will take the position of objective observers, asking what is happening and why, the situation will sometimes look ridiculous and both can laugh together."

New York Doctors John Levy and Ruth Monroe, in an article entitled "The Happy Family," observed:

"Nine-tenths of human misery is mere nonsense."

dear abby

He Refuses To Let Wife Work

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 16 years. He's a wonderful husband and devoted father to our two children, ages 12 and 14, but he's terribly stubborn about one thing — and that is my problem:

Three months ago he was laid off from his job (machinist at an aircraft plant), so he took a job at a local department store as a salesman. His take-home pay is about one-fourth of what it was previously.

When I suggested that I also get a job to help make ends meet, he became furious. "No wife of mine is going to work," he screamed.

Abby, I know he means well, but every time I try to discuss it with him, he becomes upset. Please help.

GLENDA IN GLENDALE

DEAR GLENDA: If I can help by saying that it's no reflection on a man's masculinity if his wife works — I've helped.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter has been sexually active for a number of years with quite a few partners.

Now that she is in her middle 20s she is marrying one of those partners who probably knows about the rest.

We are happy for her and approve of the marriage, but she wants a white gown and veil!

We are shocked at her dishonesty and bad taste. So many of our friends and relatives are aware of her lifestyle.

We are not trying to punish her by refusing to go along with her wishes, but we're reluctant to make a mockery of what a white wedding stands for.

There must be other parents with this problem and other young people in this situation. Will you and your readers help?

DISTRESSED PARENT

DEAR PARENT: In planning a wedding, the wishes of the bride and groom should take priority. The bride who wears a white gown and veil is not necessarily declaring herself to be a virgin.

DEAR ABBY: For years I wore my wedding ring first with my diamond on the outside. I had been told by the jeweler that that was the "correct" way to wear them, but I didn't know that it was to keep the wedding ring "closest to the heart" until I read it in your column.

But let me tell you why I don't wear them that way anymore: About five years ago, I was eating peanuts at a ball game, and my diamond ring slipped off my finger into the peanut sack. Luckily, I found it among the peanut shells, and when I put it back on my finger, I put it on first and put on my wedding band on the outside. Sign me . . .

BETTER SAFE THAN RIGHT

DEAR BETTER: Speaking from a materialistic point of view, you're protecting the more "valuable" ring. But symbolically speaking, it's easier to replace a diamond than a wedding band.

Prolonged Strike In Canada Expected To Affect U.S. Papers

©The New York Times

By MARTIN ARNOLD

New York — The prolonged strike of Canadian woodpulp and paper workers — plus the anticipated increase in the price of newsprint — is expected to have considerable effect on many American newspapers by the spring or summer

Last week members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union ratified a three-year contract to end a three-month long strike at four Quebec paper mills The agreement covered only 3,500 of some 25,000 striking workers

Two days after that contract was ratified, the International Paper Co the largest U S paper producer, announced that it was increasing the price of newsprint by $25 per ton, effective March 1 Canadian companies are expected to make similar price increases when the strikes are settled

Some American papers have begun to reduce the size of their news hole — the space that is devoted to news — in an effort to conserve paper Many others, like The New York Times, have merely cautioned editors to be careful in their allocation of space

Still, if the strike continues into the spring, large newspapers could be reduced to publishing 16 to 20-page papers, sources in the industry said

The strike, which started last July, closed plants turning out more than 60% of the 22 million tons of wod pulp and paper that Canada produces annually The recent settlements have reduced the idle plant capacity to about 57%

David Carrouthers, director of industrial relations for the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said, "So far we're not getting any panic from our American customers, but that could change in a few months "

The American Newspaper Publishers Association says that as of Nov 30, its 525 members averaged enough newsprint on hand to last 38 days and had five additional days of newsprint in transit But they averaged 48 days in hand at the end of last October and a 68-day supply at the end of August

Theodore Serrill, executive vice president of the National Newspaper Association, an organization of weekly newspapers, said, "I expect there will be problems before spring unless there is a quick settlement "

Canada supplies about 65% of the newsprint used in the United States The strike now involves about 21,900 members of the Canadian Paper Workers Union at 46 mills, 26 of which produce newsprint The workers have asked for wage increases averaging about 40%, but appear to be willing to settle for about 24% However, the Canadian government's Anti-Inflation Board has said it will allow only about a 14% wage increase

At the current rate of use, most American newspapers believe that they will be faced with severe shortages by March

The New York Times is using about 5,300 tons of newsprint a week — an average that is expected to continue for some time The paper will not face a newsprint crisis until the end of February, a spokesman said

At present, The Times started each week with a week's supply on hand and another week's supply in transit In February, The Times is expecting newsprint from Scandinavia, which is not one of its normal sources of supply

The price of newsprint in the eastern United States is about $260 a ton Black market newsprint is being offered for about $340 a ton, and so far has had few takers, although most newspapers are willing to pay some increased cost during the present strike

The paper mills in the United States that manufacture newsprint are operating at near capacity now, and have been for some time, so the shortage that would occur from a more prolonged strike in Canada could not be helped by companies in the United States

Chicago (UPI) — A nurse's aide who police said had a "bad history of pyromania" was indicted on murder and arson charges Tuesday in the fire that killed 15 elderly and infirm residents of the Wincrest Nursing and Rest Home

A Cook County grand jury returned a 47-count indictment against Denise Watson, 21 Authorities said she broke down early Tuesday and admitted she had dropped a match into a patient's clothes locker last Friday before smoke billowed through the third floor and trapped the victims in a chapel.

Gray Panthers Stalking Lincoln Issues

STAR PHOTO
MRS. KNIFFEN . . . battling against agism.

Philadelphia, 1972 — Secret Service agents at a Spiro Agnew campaign rally confront 200 Gray Panthers, angry about social services budget cuts.

One protester, 67-year-old Margaret Kuhn, runs up to a Secret Service man, pokes a finger in his chest and snaps, "Zap! You're getting old!" The man backs away. Maggie closes in again: "Listen to what we're saying. We're trying to change things for you."

After the rally, a graying federal agent sideles up to Ms. Kuhn. "Look into that federal pension system, will you?" he asks.

Lincoln's Gray Panthers celebrated a birthday last month — their first. Which makes then young in fact as well as spirit.

And while they aren't as radical as some Panthers, Lincoln's group is on the prowl, studying nursing homes, mandatory retirement, housing — anything that smacks of agism, discrimination on the basis of age.

"You've got to do what works for you," said 76-year-old Martha Kniffen, 1339 S. 25th, a Panther member. "If you want to march and carry banners you do it. We haven't been doing that in Lincoln."

Instead, the 15 dues-paying members and 40 to 50 "followers" (some young) have been meeting monthly to "work on consciousness-raising," strive for self-improvement and discuss issues affecting the elderly.

Lincoln's Panthers haven't bared their fangs publicly yet ("we like to research things thoroughly before we speak"), but they have written legislators about bills which affect them.

And when they're ready, they'll take their case to the community.

Gray Panthers started in 1970 as the "Consultation of Older Adults" when Maggie Kuhn (sometimes called "the wrinkled radical") and four friends got angry about their forced retirements.

Operating out of a basement in Philadelphia's Tabernacle Church, they built an organization that now has 250 chapters with 8,000 members and spans 33 states.

Journalists called the sometimes radical, always nonviolent members "Gray Panthers." The name stuck, Mrs. Kniffen said, "because many of them were gray and feeling quite pantherish."

But not all are gray.

Society, Panthers say, discriminates against both young and old — some jobs are closed to people outside a certain age range, getting credit can be difficult, age can determine how useful society considers you.

Gray Panthers is "a network of young and old, drawn together by a deeply felt concern for human liberation and social change," Mrs. Kniffen said. "The young have time and energy, the old have more money and experience."

Besides fighting for mass transit, national health care programs, abolition of compulsory retirement and better housing, the Panthers also are combating stereotypes.

"When they think of old people, some people think of someone drooling, maybe sloppy in appearance, maybe unattractive to look at. We've got to change that," Mrs. Kniffen said.

For her, "being a Gray Panther is just common sense."

Opening lead - jack of hearts.

Let's say you're East and partner leads a trump against four hearts. Declarer wins with the king and returns a spade, taken by West with the ace. Your partner plays another trump. South wins with the ace, leads a club to the jack, discards a diamond on the king of spades, and continues with the A-K of clubs.

West refuses to ruff the third club, because he is understandably reluctant to take the lead. However, this move does not help him a bit because South puts him on lead with a third round of trumps. The outcome of all these cat-and-mouse maneuvers is that West finds himself on lead in this position:

West realizes that a spade return would prove fatal, so he returns a diamond. However, he carefully selects the deuce — any other diamond lead would hand South the contract — and when declarer follows low from dummy you must be equally careful to play the nine, not the queen.

As a result, South goes down — regardless of what he does next. There is no diamond holding declarer can have where your nine plays cost you the contract, but there are some diamond holdings South can have — such as the actual one — where your nine play is absolutely necessary to defeat the contract.

Domestic Quarrels

Police Only Stopgap For Professionals

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

It was a bad day at the office. Joe stopped off on the way home from the office for a "couple of beers."

By the time he got home, supper was cold but his wife's temper was hot. A domestic disturance ensued and neighbors in an adjoining apartment called Lincoln Police to tell them that "the neighbor is beating his wife."

In some respects, a rather routine call, but one which is labeled, by some officers, as "the worst possible kind."

Lincoln police aren't called to every man-and-wife squabble, only the ones which cause an audible, or, sometimes, visual disturbance.

The person calling in the complaint may be a neighbor, a child or other relative of the family, even the husband or wife, especially if the other half has left the scene.

Cause for Concern

What the police do, or, more importantly perhaps, what the police can do, is a cause of great concern for police officials.

"Admittedly, we're not licensed counselors," one official said. "Our standard operating procedure is to send two officers, if at all possible, so that one can talk to each of the parties, alone, in separate rooms, then get the two together to discuss the situation," he explained.

For the police, that's usually the end of the matter. Especially if no criminal act has been done. Repeat calls to the same address will usually bring a word of warning from the officers that legal action will be taken for such things as disturbing the peace, but, generally, they try to suggest that the couple talk to a clergyman or seek some professional help.

In Trained Hands

From there, most agree, the matter is out of the hands of the police and into the hands of, hopefully, a trained counselor.

The American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors (AAMFC) boasts 2,000 members nationwide . . . members of the psychiatric and sociological discipline, as well as some other fields of behavioral sciences.

Most agree that many a marriage can be saved from destruction and divorce if help is sought. Reasons one, when you have a toothache, you go to a dentist. The same should hold true for an emotional pain: help should be found.

One nationally known psychiatrist, Dr. E. James Liebermann, was interviewed recently on the problem of marital discord and divorce in light of ever-increasing divorce rates.

Liebermann told "Business Week" that three things cause most domestic disturbances: sex, money and inlaws. In noting that the sex problem ranks first, he cited a major problem of communication.

37 Minutes A Week

The average couple, after one year of marriage, spends only 37 minutes a week in exclusive conversation with one another. He called that figure low, but "believable."

Another psychiatrist has lowered that figure to 27 minutes a week, but both agree that communication is important. Most emotional communication is negative, they add.

Why the increased divorce rate? Liebermann said that today's increasing divorce rates are the result of a long-term trend that "coincides with the development of women's rights." More women in the work force means that more women are economically in a position to live alone if necessary.

That fact, coupled with reasonable divorce laws in most states, has caused the increase.

The trend isn't expected to continue, however, Liebermann added, since most people are older before their first marriage. Couples often have more in common — a college degree, career interests, etc. — before they get married, he said.

Signs Of Trouble

How can people tell when they're headed for trouble in their marriage? If a husband and wife don't have anything to say to each other, are not happy being around each other, or are keeping busy so as to be distracted from one another, that spells trouble, Liebermann said.

Who should they talk to? Liebermann, and most other psychiatrists, advise against talking to a friend or a relative. Those confidants most often wind up being used as a weapon against the other half. The same with children who often have to make a difficult decision as to which parent to side with.

A clergyman is a safe bet to talk to, all agree, since he most generally can steer the couple toward a qualified counselor. As a last resort, someone, preferably a counselor, can be found by looking in a phone book, then checking his credentials, Liebermann offered.

Most communities have "help-line" phone numbers which go under a variety of names and can be utilized. The county health department, mental health facilities and medical societies can also be sought out as useful reference centers.

It May Cost Plenty

Liebermann cautions that it's a costly process. Some professional counselors get $40 an hour, and may advise one-a-week sessions for a year. It all depends on the couple and how quickly the individuals respond to help, both in the initial search and in the healing process.

One member of the AAMFC said, "We're not here to save the marriage at the expense of the partners."

A marriage "being held together for the children," shouldn't be. Instead, the parents should look at the reality of it all and face the loneliness thing.

A solution? It's probably hinted at in what the police try to do . . . get the couple to talk. Just 10 minutes a day given to productive criticism about the marriage can work wonders, Liebermann said.

Laugh Together

The Rev. Leland Foster Wood, Ph.D., a former secretary of the Commission on Marriage and the Home of the National Council of Churches, offered this about the domestic quarrel which should have been a reasonable discussion in the first place:

"If both partners will take the position of objective observers, asking what is happening and why, the situation will sometimes look ridiculous and both can laugh together."

New York Doctors John Levy and Ruth Monroe, in an article entitled "The Happy Family," observed:

"Nine-tenths of human misery is mere nonsense."

dear abby

He Refuses To Let Wife Work

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 16 years. He's a wonderful husband and devoted father to our two children, ages 12 and 14, but he's terribly stubborn about one thing — and that is my problem:

Three months ago he was laid off from his job (machinist at an aircraft plant), so he took a job at a local department store as a salesman. His take-home pay is about one-fourth of what it was previously.

When I suggested that I also get a job to help make ends meet, he became furious. "No wife of mine is going to work," he screamed.

Abby, I know he means well, but every time I try to discuss it with him, he becomes upset. Please help.

GLENDA IN GLENDALE

DEAR GLENDA: If I can help by saying that it's no reflection on a man's masculinity if his wife works — I've helped.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter has been sexually active for a number of years with quite a few partners.

Now that she is in her middle 20s she is marrying one of those partners who probably knows about the rest.

We are happy for her and approve of the marriage, but she wants a white gown and veil!

We are shocked at her dishonesty and bad taste. So many of our friends and relatives are aware of her lifestyle.

We are not trying to punish her by refusing to go along with her wishes, but we're reluctant to make a mockery of what a white wedding stands for.

There must be other parents with this problem and other young people in this situation. Will you and your readers help?

DISTRESSED PARENT

DEAR PARENT: In planning a wedding, the wishes of the bride and groom should take priority. The bride who wears a white gown and veil is not necessarily declaring herself to be a virgin.

DEAR ABBY: For years I wore my wedding ring first with my diamond on the outside. I had been told by the jeweler that that was the "correct" way to wear them, but I didn't know that it was to keep the wedding ring "closest to the heart" until I read it in your column.

But let me tell you why I don't wear them that way anymore: About five years ago, I was eating peanuts at a ball game, and my diamond ring slipped off my finger into the peanut sack. Luckily, I found it among the peanut shells, and when I put it back on my finger, I put it on first and put on my wedding band on the outside. Sign me . . .

BETTER SAFE THAN RIGHT

DEAR BETTER: Speaking from a materialistic point of view, you're protecting the more "valuable" ring. But symbolically speaking, it's easier to replace a diamond than a wedding band.

Plan To Coordinate State Higher Education Proposed

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

A university president Tuesday night proposed a plan for coordinating higher education in Nebraska that he said could "eliminate waste . . . duplication and . . . proliferation of academic programs."

Nebraska Wesleyan University President Vance Rogers told a legislative study committee that coordination of post-secondary education should begin with creation of a commission to oversee higher education.

But he said it would be several years before the "real hard question" of "putting teeth into this commission" could be dealt with "because I don't think other (schools) would go along (with granting the commission governing powers)."

"We labor under the illustion that we can solve all our problems in one fell swoop," he said. "I just don't believe this is possible."

In the second of a series of hearings on post-secondary education, the committee heard three hours of testimony from five administrators and two students.

The committee's study, mandated by the 1975 Legislature, will end with presentation of a plan for coordinating higher education to the 1977 Legislature.

Rogers' proposal calls for analysis of program needs, costs per student and funding resources at each of the state's public and private colleges and universities. With that information, the commission would plan higher education statewide, hopefully preventing duplication and unnecessary expense.

"At this stage, I can't say how much (power) this umbrella (commission) could have," Rogers said, indicating it would probably fall somewhere between an advisory and a governing body.

Phil Heckman, Doane College president, agreed that the commission should be created.

He also suggested legislation be passed allowing the state to contract with private universities for educational services.

"We need to clear that up in a year or two so real coordination could be possible down the pike," Heckman said.

"An analysis of cost would be revealing. Under that kind of scrutiny, I think you would find that independent colleges come in at low cost."

Union College President Myrl Manley said he was "convinced Vance's ideas are good and sound ones.

"Coordination could serve the private college in very acceptable ways in many instances . . . we've probably only touched the periphery of what coordination could do in some areas."

For example, Manley said, Union College now sends some students to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for courses it doesn't offer.

NWU provost Fred Blumer said he hopes coordination "doesn't develop in a way that destroys the essential collegiate nature of post-secondary education.

"Post-secondary education is always going to be inefficient in a certain sense because it's designed to allow a variety of opinions," he said.

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — This South American capital has installed the first of a series of environmental contamination gauges to measure air pollution.

The city's name means "good airs," but it has long been plagued by contamination from apartment house incinerators, industrial fumes and diesel exhaust from thousands of buses clogging the streets.

License Mailings Bog Down

If you've mailed in your money for car or truck license plates and haven't received the plates yet, don't be alarmed.

The county motor vehicle department, swamped with work, is just behind on the mailings, said division head Wilbur Staberg.

Even with extra part-time help and work on Saturdays, and evenings, the motor vehicle crew is only caught up to mail received by Jan. 7, he explained.

The plates will be coming, Staberg said. But it could take at least four weeks from the time you mailed the money until you receive your plates.

Omaha Bank Must Close Branch

St. Louis (UPI) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday reversed itself and ordered Omaha National Bank to close a branch facility across the street from the main bank.

The court ruled in a suit filed by a group of other Omaha banks, which lost its case in U.S. District Court in Omaha and lost the first appeal before a panel of the appeals court last August.

The entire appeals court later heard the case and announced in its 6-2 decision that "Omaha National Bank is violating applicable federal law by operating three detached banking facilities."

Omaha National, located in the 30-story Woodmen Tower Building in downtown Omaha, has two outlying branches which, the court agreed, are legal. However, another facility for walk-up and drive-in customers is operated across the street from the main bank.

The law allows Omaha National to have two branches, and the bank had argued the facility across the street is not a branch but an extension of the main bank. The court said, however, the facility across the street is not attached to the bank except by pneumatic tube and is separately staffed with its own telephone number.

Chief Judge Floyd R. Gibson, writing for the majority, said, "Omaha National has extended its operation beyond permissible bounds. The term branch bank at the very least includes any place for receiving deposits or paying checks or lending money apart from the chartered premises."

Judge William H. Webster said in a dissenting opinion the facility across the street does not give Omaha National access to customers in any other neighborhood and does not give the bank a "competitive advantage in securing customers."

The victoriuos plaintiffs in the case are Douglas County Bank, First National Bank of Omaha, Packers National Bank, First West Side Bank of Omaha, Southwest Bank of Omaha, North Side Bank, First Westroads Bank, Bank of Millard and Nebraskans for Independent Banking.

County Rejects Assault Claim Of Jail Inmate

The Lancaster County Board Tuesday rejected a $20,000 claim filed by a man who was allegedly assaulted while an inmate in the County-City jail.

Gerald R. Hohmeier, of Adams Rt. 1, filed the claim against city and county governments, after he was allegedly assaulted by another jail inmate in his cell, Feb. 22, 1975.

The claim included $2,800 in medical, dental and hospital expenses for injuries Hohmeier received during the incident.

The City Council had earlier denied the claim.

The county attorney's office advised the board that the man was a city prisoner and was assaulted by a city prisoner. In addition the county does not run the jail, but merely pays a per diem rate for county prisoners housed there, the attorneys office said.

The claim filing procedure is normally the first step leading to a civil case in District Court.

Group OKs Texan

Washington (UPI) — Texas businessman James Hargrove was unanimously approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to be ambassador to Australia.

Handicapped Ed Amendment Plan To Be Reviewed

The Nebraska Department of Education special education section has completed a draft of the amendment to its state plan for the handicapped, required under Title VI-B, Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA).

The amendment may be reviewed in the Title VI-B, EHA office, 233 S. 10th, beginning Feb. 3. It will be on review for 30 days for anyone interested in submitting comments. Written comments must be submitted by March 3.

Draft copies of the amendment will be sent to all 19 educational service units and all offices of county school superintendents.

Gray Panthers Stalking Lincoln Issues

MRS. KNIFFEN . . . battling against agism. STAR PHOTO

Philadelphia, 1972 — Secret Service agents at a Spiro Agnew campaign rally confront 200 Gray Panthers, angry about social services budget cuts

One protester, 67-year-old Margaret Kuhn, runs up to a Secret Service man, pokes a finger in his chest and snaps, "Zap! You're getting old!" The man backs away Maggie closes in again "Listen to what we're saying We're trying to change things for you "

After the rally, a graying federal agent sideles up to Ms Kuhn "Look into that federal pension system, will you?" he asks

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln's Gray Panthers celebrated a birthday last month — their first Which makes then young in fact as well as spirit

And while they aren't as radical as some Panthers, Lincoln's group is on the prowl, studying nursing homes, mandatory retirement, housing — anything that smacks of agism, discrimination on the basis of age

You ve got to do what works for you said 76-year-old Martha Kniffen, 1339 S 25th, a Panther member ' If you want to march and carry banners you do it We haven t been doing that in Lincoln '

Instead the 15 dues-paying members and 40 to 50 "followers" (some young) have been meeting monthly to "work on consciousness raising," strive for self-improvement and discuss issues affecting the elderly

Lincoln s Panthers haven't bared their fangs publicly yet (we like to research things thoroughly before we speak"), but they have written legislators about bills which affect them

And when they're ready, they'll take their case to the community

Gray Panthers started in 1970 as the "Consultation of Older Adults" when Maggie Kuhn (sometimes called "the wrinkled radical) and four friends got angry about their forced retirements

Operating out of a basement in Philadelphia's Tabernacle Church, they built an organization that now has 250 chapters with 8,000 members and spans 33 states

Journalists called the sometimes radical, always nonviolent members "Gray Panthers " The name stuck, Mrs Kniffen said, "because many of them were gray and feeling quite pantherish "

But not all are gray

Society, Panthers say, discriminates against both young and old — some jobs are closed to people outside a certain age range, getting credit can be difficult, age can determine how useful society considers you

Gray Panthers is "a network of young and old, drawn together by a deeply felt concern for human liberation and social change," Mrs Kniffen said "The young have time and energy, the old have more money and experience "

Besides fighting for mass transit, national health care programs, abolition of compulsory retirement and better housing, the Panthers also are combating stereotypes

"When they think of old people, some people think of someone drooling, maybe sloppy in appearance, maybe unattractive to look at We've got to change that," Mrs Kniffen said

For her, "being a Gray Panther is just common sense '

West refuses to ruff the third club, because he is understandably reluctant to take the lead. However, this move does not help him a bit because South puts him on lead with a third round of trumps The outcome of all these cat-and-mouse maneuvers is that West finds himself on lead in this position

Beatrice Home Figure Of 700 Said Realistic

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State officials expect the long-term population of mentally retarded residents at the Beatrice State Home to level off between 600 and 700, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee was told Tuesday.

That figure compares to a current population of 1,000 and the goal of 250 mentioned in a proposed settlement agreement between parties in a recent Omaha lawsuit over mental retardation care.

However, the final decree in that U.S. District Court case issued by Judge Albert Schatz established no inflexible maximum figure on future population at Beatrice.

A panel of experts has been assigned the task of preparing a plan for implementation of the court order providing for transfer of more mentally retarded persons from institutionalized care to community programs.

Deadline April 13

Its report is due by April 13, and will point the way toward future population figures at Beatrice.

Jerry Griepentrog, program director at Beatrice, told senators that he believes a long-term population figure between 600 and 700 is "realistic."

If the state doubles its current outflow of residents, he said, the institution could be reduced from 1,000 to 775 in three years.

Gov. J. James Exon's 1976-77 budget contains $1 million in funding to transfer 100 persons into community care programs during the next fiscal year.

Griepentrog guessed that between 200 and 250 residents could be adequately cared for in community programs now if "money and space" were available.

800 Severely Retarded

About 800 of the residents at Beatrice are categorized as severely or profoundly retarded and in need of institutionalized care.

Patricia Crawford of Lincoln, Nebraska chapter president of the Mental Retardation Association of America, told senators that careful reading of the court decree indicates that "you can forget about the figure of 250 forever."

In that decree issued last autumn, Schatz wrote: "It goes without saying that this court will not allow a plan which sets an arbitrary resident population such that individuals who require the care and supervision of the Beatrice State Home will be deprived of that care and supervision."

$2.4 Million Proposed

Tuesday's discussion of population figures centered around a bill, introduced by Sen. George "Bill" Burrows of Adams, which would provide $2.4 million over the next two years to construct more cottages for residents at Beatrice.

Ninety-six residents are already housed in newly constructed cottages at the facility.

With a long-term population of more than 600 in view for Beatrice, Burrows said, it will be necessary to either renovate and air condition some existing facilitites or build new cottages for the residents.

Some $3.8 million in federal medicaid funds for the institution are in jeopardy if new construction or renovation is not approved, Griepentrog said.

The institution now has only 286 accreditable beds, he said. Thirty-two more can reach required standards with minor renovations.

650 Need Renovation

That leaves housing for 650 in need of extensive renovation, he said.

The committee held the bill, LB829, for later action.

Also held were two proposals sponsored by Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood.

LB927 would appropriate $750,000 to acquire the defunct John F. Kennedy College campus at Wahoo for use as a state veterans home.

LB798 would appropriate $165,000 to contract with Cornell University and the University of Pennsylvania to educate about 10 Nebraska students in veterinary medicine.

Nebraska now pays almost $390,000 to six other institutions to provide an education for 81 students at their colleges of veterinary medicine.

With Schmit's bill, he said, slots for new students in 1976-77 could be increased from about 30 to about 40.

Measure Lets Funeral Director Remove Eyes

The Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee Tuesday voted approval to a bill allowing funeral directors to remove the eyes of dead persons who had agreed to make anatomical donations.

Currently, only physicians can extract the eye from a dead body for transplant.

The bill, LB764, introduced by Utica Sen. Douglas Bereuter, also eliminates the next of kin's right to revoke a donor's permission to give eyes and kidneys.

Funeral directors would have to complete a course in eye removal and be certified before they could perform the operation.

The committee took no action on a bill allowing persons to indicate on their drivers license whether they wish to be donors of organs.

The committee wanted to check on the wording of the bill, LB734, before sending it to the floor.

The committee also approved Kearney Sen. Ron Cope's LB742 to exempt recreational vehicles manufactured in Nebraska to be sold out of state from inspection fees.

Amendment Is Attached To Bicycle Reflector Bill

The Legislature adopted an amendment to a bill Tuesday that would require retailers to put reflectors in the spokes of new bibycles, but would remove penalty provisions for riders who have no reflectors on their bikes.

Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner's amendment was adopted on a vote of 22-15. The amendment was added to Newman Grove Sen. Tom Kennedy's LB628, which would have repealed the state's current bicycle reflector law. The Legislature adjourned for the day without giving the bill first round approval.

At one point in the debate, Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett offered an amendment which would have required pedestrians crossing streets to wear helmets equipped with a rotating warning light. He withdrew the amendment before it came to a vote.

"I took quite a lot of heat over the bill we passed last year," said Alliance Sen. Leslie Stull, suggesting that the law be repealed.

The current law, which went into effect Jan. 1, requires bike riders to have special reflective tires.

Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh said it was strange that the Legislature wanted to require bicycles to have reflectors but did not require brakes. "I think we are trying to sell reflectors," Cavanaugh said.

Bill Gives Board Flexibility To Vary State Tax Cushion

By The Associated Press

The Legislature passed a bill Tuesday that is designed to allow some flexibility in the setting of state tax rates, with most "aye" votes cast in hopes of holding down taxes.

State senators passed LB651 by a 33-15 vote, giving the State Board of Equalization and Assessment authority to set the tax overlevy as low as 3% or as high as 7%.

If Gov. J. James Exon signs the measure, the flexible overlevy system will be in effect when the Board of Equalization meets this spring and again next fall to deal with tax rates.

The overlevy is designed to provide a cushion in the state treasury, though it is neither a required reserve nor a minimum balance.

It is actually an excess tax levy added to the amount called for in the state's annual budget.

Had the flexible overlevy been in effect when the Board of Equalization met last November, the low of 3% would have required an excess of $11 million in revenue while the high of 7% would have required an excess of $27 million.

At that time, due to action in the special legislative session, the floating overlevy was 2-3% and the board chose 2%, for an excess tax levy totaling almost $8 million in revenue.

Before last year's special session action, the overlevy was 5%.

State tax rates for 1976 are 2.5% on sales and 15% of the federal liability on income.

Because each percentage point of income tax raises about $10 million, the overlevy could make a difference in the income tax rate.

Because the state income and sales taxes must raise approximately equal amounts, an income tax in the 16 to 17% range could also trigger a sales tax increase to 3%.

Though many senators voted for LB651 in hopes of avoiding such increases due to a high overlevy while still hoping to provide some cash flow cushion, Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner was not with them.

Warner told his colleagues during earlier floor debate that the overlevy doesn't determine tax rate levels, but legislative appropriations do.

Omaha Teachers' Pensions Are Subject Of Late Entry

State senators Tuesday allowed introduction of a bill designed to increase pension benefits of Omaha teachers 20%.

Legislators voted 31-0 to allow late introduction of LB994, which would require $93,000 annually from teachers in contributions and the same amount from the Omaha school system.

Teachers would contribute an additional .15% on salary up to $7,800 and .25% on higher amounts of annual pay.

Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich said although the bill would cost the state nothing, it is necessary because state statutes govern retirement systems.

Senators also approved introduction of a bill specifying that the University of Nebraska is allowed to have a college of fine arts. Through an error, reference to the college was omitted from current legislation.

The bill, LB995, was introduced on a 32-0 vote under sponsorship of the Education Committee.

Soil Survey Aid Measures Pass

The Legislature Tuesday passed bills to speed up soil surveys.

Under LB180A and LB180, passed on votes of 36-8, the Legislature would give $65,715 in state funds to aid in federal soil survey programs. The intent of Speaker Jules Burbach's bills is to complete the soil surveys in Nebraska in about a dozen years. The surveys are used for determining property taxes and for other purposes.

Plan To Coordinate State Higher Education Proposed

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

A university president Tuesday night proposed a plan for coordinating higher education in Nebraska that he said could "eliminate waste ... duplication and ... proliferation of academic programs."

Nebraska Wesleyan University President Vance Rogers told a legislative study committee that coordination of post-secondary education should begin with creation of a commission to oversee higher education.

But he said it would be several years before the "real hard question" of "putting teeth into this commission" could be dealt with "because I don't think other (schools) would go along (with granting the commission governing powers)."

"We labor under the illusion that we can solve all our problems in one fell swoop," he said. "I just don't believe this is possible."

In the second of a series of hearings on post-secondary education, the committee heard three hours of testimony from five administrators and two students.

The committee's study, mandated by the 1975 Legislature, will end with presentation of a plan for coordinating higher education to the 1977 Legislature.

Rogers' proposal calls for analysis of program needs, costs per student and funding resources at each of the state's public and private colleges and universities. With that information, the commission would plan higher education statewide, hopefully preventing duplication and unnecessary expense.

"At this stage, I can't say how much (power) this umbrella (commission) could have," Rogers said, indicating it would probably fall somewhere between an advisory and a governing body.

Phil Heckman, Doane College president, agreed that the commission should be created.

He also suggested legislation be passed allowing the state to contract with private universities for educational services.

"We need to clear that up in a year or two so real coordination could be possible down the pike," Heckman said.

"An analysis of cost would be revealing. Under that kind of scrutiny, I think you would find that independent colleges come in at low cost."

Union College President Myrl Manley said he was "convinced Vance's ideas are good and sound ones.

"Coordination could serve the private college in very acceptable ways in many instances ... we've probably only touched the periphery of what coordination could do in some areas."

For example, Manley said, Union College now sends some students to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for courses it doesn't offer.

NWU provost Fred Blumer said he hopes coordination "doesn't develop in a way that destroys the essential collegiate nature of post-secondary education.

"Post-secondary education is always going to be inefficient in a certain sense because it's designed to allow a variety of opinions," he said

License Mailings Bog Down

If you've mailed in your money for car or truck license plates and haven't received the plates yet, don't be alarmed.

The county motor vehicle department, swamped with work, is just behind on the mailings, said division head Wilbur Staberg.

Even with extra part-time help and work on Saturdays, and evenings, the motor vehicle crew is only caught up to mail received by Jan. 7, he explained.

The plates will be coming, Staberg said. But it could take at least four weeks from the time you mailed the money until you receive your plates.

Omaha Bank Must Close Branch

St Louis (UPI) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday reversed itself and ordered Omaha National Bank to close a branch facility across the street from the main bank.

The court ruled in a suit filed by a group of other Omaha banks, which lost its case in U.S. District Court in Omaha and lost the first appeal before a panel of the appeals court last August.

The entire appeals court later heard the case and announced in its 6-2 decision that "Omaha National Bank is violating applicable federal law by operating three detached banking facilities"

Omaha National, located in the 30-story Woodmen Tower Building in downtown Omaha, has two outlying branches which, the court agreed, are legal. However, another facility for walk-up and drive-in customers is operated across the street from the main bank.

The law allows Omaha National to have two branches, and the bank had argued the facility across the street is not a branch but an extension of the main bank. The court said, however, the facility across the street is not attached to the bank except by pneumatic tube and is separately staffed with its own telephone number.

Chief Judge Floyd R. Gibson, writing for the majority, said, "Omaha National has extended its operation beyond permissible bounds. The term branch bank at the very least includes any place for receiving deposits or paying checks or lending money apart from the chartered premises."

Judge William H. Webster said in a dissenting opinion the facility across the street does not give Omaha National access to customers in any other neighborhood and does not give the bank a "competitive advantage in securing customers."

The victoriuos plaintiffs in the case are Douglas County Bank, First National Bank of Omaha, Packers National Bank, First West Side Bank of Omaha, Southwest Bank of Omaha, North Side Bank, First Westroads Bank, Bank of Millard and Nebraskans for Independent Banking.

County Rejects Assault Claim Of Jail Inmate

The Lancaster County Board Tuesday rejected a $20,000 claim filed by a man who was allegedly assaulted while an inmate in the County-City jail.

Gerald R. Hohmeier, of Adams Rt. 1, filed the claim against city and county governments, after he was allegedly assaulted by another jail inmate in his cell, Feb. 22, 1975.

The claim included $2,800 in medical, dental and hospital expenses for injuries Hohmeier received during the incident.

The City Council had earlier denied the claim.

The county attorney's office advised the board that the man was a city prisoner and was assaulted by a city prisoner. In addition the county does not run the jail, but merely pays a per diem rate for county prisoners housed there, the attorneys office said.

The claim filing procedure is normally the first step leading to a civil case in District Court.

Handicapped Ed Amendment Plan To Be Reviewed

The Nebraska Department of Education special education section has completed a draft of the amendment to its state plan for the handicapped, required under Title VI-B, Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA).

The amendment may be reviewed in the Title VI-B, EHA office, 233 S. 10th, beginning Feb. 3. It will be on review for 30 days for anyone interested in submitting comments. Written comments must be submitted by March 3.

Draft copies of the amendment will be sent to all 19 educational service units and all offices of county school superintendents.

Martin Estate Assets May Not Cover Claims

The estate of philanthropist and businessman Bennett S. Martin may not have sufficient assets to pay all the claims, according to court testimony presented Tuesday.

"Investigation and analysis of the principal assets of the estate . . . indicated that the stock of said corporations held by the estate do not have the value previously indicated, and there could be insufficient assets to pay all the claims," reads a statement filed by First National Bank & Trust of Lincoln.

The bank asked that it be allowed to withdraw as administrator of the estate on the grounds of conflict of interest.

The bank also has claims against the estate and "the interests of one or more of the beneficiaries are adverse to the interest of the bank," the statement said.

Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum granted the request Tuesday and appointed attorney Sidney Sweet as administrator.

Sweet, attorney for the estate, said the total value of the estate and the total amount of claims pending against it are unknown.

A statement filed by the bank indicate that claims totaling more than $1,346,000 were originally filed against the estate.

In addition a claim for more than $1 million was filed after the filing deadline by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

In the contingency claim the company contends that Martin guaranteed $1,668,075 on a more than $3 million mortgage note held by Metropolitan for the Hilton Hotel property.

The guarantee payment would take effect only if the mortgage payments were in default.

This claim is still pending in county probate court.

Martin, who died last year, was elected to the City Council in 1955 and was appointed mayor 14 months later. He was elected mayor in 1957 and served a two-year term.

He contributed to many public improvements in Lincoln including the Bennet Martin Library, the YMCA and YWCA, the Children's Zoo, the Junior Golf Course and Clark Jerry Memorial Manor.

He died in January 1975, at age 70.

Court Asked To Clear Up Hotel Agreement

A local businessman has asked the court to interpret an agreement relating to the Hilton Hotel in a suit filed Tuesday in Lancaster County District Cout.

Wayne Kingery, vice president and secretary of Kingery Construction Company, has filed the suit aginst Balcor Realty Investors LTD-74, owners of the Hilton Hotel, and Bennett T. Martin and Dorothy B. Martin.

The guarantee agreement stems from the sale of the Hilton Hotel property to Balcor Realty.

When former owners of the Hilton, H-H Inc., sold the property to Balcor Realty, the corporation members, including Kingery and the Martins, signed an agreement guaranteeing Balcor Realty $190,000 annual cash flow from the hotel for two years, according to the suit.

Balcor Realty has demanded $190,288.19 for 1975 under the guarantee agreement, according to the suit.

Kingery contends in the suit that certain figures used by Balcor Realty and interpretations of the guarantee agreement are erroneous and illegal.

Specifically he alleges that the expenditures by the Hilton Hotel Corp., which manages the hotel, were grossly in excess of the submitted budget, particularly for general administration, advertising, business promotion, repairs and maintenance.

The suit also alleges that the Hilton Hotel Corp. did not conduct proper management or supervision during the year.

In addition, Kingery contends in the suit that he has no obligation for any of the money owed under the guarantee agreement because of a later indemnity agreement, signed by the Martins.

In this agreement, the Martins agreed to assume any liability for the guarantee as part of the payment for construction work by Kingery Construction Company, according to the suit.

The suit alleges that the Martins are the ultimate parties responsible for the guarantee obligation.

Status Of Women Board Will Meet

The Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women will meet Feb. 25, it was announced Monday.

In addition, Connie Clark, public information director for the Lincoln Council on Alocholism and Drugs, will speak to the commission.

The meeting will be held at the Governor's Mansion.

Cause Of Blaze In Wahoo Still Being Sought

Lincoln Star Special

Wahoo — An investigator from the state fire marshal's office Tuesday continued to seek the cause of a blaze destroying a building in the business district Monday night.

The large wooden building was a total loss, according to E. H. Patzloff of the Wahoo Police Department and a member of the city's volunteer fire department.

Owned by Douglas Simonson of Wahoo, the building housed the Ballard Machine Shop and a storage area for Helstar Corp. In addition, Simonson was in the process of opening an antique and floral shop on one side of the building.

Simonson and his brother, Joe, were working in the building when the fire was discovered.

Wahoo firemen, aided by firefighters from Mead, were able to keep the flames from spreading to nearby buildings.

Police Investigating $600 Stereo Theft

Lincoln police are investigating the theft of more than $600 worth of stereo equipment and miscellaneous items from an apartment occupied by Duane E. Lutje, 33, at 2765 W.

Lutje told police that among the items taken early Monday were a Sony reel-to-reel tape player, amplifier, two speakers, several tapes, a brown billfold containing a driver's license, Bankamericard and cash; and five cans of beer.

Firm To Manage LTS 'Good Deal'

A proposal to hire a management firm to run the Lincoln Transportation System seems to be on the right road as far as the City Council is concerned.

Council members indicated Tuesday they will approve an $83,000 a year contract with ATE Management and Services Co. of Cincinnati.

Federal funds probably will pay for half the management fee, while state funds may be available to pay another fourth of the $83,000.

With other governmental agencies picking up three-fourth's the cost, Councilman Max Denney said, "This sounds like a good deal to me."

3-Year Term Proposed

Under the proposed agreement, the city would hire the ATE firm for three years. The company operates bus companies in 27 cities, including Kansas City, Baltimore and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Discussion of the contract came during a meeting with ATE senior vice president Housten Ismael and ATE associate David Hines. No official action was taken, but the lawmakers hinted they will officially approve the contract in several weeks.

Ismael said it would only take several weeks after that contract approval for ATE to send in a manager and planner.

For the monthly $6,716 check, the company would supervise transportation planning and operations, equipment selection, routes, schedules, fare structures, budgeting, employe training and labor relations.

Board Favors Contract

The LTS Advisory Board recommended in January that the city approve the contract. The LTS Board said it has been unable to find a qualified applicant to fill the vacant manager's position. Former LTS manager Dick Frank resigned in September to take another job.

Lack of trained personnel to run bus systems is a nationwide problem, Denney said, which he said is one reason why management companies have become successful. The ATE company has been in business since 1971.

When Mayor Helen Boosalis asked if the council had any reservations about hiring the company, Denney replied, "What's our choice? We're in a corner and can't get out."

Heritage League Aids Blood Bank

The Heritage League will present an $1,800 check Thursday to the Community Blood Bank for the purchase of a blood storage refrigerator.

The check represents proceeds from ticket sales for the league's Holiday of Trees which was seen by approximately 1,500 people last December.

"KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK JOHN"

Beatrice Home Figure Of 700 Said Realistic

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State officials expect the long-term population of mentally retarded residents at the Beatrice State Home to level off between 600 and 700, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee was told Tuesday.

That figure compares to a current population of 1,000 and the goal of 250 mentioned in a proposed settlement agreement between parties in a recent Omaha lawsuit over mental retardation care.

However, the final decree in that U.S. District Court case issued by Judge Albert Schatz established no inflexible maximum figure on future population at Beatrice.

A panel of experts has been assigned the task of preparing a plan for implementation of the court order providing for transfer of more mentally retarded persons from institutionalized care to community programs.

Deadline April 13

Its report is due by April 13, and will point the way toward future population figures at Beatrice.

Jerry Griepentrog, program director at Beatrice, told senators that he believes a long-term population figure between 600 and 700 is "realistic."

If the state doubles its current outflow of residents, he said, the institution could be reduced from 1,000 to 775 in three years.

Gov. J. James Exon's 1976-77 budget contains $1 million in funding to transfer 100 persons into community care programs during the next fiscal year.

Griepentrog guessed that between 200 and 250 residents could be adequately cared for in community programs now if "money and space" were available.

800 Severely Retarded

About 800 of the residents at Beatrice are categorized as severely or profoundly retarded and in need of institutionalized care.

Patricia Crawford of Lincoln, Nebraska chapter president of the Mental Retardation Association of America, told senators that careful reading of the court decree indicates that "you can forget about the figure of 250 forever."

In that decree issued last autumn, Schatz wrote: "It goes without saying that this court will not allow a plan which sets an arbitrary resident population such that individuals who require the care and supervision of the Beatrice State Home will be deprived of that care and supervision."

$2.4 Million Proposed

Tuesday's discussion of population figures centered around a bill, introduced by Sen. George "Bill" Burrows of Adams, which would provide $2.4 million over the next two years to construct more cottages for residents at Beatrice.

Ninety-six residents, are already housed in newly constructed cottages at the facility.

With a long-term population of more than 600 in view for Beatrice, Burrows said, it will be necessary to either renovate and air condition some existing facilitites or build new cottages for the residents.

Some $3.8 million in federal medicaid funds for the institution are in jeopardy if new construction or renovation is not approved, Griepentrog said.

The institution now has only 286 accreditable beds, he said. Thirty-two more can reach required standards with minor renovations.

650 Need Renovation

That leaves housing for 650 in need of extensive renovation, he said.

The committee held the bill, LB829, for later action.

Also held were two proposals sponsored by Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood.

LB927 would appropriate $750,000 to acquire the defunct John F. Kennedy College campus at Wahoo for use as a state veterans home.

LB798 would appropriate $165,000 to contract with Cornell University and the University of Pennsylvania to educate about 10 Nebraska students in veterinary medicine.

Nebraska now pays almost $390,000 to six other institutions to provide an education for 81 students at their colleges of veterinary medicine.

With Schmit's bill, he said, slots for new students in 1976-77 could be increased from about 30 to about 40.

Measure Lets Funeral Director Remove Eyes

The Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee Tuesday voted approval to a bill allowing funeral directors to remove the eyes of dead persons who had agreed to make anatomical donations.

Currently, only physicians can extract the eye from a dead body for transplant.

The bill, LB764, introduced by Utica Sen. Douglas Bereuter, also eliminates the next of kin's right to revoke a donor's permission to give eyes and kidneys.

Funeral directors would have to complete a course in eye removal and be certified before they could perform the operation.

The committee took no action on a bill allowing persons to indicate on their drivers license whether they wish to be donors of organs.

The committee wanted to check on the wording of the bill, LB734, before sending it to the floor.

The committee also approved Kearney Sen. Ron Cope's LB742 to exempt recreational vehicles manufactured in Nebraska to be sold out of state from inspection fees.

Amendment Is Attached To Bicycle Reflector Bill

The Legislature adopted an amendment to a bill Tuesday that would require retailers to put reflectors in the spokes of new bibycles, but would remove penalty provisions for riders who have no reflectors on their bikes.

Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner's amendment was adopted on a vote of 22-15. The amendment was added to Newman Grove Sen. Tom Kennedy's LB628, which would have repealed the state's current bicycle reflector law. The Legislature adjourned for the day without giving the bill first round approval.

At one point in the debate, Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett offered an amendment which would have required pedestrians crossing streets to wear helmets equipped with a rotating warning light. He withdrew the amendment before it came to a vote.

"I took quite a lot of heat over the bill we passed last year," said Alliance Sen. Leslie Stull, suggesting that the law be repealed.

The current law, which went into effect Jan. 1, requires bike riders to have special reflective tires.

Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh said it was strange that the Legislature wanted to require bicycles to have reflectors but did not require brakes. "I think we are trying to sell reflectors," Cavanaugh said.

Bill Gives Board Flexibility To Vary State Tax Cushion

By The Associated Press

The Legislature passed a bill Tuesday that is designed to allow some flexibility in the setting of state tax rates, with most "aye" votes cast in hopes of holding down taxes.

State senators passed LB651 by a 33-15 vote, giving the State Board of Equalization and Assessment authority to set the tax overlevy as low as 3% or as high as 7%.

If Gov. J. James Exon signs the measure, the flexible overlevy system will be in effect when the Board of Equalization meets this spring and again next fall to deal with tax rates.

The overlevy is designed to provide a cushion in the state treasury, though it is neither a required reserve nor a minimum balance.

It is actually an excess tax levy added to the amount called for in the state's annual budget.

Had the flexible overlevy been in effect when the Board of Equalization met last November, the low of 3% would have required an excess of $11 million in revenue while the high of 7% would have required an excess of $27 million.

At that time, due to action in the special legislative session, the floating overlevy was 2-3% and the board chose 2%, for an excess tax levy totaling almost $8 million in revenue.

Before last year's special session action, the overlevy was 5%.

State tax rates for 1976 are 2.5% on sales and 15% of the federal liability on income.

Because each percentage point of income tax raises about $10 million, the overlevy could make a difference in the income tax rate.

Because the state income and sales taxes must raise approximately equal amounts, an income tax in the 16 to 17% range could also trigger a sales tax increase to 3%.

Though many senators voted for LB651 in hopes of avoiding such increases due to a high overlevy while still hoping to provide some cash flow cushion, Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner was not with them.

Warner told his colleagues during earlier floor debate that the overlevy doesn't determine tax rate levels, but legislative appropriations do.

Omaha Teachers' Pensions Are Subject Of Late Entry

State senators Tuesday allowed introduction of a bill designed to increase pension benefits of Omaha teachers 20%.

Legislators voted 31-0 to allow late introduction of LB994, which would require $93,000 annually from teachers in contributions and the same amount from the Omaha school system.

Teachers would contribute an additional .15% on salary up to $7,800 and .25% on higher amounts of annual pay.

Omaha Sen. Glenn Goodrich said although the bill would cost the state nothing, it is necessary because state statutes govern retirement systems.

Senators also approved introduction of a bill specifying that the University of Nebraska is allowed to have a college of fine arts. Through an error, reference to the college was omitted from current legislation.

The bill, LB995, was introduced on a 32-0 vote under sponsorship of the Education Committee.

Soil Survey Aid Measures Pass

The Legislature Tuesday passed bills to speed up soil surveys.

Under LB180A and LB180, passed on votes of 36-8, the Legislature would give $65,715 in state funds to aid in federal soil survey programs. The intent of Speaker Jules Burbach's bills is to complete the soil surveys in Nebraska in about a dozen years. The surveys are used for determining property taxes and for other purposes.

Market's Gain Slight

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market struggled to a slight gain Tuesday against a steady current of profit taking.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, after showing a mild loss for most of the day, managed to close up 1.26 at 972.61.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 9-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume climbed to 34.08 million shares, the 8th largest total on record at the exchange. On Monday turnover fell to an even 24 million shares in activity curtailed by a winter storm in the New York area.

Brokers said the market was drawing support from a continued flow of bright fourth quarter corporate earnings reports.

A Wall Street Journal survey published Tuesday morning noted that corporate profits had shown their first year-to-year gain of 1975 in the fourth quarter, raising hopes for a strong showing this year.

A restraining influence cited by analysts was the leveling off of some key interest rates in the past few days.

Wall Streeters pointed out that some traders were continuing to cash in profits on the belief that stock prices were due for a near term period of retrenchment.

Most Futures End With Gains

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures wallowed in declining ranges through most of the Chicago Board of trade session Tuesday, but improved in the closing minutes and most ended with gains.

Soybeans were up 4½ cents, wheat 1 cent, while corn lost about 1 cent and oats were fractionally irregular. Meal and oil prices were little changed after the rally.

Hog, Cattle Prices Up

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A short run, partially caused by sloppy road conditions, sent hog prices higher on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday morning, while cattle also made some modest gains.

The hog run was estimated at about 2,500 head. Barrows and gilts saw active trade.

There were about 5,000 cattle and calves on offer. Steers and heifers trended firm to 50-cents higher in fairly active trade.

Omaha

Martin Estate Assets May Not Cover Claims

The estate of philanthropist and businessman Bennett S. Martin may not have sufficient assets to pay all the claims, according to court testimony presented Tuesday.

"Investigation and analysis of the principal assets of the estate . . . indicated that the stock of said corporations held by the estate do not have the value previously indicated, and there could be insufficient assets to pay all the claims," reads a statement filed by First National Bank & Trust of Lincoln.

The bank asked that it be allowed to withdraw as administrator of the estate on the grounds of conflict of interest.

The bank also has claims against the estate and "the interests of one or more of the beneficiaries are adverse to the interest of the bank," the statement said.

Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum granted the request Tuesday and appointed attorney Sidney Sweet as administrator.

Sweet, attorney for the estate, said the total value of the estate and the total amount of claims pending against it are unknown.

A statement filed by the bank indicate that claims totaling more than $1,346,000 were originally filed against the estate

In addition a claim for more than $1 million was filed after the filing deadline by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

In the contingency claim the company contends that Martin guaranteed $1,668,075 on a more than $3 million mortgage note held by Metropolitan for the Hilton Hotel property.

The guarantee payment would take effect only if the mortgage payments were in default.

This claim is still pending in county probate court.

Martin, who died last year, was elected to the City Council in 1955 and was appointed mayor 14 months later. He was elected mayor in 1957 and served a two-year term

He contributed to many public improvements in Lincoln including the Bennet Martin Library, the YMCA and YWCA, the Children's Zoo, the Junior Golf Course and Clark Jerry Memorial Manor.

He died in January 1975, at age 70

Court Asked To Clear Up Hotel Agreement

A local businessman has asked the court to interpret an agreement relating to the Hilton Hotel in a suit filed Tuesday in Lancaster County District Cout.

Wayne Kingery, vice president and secretary of Kingery Construction Company, has filed the suit aginst Balcor Realty Investors LTD-74, owners of the Hilton Hotel, and Bennett T. Martin and Dorothy B. Martin.

The guarantee agreement stems from the sale of the Hilton Hotel property to Balcor Realty.

When former owners of the Hilton, H-H Inc., sold the property to Balcor Realty, the corporation members, including Kingery and the Martins, signed an agreement guaranteeing Balcor Realty $190,000 annual cash flow from the hotel for two years, according to the suit.

Balcor Realty has demanded $190,288.19 for 1975 under the guarantee agreement, according to the suit.

Kingery contends in the suit that certain figures used by Balcor Realty and interpretations of the guarantee agreement are erroneous and illegal

Specifically he alleges that the expenditures by the Hilton Hotel Corp, which manages the hotel, were grossly in excess of the submitted budget, particularly for general administration, advertising, business promotion, repairs and maintenance

The suit also alleges that the Hilton Hotel Corp did not conduct proper management or supervision during the year

In addition, Kingery contends in the suit that he has no obligation for any of the money owed under the guarantee agreement because of a later indemnity agreement, signed by the Martins.

In this agreement, the Martins agreed to assume any liability for the guarantee as part of the payment for construction work by Kingery Construction Company, according to the suit

The suit alleges that the Martins are the ultimate parties responsible for the guarantee obligation.

Status Of Women Board Will Meet

The Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women will meet Feb. 25, it was announced Monday.

The agenda for the meeting includes approval of a new vice chairman.

In addition, Connie Clark, public information director for the Lincoln Council on Alocholism and Drugs, will speak to the commission

The meeting will be held at the Governor's Mansion.

Cause Of Blaze In Wahoo Still Being Sought

Lincoln Star Special

Wahoo — An investigator from the state fire marshal's office Tuesday continued to seek the cause of a blaze destroying a building in the business district Monday night

The large wooden building was a total loss, according to E H. Patzloff of the Wahoo Police Department and a member of the city's volunteer fire department.

Owned by Douglas Simonson of Wahoo, the building housed the Ballard Machine Shop and a storage area for Helstar Corp In addition, Simonson was in the process of opening an antique and floral shop on one side of the building

Simonson and his brother, Joe, were working in the building when the fire was discovered

Wahoo firemen, aided by firefighters from Mead, were able to keep the flames from spreading to nearby buildings

Police Investigating $600 Stereo Theft

Lincoln police are investigating the theft of more than $600 worth of stereo equipment and miscellaneous items from an apartment occupied by Duane E Lutje, 33, at 2765 W

Lutje told police that among the items taken early Monday were a Sony reel-to-reel tape player, amplifier, two speakers, several tapes, a brown billfold containing a driver's license, Bankamericard and cash; and five cans of beer

Firm To Manage LTS 'Good Deal'

A proposal to hire a management firm to run the Lincoln Transportation System seems to be on the right road as far as the City Council is concerned

Council members indicated Tuesday they will approve an $83,000 a year contract with ATE Management and Services Co of Cincinnati

Federal funds probably will pay for half the management fee, while state funds may be available to pay another fourth of the $83,000.

With other governmental agencies picking up three-fourth's the cost, Councilman Max Denney said, "This sounds like a good deal to me."

3-Year Term Proposed

Under the proposed agreement, the city would hire the ATE firm for three years. The company operates bus companies in 27 cities, including Kansas City, Baltimore and Minneapolis-St. Paul

Discussion of the contract came during a meeting with ATE senior vice president Housten Ismael and ATE associate David Hines No official action was taken, but the lawmakers hinted they will officially approve the contract in several weeks

Ismael said it would only take several weeks after that contract approval for ATE to send in a manager and planner

For the monthly $6,716 check, the company would supervise transportation planning and operations, equipment selection, routes, schedules, fare structures, budgeting, employe training and labor relations.

Board Favors Contract

The LTS Advisory Board recommended in January that the city approve the contract The LTS Board said it has been unable to find a qualified applicant to fill the vacant manager's position Former LTS manager Dick Frank resigned in September to take another job.

Lack of trained personnel to run bus systems is a nationwide problem, Denney said, which he said is one reason why management companies have become successful The ATE company has been in business since 1971.

When Mayor Helen Boosalis asked if the council had any reservations about hiring the company, Denney replied, "What's our choice? We're in a corner and can't get out."

Heritage League Aids Blood Bank

The Heritage League will present an $1,800 check Thursday to the Community Blood Bank for the purchase of a blood storage refrigerator

The check represents proceeds from ticket sales for the league's Holiday of Trees which was seen by approximately 1,500 people last December

Market's Gain Slight

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market struggled to a slight gain Tuesday against a steady current of profit taking

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, after showing a mild loss for most of the day, managed to close up 1.26 at 972 61.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 9-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues

Big Board volume climbed to 34 08 million shares, the 8th largest total on record at the exchange On Monday turnover fell to an even 24 million shares in activity curtailed by a winter storm in the New York area

Brokers said the market was drawing support from a continued flow of bright fourth quarter corporate earnings reports.

A Wall Street Journal survey published Tuesday morning noted that corporate profits had shown their first year-to-year gain of 1975 in the fourth quarter, raising hopes for a strong showing this year

A restraining influence cited by analysts was the leveling off of some key interest rates in the past few days

Wall Streeters pointed out that some traders were continuing to cash in profits on the belief that stock prices were due for a near term period of retrenchment.

Most Futures End With Gains

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures wallowed in declining ranges through most of the Chicago Board of trade session Tuesday, but improved in the closing minutes and most ended with gains.

Soybeans were up 4½ cents, wheat 1 cent, while corn lost about 1 cent and oats were fractionally irregular Meal and oil prices were little changed after the rally

Hog, Cattle Prices Up

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A short run, partially caused by sloppy road conditions, sent hog prices higher on the Omaha livestock market Tuesday morning, while cattle also made some modest gains.

The hog run was estimated at about 2,500 head. Barrows and gilts saw active trade.

There were about 5,000 cattle and calves on offer. Steers and heifers trended firm to 50-cents higher in fairly active trade.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Wednesday, February 4, 1976

For secret or detective work, look to Scorpio. For comedy quips, pick Gemini. For staunch determination, it is Taurus. For party spirit, it is Leo and for a seance it is Pisces. For travel talk, it is Sagittarius and for palm readings ask Aquarius. For an invention, go to Aries. For souffle, select Cancer. For removing lint, request Virgo. For a musical interval, relax with Libra. For steadfastness, it is Capricorn. Where have I erred?

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Flex muscles — also exercise intellectual curiosity. Ask questions; take initiative in making new contacts. Communication with professional superior improves. You get across major points. You are due for surprise — of pleasant variety. Views are vindicated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get green light where advertising, publishing are concerned. You bridge gaps — your philosophical concepts are sought, advocated. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio individuals could figure prominently. You will get a look behind the scenes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on friendship which "intensifies." Emotions take over — logic could bow out. Heart rules head — for now. Evaluate as much as possible. You may be in rare position of having a choice. Know it and realize future happiness could be at stake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Legal process will turn in your favor. Patience, combined with keen observation, could become valuable, twin allies. Face issues as they exist — get point of view across in quiet, subtle manner. Family situation improves. Taurus, Libra persons may be in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message for valid hint. See places and people as they are, not merely as you might idealize them. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. Accent is on long-range planning, the mapping of a campaign to win friends, allies, customers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Legal aspects of a relationship could be spotlighted. There are involvements, some complications and a stirring of creative juices. Become familiar with costs, regulations, tax and license requirements.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be willing to test the waters — don't take cold plunge. Partner, co-operative effort, public relations — all could play a role during this period. Aries, Leo and another Libran figure prominently. Don't force, rush, push or chide. Let others show their hands, reveal their plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nove. 21): You get proverbial second chance — you can stress greater independence, creativity. Money improvement indicated — means what appeared a financial debacle could backfire in your favor. Know it and don't lose heat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good Moon aspect coincides with creativity, children and change — ability to speculate without being extravagant. Aquarian is in picture. You gain by sharing knowledge — you learn by teaching.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What had been delayed, misplaced, gets going and is discovered. You get opportunity to be more flexible, to travel. Gemini, Sagittarius are in picture. You transform the frivolous into something meaningful and constructive. You'll receive credit, too!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What was a restrictive influence is understood, coped with, removed. You actually knock down blocks for purpose of rebuilding. Accent on movement, ideas, contacts, renewed communication with relative who "strayed."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money, hopes and wishes combine — this will be an invigorating, hopeful, challenging time. People, it seems, now feel free to try to articulate your dreams. Strangely, those who should know better attempt to direct your fantasies. Very unusual!

IF FEB. 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are frank, honest, candid and yet you have a subtle time table enabling you to know when to pull out the stops, when to lie low. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. June could be your most significant month of 1976. You will be more secure and you could be in business for yourself.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

12 State Preppers Sign Big 8 Letters For Big Red

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Twelve Nebraska high school seniors Tuesday signed Big Eight Conference letters of intent to enroll at the University of Nebraska on football scholarships next fall.

Coach Tom Osborne and most other members of the Cornhusker football staff were scattered across the country signing out-of-state prospects, but most of their names aren't expected to be announced until Feb. 18, which is the date for the signing of the national letter of intent.

Prospects signing the Big Eight tender merely indicate that if they play in the conference it will be at Nebraska. The national letter binds an athlete to the school with which he signs.

It is expected that three scholarships of the 30 limit imposed by the NCAA will be saved to be awarded after spring practice to walkons. Two tenders were given to junior college players who have enrolled for the second semester at Nebraska.

That leaves only 13 tenders for out-of-state prospects, or possibly to two other Nebraskans who were on the Huskers' most-wanted recruiting list.

Heading the list of signees Tuesday was Kerry Weinmaster, a Scholastic Magazine high school All-American defensive tackle from North Platte.

Weinmaster was the first in-state athlete to be offered an NU scholarship last October. A prep wrestler as well as a footballer, Weinmaster now weighs 190 pounds, but he said Osborne has asked him to gain 21 pounds. It's possible his 4.8 speed in the 40-yard dash and his agility will enable him to be a candidate for the all-important middle guard position on defense.

Weinmaster is one of six "Super" all-state selections of the Sunday Journal & Star to sign.

The others are linebacker Joe Adams of Bellevue, defensive end Kim Baker of York, offensive tackle Mike Bruce of Omaha Burke, tight end John Fischer of Columbus Scotus, and offensive guard Dave O'Doherty of Omaha Westside.

Fischer and Dan Pensick of Columbus High are expected to continue the tradition of that city in furnishing Nebraska outstanding football players.

Adams and quarterback Brad Humphrey are products of Bellevue, another producer of Husker talent over the years. Humphrey was all-Metro and made some of the all-state teams.

The recruiting list included one player from a Class D school — tackle Tom Matthies, a 6-7, 250-pounder from Oxford, a Journal-Star Class D all-state selection.

In addition to Fischer, a second Class B star signed is fullback Jeff Quinn of Ord, who will bid to replace another small-school player who became a Husker star — Tony Davis of Tecumseh.

Quinn doesn't weigh as much as Davis (190 to 214), but he's taller (6-3 to 5-11).

York High School, which finished with an 8-2 record and ranked seventh in Class B in Randy York's final prep ratings, produced two future Huskers in the previously mentioned Baker and fullback-defensive end Brian Hedrick.

The other Nebraskan signed was back Frank Taylor, all-Metro selection from Omaha North.

The junior college signees previously announced were Mark Du Fresne from Ventura JC in California, and defensive back Rene Anderson from El Camino JC, also in California.

Both DuFresne and Anderson were first-unit all-star selections by the California Community College Coaches Association.

Sports Center Availability Questionable

By DAVE SITTLER

Speculation continued Tuesday concerning the availability of the new Nebraska sports center for next month's state high school basketball tournament.

A story appearing in last Sunday's Journal and Star reported the chances of holding the March 11-13 event in the new complex appeared certain if the floor were finished.

Tempering that optimism is the fact that several other details must be worked out and accomplished, according to assistant Nebraska athletic director Jim Ross, who will be in charge of running the new facility.

"We want to stress that if there is any way we can get in there for the state tournament we will," Ross said. "We want to get in there for the sake of the high school kids and the high school athletic association.

"But there are a lot of intangibles, little things which must be worked out. At this point we can't say one way or the other if it will be open."

No Lockers

As an exemple of some of the smaller details the public might overlook in its exhuberance to get into the new building, Ross pointed out that "the lockers have not been installed yet. And the floor will have to be marked."

Probably the biggest hurdle the University must clear before opening the new facility lies in the area of securing the proper work force to handle the new complex.

Because the tournament also would require use of the Nebraska Coliseum, the University would have to add a large contingent of personnel to operate both buildings at the same time.

Those positions would include a proper security force, ticket takers, a janitorial staff and concession workers. The University also needs time to train the additional staff members.

"From the standpoint of the floor, the chances of having the tournament in the new place look good," Ross said. "The floor laying crew is doing a very good job. They are excellent workers. But there are other things to consider."

Ross said he wants to meet Friday with Les Chamberlin, executive secretary of the Nebraska Schools Activities Assn. (NSAA); Ron Wright, assistant comptroller at the University of Nebraska, and Harley Schrader, director of physical plants at the University.

Set a Date

"I'd like to sit down and put everything on the table and see where we stand," Ross said. "And I would like to set a date when we could meet to make a final decision on whether the building will be ready for the state tournament."

Ross envisions the final decision will be made between 10 days and two weeks before the tournament.

"The NSAA has to know in advance and so does the ticket office," Ross said. "If we can organize the meeting Friday, I hope to agree on a date at that time."

There had been some speculation the parking areas would be inadequate at this time if the tournament was held in the new 15,000-seat sports center. That is not the case.

On University source said there is parking available now for more than 4,000 cars within a couple blocks of the facility.

It also was pointed out there are a large number of on-street parking stalls on the State Fairgrounds where the building is being constructed. The area used for the midway during the fair is also paved and available.

The only parking not completed are two, 150-stall lots which would be used only by players, coaches and University officials. They are not open to the public.

Two Scoreboards

While it is true the new scoreboard would not be ready for the state tournament, the Fair-Play Company which is constructing the scoreboard, has agreed to supply two temporary clocks for the prep tournament.

Although it appears the public address system would be finished in time, a portable system would be available to adequately handle the tournament.

Pointing out that he would have a better idea in two weeks as to the availability of the sports center, Ross emphasized, "We know that state tournament is a big event for the kids in the state. And they would like to play in the new place.

"But at this point there just is no answer whether the building will be ready or not."

Nebraska Wesleyan's Kim Veerhusen (light uniform) and Concordia's Brian Mueller (13) go for a loose ball. NWU won the NIAC game 101-68 Tuesday night.

Balanced Attack Peps NWU

By KEN HAMBLETON
State College Writer

When you lose 12 of your first 13 games you have to hope that something is going to change and Nebraska Wesleyan basketball coach Irv Peterson is no different.

Peterson had said following the Plainsmens' worst non-conference season ever, that "the beginning of the league games will be a new season for us."

The Plainsmen proved Peterson correct once again as they throttled Concordia 101-68 Tuesday night in Taylor Gym to even NWU's conference record at 3-3.

Pressure defense and balanced scoring, with six Wesleyan players hitting double figures, helped the Plainsmen gain an early 20-11 lead over the Bulldogs and coast to the victory.

Junior guard Angelo Lilly led NWU with 18 points while Larry Abel, Kim Veerhusen and center Blake Butler added 14 each. Reserve guard Bob Otto added 11 points and reserve forward Dwight Peterson tallied 10 for the Plainsmen.

Lilly hit five of seven first half field goals and Peterson connected on four of five to pace Wesleyan to a 43-21 halftime lead.

"We took good shots throughout the game and our pressure defense caused a lot of turnovers," said Peterson referring to Concordia's 14 first half errors. NWU also hit on 17 of 36 field goals while the Bulldogs connected on 10 of 34 attempts in the first half.

Concordia's Norm Roth staged a rally of his own in the scoring 20 of his game high 24 points, hitting 10 of 15 shots in the second half. But the Plainsmen more than met the challenge hitting 15 of 18 field goals during a ten minute stretch in the second half, from 13:12 to 6:35 when Peterson emptied the bench, with the score 81-53 in Wesleyan's favor.

Junior center Blake Butler paced NWU with 15 rebounds while Otto and guard Bob Knollenberg, playing on a sprained ankle, grabbed seven caroms each. The Plainsmen outrebounded Concordia 63-50 for the game.

"We moved on offense like we should," said Peterson, "and it paid off because we were able to work the ball in for the high percentage shot."

Wesleyan downed the Bulldogs 106-85 at Seward earlier this year. Since then, Concordia has lost four straight games to give the Bulldogs a 1-5 NIAC conference mark and a 2-19 overall record.

"I don't know what it is but we always seem to play our best against Concordia," said Peterson, whose teams have beaten the Bulldogs eight times in a row.

"Starting the conference season strong has got to have made a difference in our attitude because we've played five good games in a row," Peterson added. "We came within five of Doane and lost a game we shouldn't have in overtime to Dana but we played well."

"I think we'll be able to give the rest of the teams in the conference a run for the money now," Peterson said.

Joe Cipriano may never forget last year's Kansas game in Lincoln.

"We had a five-point lead with 40 seconds left and we've got the ball. I'll never forget that game as long as I live," said the Nebraska basketball coach of last year's 79-77 double overtime loss to the Jayhawks.

That was just one of a series of "tough closses" to the Jayhawks that has plagued Cipriano the past two years. Overall, counting this season's 69-66 loss to KU in the Kansas City preseason tournament, Nebraska has lost seven straight to KU.

But, with Wednesday's 7:35 p.m. NU Coliseum event with KU, Cipriano and his Huskers can:

—stop the seven-game losing streak.

—solidify their second-place standing in the Big Eight.

—possibly move into a tie with undefeated Missouri if the Tigers stumble at home against Kansas State.

Nebraska, with a 4-1 league mark, would fall into a second-place tie with KU, 3-2 in league play, if the Kansans win.

"We don't try to pay any attention to the past games. All games are different," Cipriano noted. "We just try to forget as much as possible about losses.

"I think a lot of those losses had to do with all the all-Americans they had sitting on their bench," he explained. "They've been champions for so long and they've had so many great players over the years that it's been hard to beat them.

"They've also had a lot of great breaks go for them," Cipriano surmised. "But these things go in streaks. Before they won seven straight, we won three straight."

Cipriano also termed the NU-KU rivalry as perhaps Nebraska's best.

"We always try so hard to beat them. We've had some good leads on them, but we just haven't been able to keep them," he said.

If Nebraska is to stop the Jayhawk string, it must decelerate the towering KU frontline of center Paul Mokeski (7-0), and forwards Norm Cook (6-9) and Ken Koenings (6-10). Forward Herb Nobles (6-7) is also expected to see considerable action, perhaps as a starter.

Cook, undoubtedly, is the key performer for coach Ted Owens' Jayhawks. The Big Eight's freshman-of-the-year two seasons ago, he was instrumental in the United States going undefeated in last summer's Pan American basketball tournament in Mexico City.

He is averaging almost 15 points-per-game.

After losing 62-57 to Missouri last Saturday, Nebraska can not realistically expect to stay in the title race with a second straight loss.

"That's why this game is so important for us," Cipriano said.

Basketball Luncheon

Doors to the Kansas-Nebraska game Wednesday at the NU Coliseum will open at 4:45 p.m.

Sellout Expected

A sellout crowd of more than 8,000 fans is expected for Wednesday's game. It will be the third straight home sellout.

Other Games

Other Big Eight games Wednesday include Kansas State at Missouri, Iowa State at Oklahoma and Colorado at Oklahoma State.

Bowlers Change Scenario For Tournament's Success

By BOB MOYER

Jennie Layton and Melba McDowell have experienced the frustration of the city bowling tournament in previous years, but this time around they've got a new sensation — the thrill of success.

Layton and McDowell fired 1077 to take the scratch lead in women's Class B doubles at Two Eyed Jacks in Emerald on Monday.

"You always want to bowl well in the tourney," said Layton, "but sometimes you don't. You feel like you're a better bowler, but what happens?

"That's why we're so pleased we did well this time," she added. "It's really a good feeling to know you had a challenge and got good results."

The secret to Layton and McDowells's success was both keglers shooting well. Layton had 523 on a 148 average and McDowell a 554 on a 141 average.

"It was really surprising to us," said McDowell. "We just got together in doubles."

"Usually one bowler is up and the other down in doubles," added Layton. "That's why it was so pleasing we both hit at the same time."

McDowell said she didn't even realize she had the lead until she saw it in the newspaper. "I never look at my score while I'm bowling because it makes me too nervous," she said. "I don't know whether it will hold up but we're just pleased we did well."

Layton, with the higher average, said she "felt like I should have bowled better.

"I thought I should have done as well as Melba but she was getting more strikes than I was," said Layton. "She was striking, so I just concentrated on getting my spares."

McDowell said their was no inkling they might do well in the tournament.

"We drove to the bowling alley together," McDowell said. "We didn't even talk about the tourney very much. We don't bowl at Emerald so we really didn't know what to expect."

The unfamiliarity with the lanes was eased, according to Layton, by their similarity to Hollywood, where the two women normally bowl.

"We had about the same type of shot as we're used to," she said. "But when we got to singles, the lanes had changed enough that we needed to adjust and we didn't get the job done soon enough."

Meanwhile there were no changes among the leaders in the tourney Tuesday except in the women's team event at Parkway.

In Class B team, Little Bo East took over the scratch lead with a 2267 total. Georgia Runge led the way with a 498 series and a 220 game.

Other team members included Betty Thorn (467), Debbie Wilkins (447), Peggy Schmidt (428) and Sheri Honfelt (427).

Stan's Music, like Little Bo East a Plaza league team, continued to lead Class A scratch with 2528.

Members of the Stan's Music team and their series were Mary Lou Putnam (518), Yvonne Pettit (511), Kay Fraley (503), Bonnie Kohlhof (500) and Vie Grosenbach (496).

Men's city bowling secretary Bernie Kossek reported that roughly midway through the tourney low-in-the-money scores were running between 1170-1180 for doubles, 600-610 for singles and 2980-3000 for teams. Low-in-the-money figures are tentative however, and could fluctuate considerably before the end of the tournament.

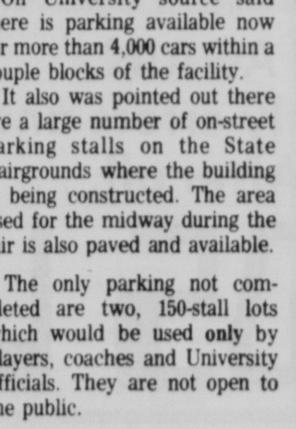
NU's Holder Learns To Make Adjustments

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer



Allen Holder
Makes Adjustments

Allen Holder knows how to make adjustments.

"I was all set to go to Dixie Junior College in St. George, Utah," said Nebraska's starting forward.

"But at the last minute, Willie Smith called and talked me into going to Seminole JC in Seminole, Okla.," the 6-3 junior said. "I really wanted to go to a four-year school like Santa Clara, but no four-year school made an offer, so I knew the best thing for me was to go to a junior college.

That was adjustment number one.

Adjustment number two for the former all-stater from Rancho High School in Las Vegas came when he was switched from forward to guard under coach Gene Hawk at Seminole.

"I knew I was too short to be a forward in college, but it was still a change from a position I played in high school," he recalled.

Holder was outstanding at Seminole. He averaged 15 points per game and was the team's leading rebounder with a 10.3 average as the Trojans' top assistman and leading defensive player.

He was a key to the Oklahomans going 27-4 in his first year and 25-10 in his second year. Seminole was regional champion both seasons.

Now came adjustment No. 3.

"My first choice was to go to Oklahoma. Willie tried to get Missouri to recruit me, but they didn't really want me," he said. "The only Big Eight schools that wanted me were Oklahoma and Nebraska. I visited here and liked it. The new fieldhouse had something to do with it and I liked the business college.

"But what really got me to come here was when I had my visit scheduled to go to Oklahoma the coaches weren't there on the only weekend I could go there."

Adjustment No. 4 was making the change from a junior college program to a Big Eight operation.

"From the beginning, conditioning has been the biggest change. At Seminole, it was more open freedom with an enjoyable atmosphere. Here it is more like a business.

"Seminole was a town of 8,000 to 9,000 and I made a lot of friends," he said. "Nebraska has about 20,000 students and the town is so much bigger. I really like it here and I'm happy to be starting."

Holder has started 13 of Nebraska's 18 games. He is averaging 5.7 points per game and has been the team's leading rebounder in three of the last six games.

Perhaps the strongest influence in Holder's basketball career has been Willie Smith. Smith, the leading scorer on the Missouri Tigers, is also from Las Vegas.

Holder played against Smith in high school and was his teammate at Seminole. The two have played on the same summer league basketball team the past three years in Las Vegas.

"He's been a big influence on me. I've known him since junior high — maybe even before that . . . He's helped me go through a lot of adjustments," he said.

"He's been like a big brother to me at Seminole. He helped me a whole lot with basketball and off the court," Holder added. "It was kind of strange playing against him (in last Saturday's 62-57 loss to Missouri at the NU Coliseum).

"I'm sure he didn't want to lose to a team that I'm on anymore than I wanted to lose to a team that he's on," he said.

That loss snapped an eight-game Nebraska winning streak. One major factor for that streak, however, was the play of Allen Holder.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Wednesday, February 4, 1976

For secret or detective work, look to Scorpio. For comedy quips, pick Gemini. For staunch determination, it is Taurus. For party spirit, it is Leo and for a seance it is Pisces. For travel talk, it is Sagittarius and for palm readings ask Aquarius. For an invention, go to Aries. For souffle select Cancer. For removing lint, request Virgo. For a musical interval, relax with Libra. For steadfastness, it is Capricorn. Where have I erred?

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Flex muscles — also exercise intellectual curiosity. Ask questions, take initiative in making new contacts. Communication with professional superior improves. You get across major points. You are due for surprise — of pleasant variety. Views are vindicated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get green light where advertising, publishing are concerned. You bridge gaps — your philosophical concepts are sought, advocated. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio individuals could figure prominently. You will get a look behind the scenes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on friendship which intensifies. Emotions take over — logic could bow out. Heart rules head — for now. Evaluate as much as possible. You may be in rare position of having a choice. Know it and realize future happiness could be at stake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Legal process will turn in your favor. Patience combined with keen observation could become valuable "win allies. Face issues as they exist — get point of view across in quiet, subtle manner. Family situation improves. Taurus, Libra persons may be in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message for valid hint. See places and people as they are, not merely as you might idealize them. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. Accent is on long-range planning, the mapping of a campaign to win friends, allies, customers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Legal aspects of a relationship could be spotlighted. There are involvements, some complications and a stirring of creative juices. Become familiar with costs, regulations, tax and license requirements.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be willing to test the waters — don't take cold plunge. Partner, co-operative effort, public relations — all could play a role during this period. Aries, Leo and another Libran figure prominently. Don't force, rush, push or chide. Let others show their hands, reveal their plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get proverbial second chance — you can stress greater independence, creativity. Money improvement indicated — means what appeared a financial debacle could backfire in your favor. Know it and don't lose heat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good Moon aspect coincides with creativity, children and change — ability to speculate without being extravagant. Aquarian is in picture. You gain by sharing knowledge — you learn by teaching.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What had been delayed, misplaced gets going and is discovered. You get opportunity to be more flexible to travel. Gemini, Sagittarius are in picture. You transform the frivolous into something meaningful and constructive. You'll receive credit, too!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What was a restrictive influence is understood, coped with, removed. You actually knock down blocks for purpose of rebuilding. Accent on movement, ideas, contacts, renewed communication with relative who "strayed."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money, hopes and wishes combine — this will be an invigorating, hopeful, challenging time. People, it seems, now feel free to try to articulate your dreams. Strangely, those who should know better attempt to direct your fantasies. Very unusual!

IF FEB. 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are frank, honest, candid and yet you have a subtle time table enabling you to know when to pull out the stops, when to lie low. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. June could be your most significant month of 1976. You will be more secure and you could be in business for yourself.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Veterans To Stock Rosters

Morning Briefing

Football

The NFL Players' Association declared it will offer no legal opposition to a draft of veterans to stock the expansion rosters of the new Tampa Bay and Seattle teams.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the players' union, said the association would not challenge the veterans draft, but that some individuals might.

Parker County district attorney Tom Curtis said Tuesday he has recommended a low bond for Pittsburgh Steeler defensive tackle Ernie Holmes on a cocaine possession charge because he was sure Holmes would appear in court in ordered to do so.

Oakland Raider running back Pete Banaszak had declined an offer to become backfield coach at Southern California because he has designs on playing at least two more years with the Raiders.

Los Angeles owner Carroll Rosenbloom has given a vote of confidence to his head coach Chuck Knox and to his current quarterbacks, while giving Joe Namath the cold shoulder.

Baseball

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, said Tuesday that a settlement between the NBA and its players on several key issues would have no effect on his negotiations with baseball owners on new contract agreements.

Businessman Lester Smith, today, said he will hold a press conference Thursday with American League President Lee MacPhail, to announce an agreement on plans to bring a franchise to Seattle in 1977.

Baseball's officials records committee announced Tuesday they have made several changes in the game's rule structure and also discovered a clerical error that changes Babe Ruth's lifetime runs-batted-in total. His total drops 10, as his league leading 1926 total drops from 155 to 145.

A San Francisco superior court judge took under submission for "two of three weeks" a temporary injunction request that would keep the National League Giants from being sold to a group from Toronto.

Hockey

Goaltender Gerry Cheevers has finally agreed to terms with his old team, the Boston Bruins. The amount of the contract was not released.

12 State Preppers Sign Big 8 Letters For Big Red

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Twelve Nebraska high school seniors Tuesday signed Big Eight Conference letters of intent to enroll at the University of Nebraska on football scholarships next fall.

Coach Tom Osborne and most other members of the Cornhusker football staff were scattered across the country signing out-of-state prospects, but most of their names aren't expected to be announced until Feb. 18, which is the date for the signing of the national letter of intent.

Prospects signing the Big Eight tender merely indicate that if they play in the conference it will be at Nebraska. The national letter binds an athlete to the school with which he signs.

It is expected that three scholarships of the 30 limit imposed by the NCAA will be saved to be awarded after spring practice to walkons. Two tenders were given to junior college players who have enrolled for the second semester at Nebraska.

That leaves only 13 tenders for out-of-state prospects, or possibly to two other Nebraskans who were on the Huskers' most-wanted recruiting list.

Heading the list of signees Tuesday was Kerry Weinmaster, a Scholastic Magazine high school All-American defensive tackle from North Platte.

Weinmaster was the first in-state athlete to be offered an NU scholarship last October. A prep wrestler as well as a footballer, Weinmaster now weighs 190 pounds, but he said Osborne has asked him to gain 21 pounds. It's possible his 4.8 speed in the 40-yard dash and his agility will enable him to be a candidate for the all-important middle guard position on defense.

Weinmaster is one of six "Super" all-state selections of the Sunday Journal & Star to sign

The others are linebacker Joe Adams of Bellevue, defensive end Kim Baker of York, offensive tackle Mike Bruce of Omaha Burke, tight end John Fischer of Columbus Scotus, and offensive guard Dave O'Doherty of Omaha Westside.

Fischer and Dan Pensick of Columbus High are expected to continue the tradition of that city in furnishing Nebraska outstanding football players.

Adams and quarterback Brad Humphrey are products of Bellevue, another producer of Husker talent over the years. Humphrey was all-Metro and made some of the all-state teams.

The recruiting list included one player from a Class D school — tackle Tom Matthies, a 6-7, 250-pounder from Oxford, a Journal-Star Class D all-state selection.

In addition to Fischer, a second Class B star signed is fullback Jeff Quinn of Ord, who will bid to replace another small-school player who became a Husker star — Tony Davis of Tecumseh.

Quinn doesn't weigh as much as Davis (190 to 214), but he's taller (6-3 to 5-11).

York High School, which finished with an 8-2 record and ranked seventh in Class B in Randy York's final prep ratings, produced two future Huskers in the previously mentioned Baker and fullback-defensive end Brian Hedrick.

The other Nebraskan signed was back Frank Taylor, all-Metro selection from Omaha North.

The junior college signees previously announced were Mark Du Fresne from Ventura JC in California, and defensive back Rene Anderson from El Camino JC, also in California.

Both DuFresne and Anderson were first-unit all-star selections by the California Community College Coaches Association.

Sports Center Availability Questionable

By DAVE SITTLER

Speculation continued Tuesday concerning the availability of the new Nebraska sports center for next month's state high school basketball tournament.

A story appearing in last Sunday's Journal and Star reported the chances of holding the March 11-13 event in the new complex appeared certain if the floor were finished.

Tempering that optimism is the fact that several other details must be worked out and accomplished, according to assistant Nebraska athletic director Jim Ross, who will be in charge of running the new facility.

"We want to stress that if there is any way we can get in there for the state tournament we will," Ross said. "We want to get in there for the sake of the high school kids and the high school athletic association.

"But there are a lot of intangibles, little things which must be worked out. At this point we can't say one way or the other if it will be open."

No Lockers

As an exemple of some of the smaller details the public might overlook in its exhuberance to get into the new building, Ross pointed out that "the lockers have not been installed yet. And the floor will have to be marked."

Probably the biggest hurdle the University must clear before opening the new facility lies in the area of securing the proper work force to handle the new complex.

Because the tournament also would require use of the Nebraska Coliseum, the University would have to add a large contingent of personnel to operate both buildings at the same time.

Those positions would include a proper security force, ticket takers, a janitorial staff and concession workers. The University also needs time to train the additional staff members.

"From the standpoint of the floor, the chances of having the tournament in the new place look good," Ross said. "The floor laying crew is doing a very good job. They are excellent workers. But there are other things to consider."

Ross said he wants to meet Friday with Les Chamberlin, executive secretary of the Nebraska Schools Activities Assn. (NSAA); Ron Wright, assistant comptroller at the University of Nebraska, and Harley Schrader, director of physical plants at the University.

Set a Date

"I'd like to sit down and put everything on the table and see where we stand," Ross said. "And I would like to set a date when we could meet to make a final decision on whether the building will be ready for the state tournament."

Ross envisions the final decision will be made between 10 days and two weeks before the tournament.

"The NSAA has to know in advance and so does the ticket office," Ross said. "If we can organize the meeting Friday, I hope to agree on a date at that time."

There had been some speculation the parking areas would be inadequate at this time if the tournament was held in the new 15,000-seat sports center. That is not the case.

On University source said there is parking available now for more than 4,000 cars within a couple blocks of the facility.

It also was pointed out there are a large number of on-street parking stalls on the State Fairgrounds where the building is being constructed. The area used for the midway during the fair is also paved and available.

The only parking not completed are two, 150-stall lots which would be used only by players, coaches and University officials. They are not open to the public.

Two Scoreboards

While it is true the new scoreboard would not be ready for the state tournament, the Fair-Play Company which is constructing the scoreboard, has agreed to supply two temporary clocks for the prep tournament.

Although it appears the public address system would be finished in time, a portable system would be available to adequately handle the tournament.

Pointing out that he would have a better idea in two weeks as to the availability of the sports center, Ross emphasized, "We know that state tournament is a big event for the kids in the state. And they would like to play in the new place.

"But at this point there just is no answer whether the building will be ready or not."

Balanced Attack Peps NWU

By KEN HAMBLETON
State College Writer

When you lose 12 of your first 13 games you have to hope that something is going to change and Nebraska Wesleyan basketball coach Irv Peterson is no different.

Peterson had said following the Plainsmens' worst non-conference season ever, that "the beginning of the league games will be a new season for us."

The Plainsmen proved Peterson correct once again as they throttled Concordia 101-68 Tuesday night in Taylor Gym to even NWU's conference record at 3-3.

Pressure defense and balanced scoring, with six Wesleyan players hitting double figures, helped the Plainsmen gain an early 20-11 lead over the Bulldogs and coast to the victory.

Junior guard Angelo Lilly led NWU with 18 points while Larry Abel, Kim Veerhusen and center Blake Butler added 14 each. Reserve guard Bob Otto added 11 points and reserve forward Dwight Peterson tallied 10 for the Plainsmen.

Lilly hit five of seven first half field goals and Peterson connected on four of five to pace Wesleyan to a 43-21 halftime lead.

"We took good shots throughout the game and our pressure defense caused a lot of turnovers." said Peterson referring to Concordia's 14 first half errors. NWU also hit on 17 of 36 field goals while the Bulldogs connected on 10 of 34 attempts in the first half.

Concordia's Norm Roth staged a rally of his own in the scoring 20 of his game high 24 points, hitting 10 of 15 shots in the second half. But the Plainsmen more than met the challenge hitting 15 of 18 field goals during a ten minute stretch in the second half, from 13:12 to 6:35 when Peterson emptied the bench, with the score 81-53 in Wesleyan's favor.

Junior center Blake Butler paced NWU with 15 rebounds while Otto and guard Bob Knollenberg, playing on a sprained ankle, grabbed seven caroms each. The Plainsmen outrebounded Concordia 63-50 for the game.

"We moved on offense like we should," said Peterson, "and it paid off because we were able to work the ball in for the high percentage shot."

Wesleyan downed the Bulldogs 106-85 at Seward earlier this year. Since then, Concordia has lost four straight games to give the Bulldogs a 1-5 NIAC conference mark and a 2-19 overall record.

"I don't know what it is but we always seem to play our best against Concordia," said Petetson, whose teams have beaten the Bulldogs eight times in a row.

"Starting the conference season strong has got to have made a difference in our attitude because we've played five good games in a row," Peterson added. "We came within five of Doane and lost a game we shouldn't have in overtime to Dana but we played well."

"I think we'll be able to give the rest of the teams in the conference a run for the money now," Peterson said.

Joe Cipriano may never forget last year's Kansas game in Lincoln.

"We had a five-point lead with 40 seconds left and we've got the ball. I'll never forget that game as long as I live," said the Nebraska basketball coach of last year's 79-77 double overtime loss to the Jayhawks.

That was just one of a series of "tough closses" to the Jayhawks that has plagued Cipriano the past two years. Overall, counting this season's 69-66 loss to KU in the Kansas City preseason tournament, Nebraska has lost seven straight to KU.

But, with Wednesday's 7:35 p.m. NU Coliseum event with KU, Cipriano and his Huskers can:

—stop the seven-game losing streak.

—solidify their second-place standing in the Big Eight.

—possibly move into a tie with undefeated Missouri if the Tigers stumble at home against Kansas State.

Nebraska, with a 4-1 league mark, would fall into a second-place tie with KU, 3-2 in league play, if the Kansans win.

"We don't try to pay any attention to the past games. All games are different," Cipriano noted. "We just try to forget as much as possible about losses.

"I think a lot of those losses had to do with all the all-Americans they had sitting on their bench," he explained "They've been champions for so long and they've had so many great players over the years that it's been hard to beat them

"They've also had a lot of great breaks go for them," Cipriano surmised. "But these things go in streaks. Before they won seven straight, we won three straight."

Cipriano also termed the NU-KU rivalry as perhaps Nebraska's best

"We always try so hard to beat them. We've had some good leads on them, but we just haven't been able to keep them," he said

If Nebraska is to stop the Jayhawk string, it must decelerate the towering KU frontline of center Paul Mokeski (7-0), and forwards Norm Cook (6-9) and Ken Koenings (6-10). Forward Herb Nobles (6-7) is also expected to see considerable action, perhaps as a starter

Cook, undoubtedly, is the key performer for coach Ted Owens' Jayhawks. The Big Eight's freshman-of-the-year two seasons ago, he was instrumental in the United States going undefeated in last summer's Pan American basketball tournament in Mexico City.

He is averaging almost 15 points-per-game.

After losing 62-57 to Missouri last Saturday, Nebraska can not realistically expect to stay in the title race with a second straight loss.

"That's why this game is so important for us," Cipriano said.

Basketball Luncheon

Doors to the Kansas-Nebraska game Wednesday at the NU Coliseum will open at 4 45 p.m.

Sellout Expected

A sellout crowd of more than 8,000 fans is expected for Wednesday's game. It will be the third straight home sellout

Other Games

Other Big Eight games Wednesday include Kansas State at Missouri, Iowa State at Oklahoma and Colorado at Oklahoma State

Bowlers Change Scenario For Tournament's Success

By BOB MOYER

Jennie Layton and Melba McDowell have experienced the frustration of the city bowling tournament in previous years, but this time around they've got a new sensation — the thrill of success.

Layton and McDowell fired 1077 to take the scratch lead in women's Class B doubles at Two Eyed Jacks in Emerald on Monday.

"You always want to bowl well in the tourney," said Layton, "but sometimes you don't. You feel like you're a better bowler, but what happens?

"That's why we're so pleased we did well this time," she added. "It's really a good feeling to know you had a challenge and got good results."

The secret to Layton and McDowells's success was both keglers shooting well. Layton had 523 on a 148 average and McDowell a 554 on a 141 average.

"It was really surprising to us," said McDowell. "We just got together in doubles."

"Usually one bowler is up and the other down in doubles," added Layton. "That's why it was so pleasing we both hit at the same time."

McDowell said she didn't even realize she had the lead until she saw it in the newspaper. "I never look at my score while I'm bowling because it makes me too nervous," she said "I don't know whether it will hold up but we're just pleased we did well."

Layton, with the higher average, said she "felt like I should have bowled better.

"I thought I should have done as well as Melba but she was getting more strikes than I was," said Layton. "She was striking, so I just concentrated on getting my spares."

McDowell said their was no inkling they might do well in the tournament.

"We drove to the bowling alley together," McDowell said. "We didn't even talk about the tourney very much. We don't bowl at Emerald so we really didn't know what to expect."

The unfamiliarity with the lanes was eased, according to Layton, by their similarity to Hollywood, where the two women normally bowl.

"We had about the same type of shot as we're used to," she said. "But when we got to singles, the lanes had changed enough that we needed to adjust and we didn't get the job done soon enough."

Meanwhile there were no changes among the leaders in the tourney Tuesday except in the women's team event at Parkway

In Class B team, Little Bo East took over the scratch lead with a 2267 total. Georgia Runge led the way with a 498 series and a 220 game.

Other team members included Betty Thorn (467), Debbie Wilkins (447), Peggy Schmidt (428) and Sheri Honfelt (427).

Stan's Music, like Little Bo East a Plaza league team, continued to lead Class A scratch with 2528.

Members of the Stan's Music team and their series were Mary Lou Putnam (518), Yvonne Pettit (511), Kay Fraley (503), Bonnie Kohlhof (500) and Vie Grosenbach (496).

Men's city bowling secretary Bernie Kossek reported that roughly midway through the tourney low-in-the-money scores were running between 1170-1180 for doubles, 600-610 for singles and 2980-3000 for teams. Low-in-the-money figures are tentative however, and could fluctuate considerably before the end of the tournament.

NU's Holder Learns To Make Adjustments

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Allen Holder knows how to make adjustments.

"I was all set to go to Dixie Junior College in St. George, Utah," said Nebraska's starting forward.

"But at the last minute, Willie Smith called and talked me into going to Seminole JC in Seminole, Okla.," the 6-3 junior said. "I really wanted to go to a four-year school like Santa Clara, but no four-year school made an offer, so I knew the best thing for me was to go to a junior college.

That was adjustment number one.

Adjustment number two for the former all-stater from Rancho High School in Las Vegas came when he was switched from forward to guard under coach Gene Hawk at Seminole.

Allen Holder
Makes Adjustments

"I knew I was too short to be a forward in college, but it was still a change from a position I played in high school," he recalled.

Holder was outstanding at Seminole. He averaged 15 points per game and was the team's leading rebounder with a 10 3 average as the Trojans' top assistman and leading defensive player

He was a key to the Oklahomans going 27-4 in his first year and 25-10 in his second year Seminole was regional champion both seasons.

Now came adjustment No 3

"My first choice was to go to Oklahoma Willie tried to get Missouri to recruit me but they didn't really want me," he said "The only Big Eight schools that wanted me were Oklahoma and Nebraska I visited here and liked it The new fieldhouse had something to do with it and I liked the business college

"But what really got me to come here was when I had my visit scheduled to go to Oklahoma the coaches weren't there on the only weekend I could go there"

Adjustment No. 4 was making the change from a junior college program to a Big Eight operation

"From the beginning, conditioning has been the biggest change At Seminole, it was more open freedom with an enjoyable atmosphere Here it is more like a business

"Seminole was a town of 8,000 to 9,000 and I made a lot of friends," he said "Nebraska has about 20,000 students and the town is so much bigger. I really like it here and I'm happy to be starting."

Holder has started 13 of Nebraska's 18 games. He is averaging 5 7 points per game and has been the team's leading rebounder in three of the last six games.

Perhaps the strongest influence in Holder's basketball career has been Willie Smith. Smith, the leading scorer on the Missouri Tigers, is also from Las Vegas

Holder played against Smith in high school and was his teammate at Seminole The two have played on the same summer league basketball team the past three years in Las Vegas.

"He's been a big influence on me I've known him since junior high — maybe even before that . . . He's helped me go through a lot of adjustments," he said.

"He's been like a big brother to me at Seminole He helped me a whole lot with basketball and off the court," Holder added. "It was kind of strange playing against him (in last Saturday's 62-57 loss to Missouri at the NU Coliseum).

"I'm sure he didn't want to lose to a team that I'm on anymore than I wanted to lose to a team that he's on," he said.

That loss snapped an eight-game Nebraska winning streak One major factor for that streak, however, was the play of Allen Holder.

U.S. Icemen Win To Set Stage

Olympics Roundup

INNSBRUCK (AP) — The United States' hockey team battled its way into the Olympic championship division Tuesday and American speed skaters Sheila Young and Leah Poulos were confident they will win medals in the 12th Winter Games, which open amid pageantry Wednesday.

This citadel of winter sport was beautiful and peaceful and officials pronounced these Games free of eligibility scandals as they prepared to officially open the 12-day festival of international competition.

Sub-freezing temperatures and sunny skies were predicted for the opening ceremony, when the Olympic torch will be brought into a stadium at the foot of Bergisel Mountain, where 1,400 athletes from 37 nations will gather.

American medal chances got a boost Tuesday when the hockey team, sneered at following two devastating losses to Finland last week, convincingly slammed Yugoslavia 8-4 in the preliminary tournament that decides which six national teams will play for the Olympic medals.

Meanwhile, Misses Young and Poulus, carrying the strongest American hopes for treasured gold medals, worked out on the Olympic speed-skating rink in warm, bright sunshine. "The world record last week gave me real confidence," said Miss Young, 25, the new record holder in the 500-meter event.

"I'm looking for a pretty near perfect performance for myself," said Miss Poulos, 24, who like Miss Young will enter races at 500, 1,000 and 1,500 meters. They each carry medal hopes in all three events.

America's hope for a silver or gold medal in figure skating, Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., didn't like the conditions on the outdoor rink where practice was held Tuesday. So she journeyed across the West German border to Garmish for a workout.

The big U.S. victory Tuesday came in hockey, for without it the Americans could not have competed for a medal. Now the Americans face the Soviets, heavy favorites for the gold medal.

Van Dusen Leads LHS To Win Over GI Girls

Grand Island — Led by Deb Van Dusen, the Lincoln High girls' basketball team downed Grand Island, 40-30, Tuesday night.

Van Dusen scored 15 points, hitting four field goals and all seven free throws.

Other leading scorers for the Links were Robin Hruby with eight and Sue Bruce with six.

Grand Island's scoring leaders were Judy Ziola with nine and Cindy Vogel with six.

After a close first quarter, the Links climbed to a 21-14 halftime lead and maintained the scoring edge in the second half.

Lincoln High outscored Grand Island on field shots, 14 to 11. The Links were 44 per cent on free throws, slightly better than the Islanders 38 per cent.

Forbes Aids Northeast Victory Over Papillion

Papillion — The Lincoln Northeast girls' basketball team, propelled by effective shooting here Tuesday night, downed Papillion 36-33.

Tami Forbes with 12, and Pam Samuelson along with Cindy Nelson, who each had 10 points led the Rockette attack, as they cracked the Papillion 1-3-1 zone.

The visitors also displayed an effective man-to-man defense in the first half to stymie Papillion's efforts as Northeast jumped to a 20-14 halftime lead.

In the second half the hosts made a charge, however, as Northeast was plauged by turnovers. Papillion outscored Northeast in the second half 19-16 and used a 9-10 performance at the charity stripe to stay close.

Kim Mostek, before fouling out finished the night with 12 points to lead Papillion.

With the victory Northeast advances to 10-2, while Papillion falls to 6-5.

In the junior varisty game Papillion downed Northeast 35-28.

Zimmerman was given the award for outstanding contributions to wildlife conservation in Cherry County.

NBA, Players Settle Woes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In what could be a landmark development, the National Basketball Association and its players' union settled their differences Tuesday over the controversial option clause, the college draft and key compensation issues.

The agreement opens the way for the NBA to merge with the struggling American Basketball Association. ABA sources said such talks have already been held, but the NBA adopted a resolution Tuesday saying it planned no merger with anybody.

The agreement, designed to settle a major suit out of court, has the effect of guaranteeing any rookie that he will not be bound to the team he signs with for more than two years. In addition, effective with the 1976-77 season, any veteran becomes a free agent once his contract expires.

However, players are forbidden to jump teams if their original team matches any offer they get from another club.

Another feature of the agreement is that any club losing a player receives no compensation.

Meanwhile, the NBA's league-leading scorer Bob McAdoo put on a display of his run-and-gun style with 22 points, but Dave Bing poured in all 16 of his points in the second half to win the Most Valuable Player award and lead the more-experienced East squad to a 123-109 triumph over the West in Tuesday night's NBA All-Star game.

Nine Undefeated Prep Coaches Confront Their Pressures

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Pressure is supposed to be the burden of physical and mental stress.

Nebraska's nine remaining unbeaten prep basketball teams must not look at their records in terms of pressure. There's stress, but most coaches aren't feeling a burden.

Here's the way they analyze their teams unbeaten seasons:

Grand Island coach Bill Kropp (12-0, No. 1, Class A) — "I talked to five of my kids today (Monday) and they definitely feel the pressure. But they're real thrilled to have it and they know the responsibilities to each other, to the school and to the community.

"They're determined that when we get beat, it's going to be by a better ball club. We've discussed some of our close calls. But our kids think they're going to be underdogs in a couple situations coming up and they're determined to meet the challenge head-on. That's where being unbeaten has something going for us."

Friend coach Tom Maupin (13-0, No. 1, Class C) — "Our players think there's more pressure to being No. 1 than being undefeated. It hasn't affected them too much.

"They enjoy playing the most difficult teams the best. Our problem is playing teams they know they should beat. It's hard to preach one game at a time. But we try to look at each one like a season in itself. I squelch all talk of looking ahead."

Wood River coach Dale Smidt (14-0, No. 2, Class C) — "I don't think being unbeaten is much of a hazard. Good grief, not when you're pointing to district like everyone else.

"We're more concerned about getting Matt Moyer, our second leading scorer and best ball handler, back into the lineup. He's been out with a deep thigh bruise. Fortunately, we won two without him. We haven't had time to worry about being unbeaten. Too many other things to worry about."

Pleasanton coach Tom Camp (14-0, No. 8, Class C) — "Our kids are pretty used to pressure. We've got three starters back from last year. They set goals at the beginning of the season from winning the conference championship right on down to going unbeaten.

"Some may look at an unbeaten record as a possible drawback at this point in the season, but we don't see it that way. We've had a lot of injuries, suffered through some close wins, developed a real close team feeling and, most importantly, developed poise. Our kids welcome the pressure."

Larry Fletcher, Walthill (14-0, unrated, Class C) — "Our kids realize our record is a little deceiving. They know they still have a lot to prove. Heck, we haven't even won a district game in three years.

"We've had some relatively easy games, but there are no easy ones left. We're not in the most envious position, but I wouldn't want to lose one. We might have peaked too early last year (16-4). It's a thrill to be unbeaten, but no one is laying down and dying for us."

Lonnie Wing, Southeast Consolidated (11-0, unrated, Class C) — "I'd like to think being unbeaten is nothing but good for us. As a coach, I have to be looking for a possible letdown and wonder if it won't do more good than hurt us.

"We had nine straight last year when Palmyra beat us and it helped us. But these kids are awfully competitive. They don't like to lose. They'll fight to the bitter end."

Wayne Gumaer, Nelson (12-0, No. 1, Class D) — "I haven't seen any indications of pressure building on our team. Everything's going smoothly. No one is tightening up.

"I had a team at Naponee which was 20-0 before losing in the state tourney semifinals in 1967. This group compares with that group character-wise. They're not outwardly emotional. They don't go overboard. They just try to keep improving."

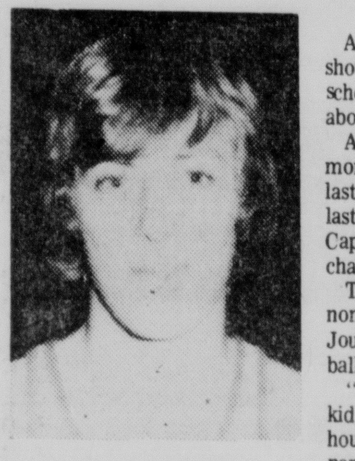
Wolbach coach Terry Kramer (14-0, No. 4, Class D) — "This town is enthused. Everyone's shooting for us. Greeley said it would make their whole season just to beat us. You could tell the same thing from North Loup-Scotia and Palmer.

"We're a marked target and it's kind of enjoyable. These kids are used to pressure. Three of them are in their fourth year of starting for us. Another is in his third year of starting. No one man has to carry the load."

Glen Revelle, Ruskin (13-0, No. 5, Class D) — "Being unbeaten means we're accomplishing some things we started working on three years ago. There's a lot of satisfaction for the players and the coach.

"Last year, we had an 11-game winning streak and lost to Trumbull by four in the South Central Conference tourney. We felt the pressure and got too cautious — all of us. We're not going to let it shake us up this year. We plan to go out after it this time."

Winner Harpin's Late Heroics Vault Ashland Into Dreamland



Wayne Harpin
Two Game-Winners

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

A last-second, game-winning shot is something most high school basketball players dream about.

Ashland's Wayne Harpin did more than dream. He made two last-second, game-winning shots last week to give Ashland the Capitol Conference tournament championship.

They also earned Harpin, a 6-1 nonstarting senior, the Sunday Journal and Star's prep basketball Player of the Week award.

"It's something else when a kid can make two of them 72 hours apart in a crucial tournament," Ashland coach Byron Sutton said.

Sinks Arlington

Three nights later, in Ashland's 48-47 tournament championship win over Arlington at Gretna, Harpin hit another 15-foot jump shot from the corner as the final buzzer sounded.

"It was his only basket and only field goal attempt of the night," Sutton noted. "We were pressing and one of our kids wasn't protecting the middle to deny the pass. We brought Wayne in to help and he ended up being the open man at the last second again."

Harpin's heroics helped Ashland, the state's fourth-ranked Class B team, move to a 12-1 record.

Others who will receive Player of the Week cards for last weekend's performances include:

Dave Griffin, Lincoln Southeast — Senior 6-7 center scored 22 points in the first 12 minutes of Knights' 66-52 conquest of Omaha Burke. He finished 12 of 16 from the field and scored 27 points. Coach Wally McNaught credits him for three straight exceptional all-around games against Lincoln High, Millard and Burke.

Tom Northup, Grand Island Central Catholic — Junior guard, only 5-7 and 140 pounds, scored 38 points and collected 16 assists in remarkable one-man performance as team outscored Hastings St. Cecilia, 85-81. He finished 13 of 25 from the field and 12 of 16 from the free throw line. He also collected five rebounds and two steals.

Randy Mroczek, North Platte St. Pat's — Senior forward hit 12 of 18 field goal attempts for 25 points in team's 54-53 South Platte Valley Association tournament win over previously unbeaten Imperial. He also collected 11 rebounds. In three tourney games, he hit 25 of 43 field gials and 4 of 6 free throws for 54 points and retrieved 30 rebounds.

Doug Horwart, Orleans — Six-foot senior hit a school record 45 points to power team to a 70-69 triumph over Kenesaw. He's averaging 25 points a game.

Larry Robbins, Sumner — Senior ranks as the top scorer in the Fort Kearney Conference with a 26.8 average. For the season, he's averaging 24.7 points and 11.6 rebounds. His season high is 38 points.

Randy Florell, Holdrege — Senior forward's 42-point, 19-rebound performance helped bury Fairbury, 78-52, and move Dusters back into Class B prominence in the Sunday Journal and Star.

Jon Parker, Lincoln High — Six-seven senior transfer became eligible for the first time last weekend since transferring from College View Academy. In his first varsity apperance ever, he hit 15 points, collected 13 rebounds and blocked 2 shots as Links defeated Kearney, 61-58. The next night, in Lincoln High's near miss 69-68 upset at top-ranked Grand Island, Parker hit 16 points, grabbed 11 of the Links' 28 rebounds and blocked 4 shots. "He's going to make a big difference for Lincoln High down the stretch," Grand Island coach Bill Kropp said of Parker.

Steve Kucera, Pleasanton — Six-five junior scored 27 points and retrieved 14 rebounds in team's 14th straight win over Hildreth. He's averaging 27 points and 14 rebounds a game. For the season, he's hitting 57% from the field and 79% from the free throw line.

Rex Eberspacher, Friend — Junior entered the lineup with 7:30 left in the fourth quarter and No. 1-rated Class C team leading Wymore Southern by only one point. He hit 3 of 4 field goals, 2 of 3 free throws and collected two key rebounds to lead 30-point fourth quarter explosion and 71-56 Bulldog win.

Rod Sell, Arcadia — His basket with seconds remaining gave team a 45-43 victory over Ansley. He finished with 11 points.

Gaylen Holy Rock, Rushville — Scored 20 points in team's 56-51 championship win over Hemingford and was named to the all-Panhandle C Conference tournament team.

Willie Smith Again

Thoughts about Big Eight Conference basketball while awaiting Wednesday night's Kansas-Nebraska game in the NU Coliseum:

Willie Smith of Missouri has been picked the Big Eight player of the week for the second week in a row, based on a pair of fine performances last week against Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Smith scored 17 points and grabbed eight rebounds against the Sooners and then poured in 28 points and picked up four rebounds against the Cornhuskers.

Nebraska's nominee last week was Bob Siegel for his 13-point, 7-rebound game at Oklahoma State and 17-point, 6-rebound contest against the Tigers . . . Jerry Fort was the player of the week after the first week of league play.

Kansas' Norman Cook, Iowa State's Art Johnson, and K-State's Mike Evans received support this week. Cook had a pair of 16-point games and got 13 rebounds against Colorado. Johnson led the Cyclones with 30 points and 15 rebounds in their win over Colorado while Evans had 24 and 20 point games against the two Kansas schools.

The other two league players nominated were Oklahoma's freshman John McCullough, who has a big game in the Sooners' win over state rival OSU (19 pounts), and Dave Logan of Colorado, a 23-pointmaker against ISU.

To settle a bet, Logan's third sport at Colorado is baseball. He was a fine diamond prospect out of high school, having been drafted by the Cincinnati Reds. He has said if he doesn't go high in the pro football draft he may stick around CU and play another season of baseball.

Catching Up On Sports

Best wishes for a speedy recovery by Frank Sevigne, Husker track and field coach, who is in Lincoln General Hospital with pneumonia.

Did you hear about the bill introduced in the District of Columbia City Council? It would prohibit the sale of season tickets to any athletic event, including Washington Redskins games in R. F. K. Stadium . . . Can you imagine the chaos such a law would create in Nebraska?

When Oklahoma held Oklahoma State to 42 points last Saturday, it was the lowest single-game offensive output for the Cowboys since they got 41 in a losing cause against Kansas in 1969.

The crowd at the OU-OSU game was 8,000, but Coach Dave Bliss knows many of the fans came out to see the Sooner football team receive the national championship trophy. "I'll take a crowd any way we can get 'em," Bliss said.

The NFL was supposed to hold its draft of college-players this week. In the abesence of that event, you might be interested in reading former San Francisco 49er quaterback John Brodie's comments at a banquet in Portland, Ore., on Monday:

"I love to see the ball in the air. There are so many great quarterbacks, receivers and running backs today making spectacular plays and the fans should be able to see more of them.

"If they rescricted the defenses, you could expose these guys. Now you have a situation where players are making $100,000 a year and catching 10 passes all season.

"A criticims of pro football today is that the sport is uncreative and lacking in imagination. You can be as imaginative as you want in preparation, but in application you can't be because these 300-pound cats will eat you up."

National Grant To Parks Dept.

The National Endowment for the Arts has approved a $5,000 research grant to the Division of State Historical Parks of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

National Endowment for the Arts is a federal agency making grants to federal, state or local organizations for furthering research on the various facets of American life. The grant will run for one year.

New Coach For NU Crew

The University of Nebraska Crew (rowing team) has announced the appointment of Robert F. Spousta, formerly of Amherst Mass., as the new head crew coach.

Spousta has served as the womens crew coach for the last three years at the University of Massachusetts.

Ron Rusthoven of Omaha will serve as freshmen coach while Mark Stormberg of Kimball returns as womens crew coach.

U.S. Icemen Win To Set Stage

Olympics Roundup

INNSBRUCK (AP) — The United States' hockey team battled its way into the Olympic championship division Tuesday and American speed skaters Sheila Young and Leah Poulos were confident they will win medals in the 12th Winter Games, which open amid pageantry Wednesday

This citadel of winter sport was beautiful and peaceful and officials pronounced these Games free of eligibility scandals as they prepared to officially open the 12-day festival of international competition

Sub-freezing temperatures and sunny skies were predicted for the opening ceremony, when the Olympic torch will be brought into a stadium at the foot of Bergisel Mountain, where 1,400 athletes from 37 nations will gather

American medal chances got a boost Tuesday when the hockey team, sneered at following two devastating losses to Finland last week, convincingly slammed Yugoslavia 8-4 in the preliminary tournament that decides which six national teams will play for the Olympic medals

Meanwhile, Misses Young and Poulus, carrying the strongest American hopes for treasured gold medals, worked out on the Olympic speed-skating rink in warm, bright sunshine "The world record last week gave me real confidence," said Miss Young, 25, the new record holder in the 500-meter event

"I'm looking for a pretty near perfect performance for myself," said Miss Poulos, 24, who like Miss Young will enter races at 500, 1,000 and 1,500 meters They each carry medal hopes in all three events

America's hope for a silver or gold medal in figure skating, Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn, didn't like the conditions on the outdoor rink where practice was held Tuesday So she journeyed across the West German border to Garmish for a workout

The big U S victory Tuesday came in hockey, for without it the Americans could not have competed for a medal Now the Americans face the Soviets, heavy favorites for the gold medal

Van Dusen Leads LHS To Win Over GI Girls

Grand Island — Led by Deb Van Dusen, the Lincoln High girls basketball team downed Grand Island, 40-30, Tuesday night

Van Dusen scored 15 points, hitting four field goals and all seven free throws

Other leading scorers for the Links were Robin Hruby with eight and Sue Bruce with six

Grand Island s scoring leaders were Judy Ziola with nine and Cindy Vogel with six

After a close first quarter, the Links climbed to a 21-14 halftime lead and maintained the scoring edge in the second half

Lincoln High outscored Grand Island on field shots, 14 to 11 The Links were 44 per cent on free throws, slightly better than the Islanders 38 per cent

Forbes Aids Northeast Victory Over Papillion

Papillion — The Lincoln Northeast girls basketball team, propelled by effective shooting here Tuesday night, downed Papillion 36-33

Tami Forbes with 12, and Pam Samuelson along with Cindy Nelson, who each had 10 points led the Rockette attack, as they cracked the Papillion 1-3-1 zone

The visitors also displayed an effective man-to-man defense in the first half to stymie Papillion's efforts as Northeast jumped to a 20-14 halftime lead

In the second half the hosts made a charge, however, as Northeast was plauged by turnovers Papillion outscored Northeast in the second half 19-16 and used a 9-10 performance at the charity stripe to stay close

Kim Mostek, before fouling out finished the night with 12 points to lead Papillion

With the victory Northeast advances to 10-2, while Papillion falls to 6-5

In the junior varsity game Papillion downed Northeast 35-28

NBA, Players Settle Woes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In what could be a landmark development, the National Basketball Association and its players' union settled their differences Tuesday over the controversial option clause, the college draft and key compensation issues

The agreement opens the way for the NBA to merge with the struggling American Basketball Association ABA sources said such talks have already been held but the NBA adopted a resolution Tuesday saying it planned no merger with anybody

The agreement, designed to settle a major suit out of court, has the effect of guaranteeing any rookie that he will not be bound to the team he signs with for more than two years In addition, effective with the 1976-77 season, any veteran becomes a free agent once his contract expires

However players are forbidden to jump teams if their original team matches any offer they get from another club

Another feature of the agreement is that any club losing a player receives no compensation

Meanwhile, the NBA's league-leading scorer Bob McAdoo put on a display of his run-and-gun style with 22 points, but Dave Bing poured in all 16 of his points in the second half to win the Most Valuable Player award and lead the more-experienced East squad to a 123-109 triumph over the West in Tuesday night s NBA All Star game

More Students Enroll In Iowa U

Iowa City, Iowa (UPI) — Spring semester enrollment at the University of Iowa is 21,134, up more than 1,000 from the same time a year ago, Registrar W. A. Cox announced.

Cox said second semester enrollment is slightly lower than the fall enrollment of 22,512 because of graduation in December and other factors.

Free U Offers Course Variety

The Free University, sponsored by the University of Nebraska Associated Students, will begin its classes the first week in March.

For a $1 registration fee, persons can enroll in one or all the classes. Registration will be Feb. 23-26. Booklets outlining classes offered will be available Wednesday, Feb. 18, at the Nebraska Union and Bennett Martin Library.

According to Jackie Learned, director of the Free University, nearly 100 classes will be offered to the community this semester. Last semester, more than 800 students registered for the 67 classes offered.

Ms. Learned added that the organization is seeking instructors for new classes which have been requested by students. They include topics such as magic tricks, tombstone rubbing, gourmet cooking, survival for the suddenly single, open marriage, belly dancing, juggling, teenage skin care and handwriting analysis.

Persons interested in teaching Free University classes should contact the Free University at the Nebraska Union or call 472-2593 by Feb. 14.

Review Board Will Hear First Police Complaint

The first case to be heard by the newly-created Police Review Board has been filed with the city clerk.

Wilford and Susan Miller, 1640 N. 28th, claim that a police office lied to get them to move out of a motel room for which the manager contended they owed rent.

The Millers said the officer told them he and attorney Gale Pokorny of Lincoln Legal Aid Society had agreed that the couple should move out of the room.

Later the couple learned from Pokorny, with whom they had been conferring in the incident, that "this was not the substance of their conversation," according to the couple's complaint.

All Taxpayers Are Eligible For $30 Exemptions Credit

An Omaha Associated Press story in Tuesday morning's Star incorrectly stated the requirements for the $30 personal exemptions credit.

The $30 personal exemptions credit is available to all taxpayers regardless of income. The story correctly explained that eligible taxpayers may subtract $30 for themselves and their spouses and each other person for whom they can claim an exemption, but not for the special exemptions granted for age or blindness.

In addition, an earned income tax credit is available to taxpayers who head households including children and who have incomes less than $8,000.

With nearly 60,000 returns filed so far by Nebraskans, the IRS reports it is clear that a number of persons eligible for the two kinds of tax credits have not been filing for them.

The IRS said 4.7% of Nebraskans filing form 1040 and 7.3% of those filing the shorter 1040A have failed to claim the $30 personal exemptions credit.

The IRS reported that among Nebraskans eligible for the earned income tax credit for low-income families, 1.9% of the 1040 forms fail to claim the credit and 3% of the 1040A forms fail to claim the credit.

IRS Branch Offices To Be Open

The branch Internal Revenue Service taxpayer assistance office at Lincoln's Gateway Shopping Center will be open two days a week during February.

The Gateway Mall office will be open from 11 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays. The main office in the Federal Building, 15th and O Sts., will be open from 8 a.m. until 4:45 p.m. Monday through Fridays.

The Beatrice branch office in the Gage County Courthouse will be open from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Fridays.

Persons who owe taxes should make their checks payable to the Internal Revenue Service — not to IRS — and should not send payments in cash.

4 Charged In Burglaries

Kearney (AP) — Ten felony burglary counts against four teenagers were filed Tuesday in Buffalo County court in connection with a series of burglaries at Kearney and Pleasanton businesses.

Charged with five counts is Michael Hitt, 19, of Kearney in connection with burglaries at two Kearney businesses and three Pleasanton businesses.

Hitt remains in Buffalo County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond set by County Judge J. Karr Taylor.

A 19-year-old Pleasanton youth, James Dale, is held in lieu of $7,500 bond on three charges.

Held in lieu of $5,000 bond each were Randy Merriman, 16, and Leo Mackin, 19, both of Kearney.

Authoritites said the four were arrested Monday night and early Tuesday. Buffalo County authorities also said a large amount of allegedly stolen merchandise was confiscated.

Nine Undefeated Prep Coaches Confront Their Pressures

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Pressure is supposed to be the burden of physical and mental stress.

Nebraska's nine remaining unbeaten prep basketball teams must not look at their records in terms of pressure. There's stress, but most coaches aren't feeling a burden

Here's the way they analyze their teams unbeaten seasons:

Grand Island coach Bill Kropp (12-0, No. 1, Class A) — "I talked to five of my kids today (Monday) and they definitely feel the pressure. But they're real thrilled to have it and they know the responsibilities to each other, to the school and to the community

"They're determined that when we get beat, it's going to be by a better ball club. We've discussed some of our close calls. But our kids think they're going to be underdogs in a couple situations coming up and they're determined to meet the challenge head-on That's where being unbeaten has something going for us."

Friend coach Tom Maupin (13-0, No. 1, Class C) — "Our players think there's more pressure to being No. 1 than being undefeated. It hasn't affected them too much.

"They enjoy playing the most difficult teams the best. Our problem is playing teams they know they should beat .It's hard to preach one game at a time. But we try to look at each one like a season in itself. I squelch all talk of looking ahead "

Wood River coach Dale Smidt (14-0, No. 2, Class C) — "I don't think being unbeaten is much of a hazard. Good grief, not when you're pointing to district like everyone else.

"We're more concerned about getting Matt Moyer, our second leading scorer and best ball handler, back into the lineup. He's been out with a deep thigh bruise. Fortunately, we won two without him. We haven't had time to worry about being unbeaten. Too many other things to worry about "

Pleasanton coach Tom Camp (14-0, No. 8, Class C) — "Our kids are pretty used to pressure. We've got three starters back from last year. They set goals at the beginning of the season from winning the conference championship right on down to going unbeaten.

"Some may look at an unbeaten record as a possible drawback at this point in the season, but we don't see it that way. We've had a lot of injuries, suffered through some close wins, developed a real close team feeling and, most importantly, developed poise Our kids welcome the pressure."

Larry Fletcher, Walthill (14-0, unrated, Class C) — "Our kids realize our record is a little deceiving. They know they still have a lot to prove. Heck, we haven't even won a district game in three years.

"We've had some relatively easy games, but there are no easy ones left. We're not in the most envious position, but I wouldn't want to lose one. We might have peaked too early last year (16-4). It's a thrill to be unbeaten, but no one is laying down and dying for us."

Lonnie Wing, Southeast Consolidated (11-0, unrated, Class C) — "I'd like to think being unbeaten is nothing but good for us. As a coach, I have to be looking for a possible letdown and wonder if it won't do more good than hurt us.

"We had nine straight last year when Palmyra beat us and it helped us. But these kids are awfully competitive. They don't like to lose. They'll fight to the bitter end."

Wayne Gumaer, Nelson (12-0, No. 1, Class D) — "I haven't seen any indications of pressure building on our team. Everything's going smoothly. No one is tightening up.

"I had a team at Naponee which was 20-0 before losing in the state tourney semifinals in 1967. This group compares with that group character-wise. They're not outwardly emotional. They don't go overboard. They just try to keep improving."

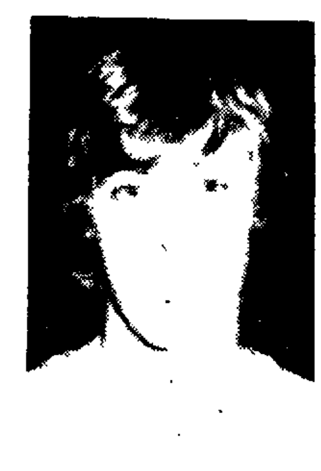
Wolbach coach Terry Kramer (14-0, No. 4, Class D) — "This town is enthused. Everyone's shooting for us. Greeley said it would make their whole season just to beat us. You could tell the same thing from North Loup-Scotia and Palmer.

"We're a marked target and it's kind of enjoyable. These kids are used to pressure. Three of them are in their fourth year of starting for us. Another is in his third year of starting. No one man has to carry the load."

Glen Revelle, Ruskin (13-0, No. 5, Class D) — "Being unbeaten means we're accomplishing some things we started working on three years ago. There's a lot of satisfaction for the players and the coach.

"Last year, we had an 11-game winning streak and lost to Trumbull by four in the South Central Conference tourney. We felt the pressure and got too cautious — all of us. We're not going to let it shake us up this year. We plan to go out after it this time."

Winner Harpin's Late Heroics Vault Ashland Into Dreamland



Wayne Harpin
Two Game-Winners

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

A last-second, game-winning shot is something most high school basketball players dream about.

Ashland's Wayne Harpin did more than dream. He made two last-second, game-winning shots last week to give Ashland the Capitol Conference tournament championship.

They also earned Harpin, a 6-1 nonstarting senior, the Sunday Journal and Star's prep basketball Player of the Week award.

"It's something else when a kid can make two of them 72 hours apart in a crucial tournament," Ashland coach Byron Sutton said.

Sinks Arlington

Three nights later, in Ashland's 48-47 tournament, championship win over Arlington at Gretna, Harpin hit another 15-foot jump shot from the corner as the final buzzer sounded.

"It was his only basket and only field goal attempt of the night," Sutton noted. "We were pressing and one of our kids wasn't protecting the middle to deny the pass. We brought Wayne in to help and he ended up being the open man at the last second again "

Harpin's heroics helped Ashland, the state's fourth-ranked Class B team, move to a 12-1 record.

Others who will receive Player of the Week cards for last weekend's performances include:

Dave Griffin, Lincoln Southeast — Senior 6-7 center scored 22 points in the first 12 minutes of Knights' 66-52 conquest of Omaha Burke He finished 12 of 16 from the field and scored 27 points Coach Wally McNaught credits him for three straight exceptional all-around games against Lincoln High, Millard and Burke

Tom Northup, Grand Island Central Catholic — Junior guard, only 5-7 and 140 pounds, scored 38 points and collected 16 assists in remarkable one-man performance as team outscored Hastings St Cecilia, 85-81. He finished 13 of 25 from the field and 12 of 16 from the free throw line He also collected five rebounds and two steals.

Randy Mroczek, North Platte St. Pat's — Senior forward hit 12 of 18 field goal attempts for 25 points in team's 54 53 South Platte Valley Association tournament win over previously unbeaten Imperial He also collected 11 rebounds In three tourney games, he hit 25 of 43 field gials and 4 of 6 free throws for 54 points and retrieved 30 rebounds

Doug Horwart, Orleans — Six-foot senior hit a school record 45 points to power team to a 70-69 triumph over Kenesaw He's averaging 25 points a game.

Larry Robbins, Sumner — Senior ranks as the top scorer in the Fort Kearney Conference with a 26.8 average. For the season, he's averaging 24 7 points and 11.6 rebounds His season high is 38 points

Randy Florell, Holdrege — Senior forward's 42-point, 19-rebound performance helped bury Fairbury, 78-52, and move Dusters back into Class B prominence in the Sunday Journal and Star

Jon Parker, Lincoln High — Six-seven senior transfer became eligible for the first time last weekend since transferring from College View Academy In his first varsity apperance ever, he hit 15 points, collected 13 rebounds and blocked 2 shots as Links defeated Kearney, 61-58 The next night, in Lincoln High's near miss 69-68 upset at top-ranked Grand Island, Parker hit 16 points, grabbed 11 of the Links' 28 rebounds and blocked 4 shots "He's going to make a big difference for Lincoln High down the stretch," Grand Island coach Bill Kropp said of Parker.

Steve Kucera, Pleasanton — Six-five junior scored 27 points and retrieved 14 rebounds in team's 14th straight win over Hildreth. He's averaging 27 points and 14 rebounds a game. For the season, he's hitting 57% from the field and 79% from the free throw line.

Rex Eberspacher, Friend — Junior entered the lineup with 7.30 left in the fourth quarter and No. 1-rated Class C team leading Wymore Southern by only one point He hit 3 of 4 field goals, 2 of 3 free throws and collected two key rebounds to lead 30-point fourth quarter explosion and 71-56 Bulldog win

Rod Sell, Arcadia — His basket with seconds remaining gave team a 45-43 victory over Ansley. He finished with 11 points.

Gaylen Holy Rock, Rushville — Scored 20 points in team's 56-51 championship win over Hemingford and was named to the all-Panhandle C Conference tournament team.

Willie Smith Again

Thoughts about Big Eight Conference basketball while awaiting Wednesday night's Kansas-Nebraska game in the NU Coliseum

Willie Smith of Missouri has been picked the Big Eight player of the week for the second week in a row, based on a pair of fine performances last week against Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Smith scored 17 points and grabbed eight rebounds against the Sooners and then poured in 28 points and picked up four rebounds against the Cornhuskers.

Nebraska's nominee last week was Bob Siegel for his 13-point, 7-rebound game at Oklahoma State and 17-point, 6-rebound contest against the Tigers . . . Jerry Fort was the player of the week after the first week of league play.

Kansas' Norman Cook, Iowa State's Art Johnson, and K-State's Mike Evans received support this week. Cook had a pair of 16-point games and got 13 rebounds against Colorado. Johnson led the Cyclones with 30 points and 15 rebounds in their win over Colorado while Evans had 24 and 20 point games against the two Kansas schools.

The other two league players nominated were Oklahoma's freshman John McCullough, who has a big game in the Sooners' win over state rival OSU (19 points), and Dave Logan of Colorado, a 23-pointmaker against ISU.

To settle a bet, Logan's third sport at Colorado is baseball. He was a fine diamond prospect out of high school, having been drafted by the Cincinnati Reds. He has said if he doesn't go high in the pro football draft he may stick around CU and play another season of baseball.

Catching Up On Sports

Best wishes for a speedy recovery by Frank Sevigne, Husker track and field coach, who is in Lincoln General Hospital with pneumonia.

Did you hear about the bill introduced in the District of Columbia City Council? It would prohibit the sale of season tickets to any athletic event, including Washington Redskins games in R. F. K. Stadium . . . Can you imagine the chaos such a law would create in Nebraska?

When Oklahoma held Oklahoma State to 42 points last Saturday, it was the lowest single-game offensive output for the Cowboys since they got 41 in a losing cause against Kansas in 1969.

The crowd at the OU-OSU game was 8,000, but Coach Dave Bliss knows many of the fans came out to see the Sooner football team receive the national championship trophy. "I'll take a crowd any way we can get 'em," Bliss said.

The NFL was supposed to hold its draft of college-players this week. In the abesence of that event, you might be interested in reading former San Francisco 49er quaterback John Brodie's comments at a banquet in Portland, Ore., on Monday:

"I love to see the ball in the air There are so many great quarterbacks, receivers and running backs today making spectacular plays and the fans should be able to see more of them.

"If they rescricted the defenses, you could expose these guys. Now you have a situation where players are making $100,000 a year and catching 10 passes all season.

"A criticims of pro football today is that the sport is uncreative and lacking in imagination You can be as imaginative as you want in preparation, but in application you can't be because these 300-pound cats will eat you up "

National Grant To Parks Dept.

PAIN PERDU

The French have a way of cooking everything so it is in a sauce or batter. This is perhaps why the batter covered bread is called French Toast. In France it is called pain perdu or "lost bread". French toast is made from day old bread or bread that might not be served because it is hard and dry.

The bread used for French Toast in the United States has not lost its nutritive value by being held for a few days. The drying process does not reduce the protein, carbohydrate, minerals or vitamins found in enriched bread. The bread is further enriched with nutrients by dipping it into a batter of eggs and milk. The finished product of French Toast provides the body with most of the required nutrients except being low in Vitamin C.

French Toast is an economical nutritious tasty product that can be served for breakfast, lunch or supper.

FRENCH TOAST

*3 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
dash of ground nutmeg, if desired
6 slices dry bread
3 tablespoons butter

Mix all ingredients except bread. Dip each slice of bread into egg batter and fry in melted butter until golden brown. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Allow two slices of toast per person.

*Egg Beaters may be used for the eggs in this recipe for individuals following a low cholesterol diet.

More Students Enroll In Iowa U

Iowa City, Iowa (UPI) — Spring semester enrollment at the University of Iowa is 21,134, up more than 1,000 from the same time a year ago, Registrar W. A. Cox announced.

Cox said second semester enrollment is slightly lower than the fall enrollment of 22,512 because of graduation in December and other factors.

Free U Offers Course Variety

The Free University, sponsored by the University of Nebraska Associated Students, will begin its classes the first week in March.

For a $1 registration fee, persons can enroll in one or all the classes. Registration will be Feb. 23-26. Booklets outlining classes offered will be available Wednesday, Feb. 18, at the Nebraska Union and Bennett Martin Library.

According to Jackie Learned, director of the Free University, nearly 100 classes will be offered to the community this semester. Last semester, more than 800 students registered for the 67 classes offered.

Ms. Learned added that the organization is seeking instructors for new classes which have been requested by students. They include topics such as magic tricks, tombstone rubbing, gourmet cooking, survival for the suddenly single, open marriage, belly dancing, juggling, teenage skin care and handwriting analysis.

Persons interested in teaching Free University classes should contact the Free University at the Nebraska Union or call 472-2593 by Feb. 14.

Review Board Will Hear First Police Complaint

The first case to be heard by the newly-created Police Review Board has been filed with the city clerk.

Wilford and Susan Miller, 1640 N. 28th, claim that a police office lied to get them to move out of a motel room for which the manager contended they owed rent.

The Millers said the officer told them he and attorney Gale Pokorny of Lincoln Legal Aid Society had agreed that the couple should move out of the room.

Later the couple learned from Pokorny, with whom they had been conferring in the incident, that "this was not the substance of their conversation," according to the couple's complaint.

All Taxpayers Are Eligible For $30 Exemptions Credit

An Omaha Associated Press story in Tuesday morning's Star incorrectly stated the requirements for the $30 personal exemptions credit.

The $30 personal exemptions credit is available to all taxpayers regardless of income. The story correctly explained that eligible taxpayers may subtract $30 for themselves and their spouses and each other person for whom they can claim an exemption, but not for the special exemptions granted for age or blindness.

In addition, an earned income tax credit is available to taxpayers who head households including children and who have incomes less than $8,000.

With nearly 60,000 returns filed so far by Nebraskans, the IRS reports it is clear that a number of persons eligible for the two kinds of tax credits have not been filing for them.

The IRS said 4.7% of Nebraskans filing form 1040 and 7.3% of those filing the shorter 1040A have failed to claim the $30 personal exemptions credit."

The IRS reported that among Nebraskans eligible for the earned income tax credit for low-income families, 1.9% of the 1040 forms fail to claim the credit and 3% of the 1040A forms fail to claim the credit

IRS Branch Offices To Be Open

The branch Internal Revenue Service taxpayer assistance office at Lincoln's Gateway Shopping Center will be open two days a week during February.

The Gateway Mall office will be open from 11 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays. The main office in the Federal Building, 15th and O Sts., will be open from 8 a.m. until 4:45 p.m. Monday through Fridays

The Beatrice branch office in the Gage County Courthouse will be open from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Fridays.

Persons who owe taxes should make their checks payable to the Internal Revenue Service — not to IRS — and should not send payments in cash.

4 Charged In Burglaries

Kearney (AP) — Ten felony burglary counts against four teenagers were filed Tuesday in Buffalo County court in connection with a series of burglaries at Kearney and Pleasanton businesses.

Charged with five counts is Michael Hitt, 19, of Kearney in connection with burglaries at two Kearney businesses and three Pleasanton businesses.

Hitt remains in Buffalo County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond set by County Judge J. Karr Taylor.

A 19-year-old Pleasanton youth, James Dale, is held in lieu of $7,500 bond on three charges.

Held in lieu of $5,000 bond each were Randy Merriman, 16, and Leo Mackin, 19, both of Kearney.

Authoritites said the four were arrested Monday night and early Tuesday. Buffalo County authorities also said a large amount of allegedly stolen merchandise was confiscated.

Near South Group Looking For 'Green'

Residents of the Near South Neighborhood Association (NSNA) have a chance for some green to develop some green in their neighborhood, and they're ready to fight to get it.

The green is in the form of $15,000, a share of the Housing and Urban Development Department's block grant funding which would be used to conduct a survey to determine if more green space (parks, boulevards, etc.) is feasible for the area which is bounded by G and South Sts. on the north and south and 13th and 27th on the east and west.

Members of the NSNA met Tuesday night to discuss, among other things, attendance at a public hearing on the $15,000 scheduled for next Monday in the City Council chambers, according to member Anne Brookes.

"This money has been so tenuous," she explained, noting that it had been included in the original proposals, then dropped, but added again by a task force action.

She emphasized the need for the green space study as well as a survey to determine how the historic architecture of the area can be preserved and "how our new construction can be combined with the old."

Near South Group Looking For 'Green'

Residents of the Near South Neighborhood Association (NSNA) have a chance for some green to develop some green in their neighborhood, and they're ready to fight to get it.

The green is in the form of $15,000, a share of the Housing and Urban Development Department's block grant funding which would be used to conduct a survey to determine if more green space (parks, boulevards, etc.) is feasible for the area which is bounded by G and South Sts. on the north and south and 13th and 27th on the east and west.

Members of the NSNA met Tuesday night to discuss, among other things, attendance at a public hearing on the $15,000 scheduled for next Monday in the City Council chambers, according to member Anne Brookes.

"This money has been so tenuous," she explained, noting that it had been included in the original proposals, then dropped, but added again by a task force action.

She emphasized the need for the green space study as well as a survey to determine how the historic architecture of the area can be preserved and "how our new construction can be combined with the old."
